If one can judge by the photograph in Wednesday's Oregonian Wm. J. Bryan wears the smile that won't come off.

An editor is a most remarkable combination. He can build 180 miles of railroad in ten minutes if the pencil holds out; and he can come about as close as the next one to living on nothing.—Review.

The Northwestern Fruit Growers association in choosing our townsman Hon. E. L. Smith as president of that organization did both themselves and Mr. Smith honor. Mr. Smith's qualification for the position are not a matter of argument as they are admitted by all and bring both dignity and influence to the association.

Mayor Flower's message to the city council is not untimely and contains recommendations for the improvement of the city that it is hoped will bear fruit. It is evident that he has the city's interests at heart and that he will urge action on matters that affect its improvement. It is evidently his intention to institute a vigorous policy in city affairs in which he will undoubtedly have the concurrence of council and the support of citizens.

In speedily electing Jonathan Bourne, jr., United States senator the legislature of Oregon has carried out the wishes of the people and upheld the law. With the eyes of many other states turned on the consummation of the intent of the primary law its influence can't help but be far reaching and a long step toward the selection of senators by direct vote of the people. There is no doubt that other states will pass a similar law and that at no distant period the long sought for privilege of electing members to the upper house of congress by ballot will prevail.

The attitude of the representatives to the legislature from Wasco county toward the committee sent by the Hood River Commercial club to confer with them on county division was both weak and pitiable. The shuffling and vacillating tactics adopted by them to delay action on the new county agitation was so transparent that it savored of the ridiculous. Their dissimulation may have fooled themselves but not those to whom they had promised to grant an interview on the merits of the situation and who were prepared for their answer.

Newspapermen and the Pass Law.
 The adverse ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission, by which newspapermen are denied the right to passes is being called to the attention of railroad officials by the Jamestown Exposition commission and by others who feel that their privileges are being wrongfully abridged. The decision is one that can not help but prove a detriment not only to the railroads but also to the country at large and public enterprises.

The great work that the press has done and is doing in the way of publicity for every cause worthy of its support can not be reckoned in dollars and cents and members of the press have never received any adequate return from the railroad companies or other big enterprises for their services in this respect or have it.

The exchange of courtesies between the newspapers and the railroads has been one which has been fixed by no hard and fast rules and for this reason has worked to the mutual advantage of both the railroads and events of a public nature in which transportation has been one of the features necessary to success.

In lieu of a money consideration for space and the work of bringing advertising and reading matter of its description to the attention of its readers the papers have accepted transportation. An attempt to abrogate or curtail this privilege cannot but be harmful and unsatisfactory to both parties. We do not think the railroad companies are favorable to this interpretation of the law as is instanced by the legal department of the Monon railroad which has made a test case in Chicago, Ill., and the supreme court of the United States is to be asked to pass upon the question whether a railroad company can issue transportation in exchange for advertising in newspapers. The Monon takes the view of the case as held by the newspapers, and the company's attorneys urge that the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission denies the freedom of contract to a particular class. The rule, as universal, is stated and upheld by the courts, is: "What the parties agreed shall constitute the payment, the law will adjudge to be payment. It is competent for parties to designate by their contracts how and in what payment may be made. It is by no means true that payment can be only made in money; on the contrary it may be made in property or in services."

It is to be hoped that the press of the country will take up this matter and aid the railroads in their endeavor to get a favorable decision from the supreme court. Otherwise it is evident that the Jamestown exposition, the fair at Seattle and other national and public enterprises can not expect to be exploited unless the newspapers receive some return for their labors.

JONATHAN BOURNE ELECTED ON FIRST BALLOT

Jonathan Bourne, Jr., first U. S. Senator to be chosen by direct vote.

Jonathan Bourne, who got 80 out of 87 votes cast, and Frederick W. Mulkey, who got 87 out of 87, were elected long and short term United States senators, respectively, Tuesday afternoon by the Oregon legislature, senate and house balloting separately.

In the senate Mulkey received 27 votes, with May, Miller (Linn) and Hart absent. Bourne got 23. Those voting against him were Booth, Laycock, Wheelton and Miller (Marion). The other four votes went to Bean.

In the house Mulkey received the whole 93 votes for the short term. For the long term Bourne got 57, F. A. Moore 2 and Mulkey 1. Rogers and Reynolds voted for Moore and Settlemier for Mulkey.

It was the first time in the history of Oregon that two candidates for United States senator each obtained a majority of each house in the legislature. It was the first time, also, that the people of the state ever had an opportunity to express their preference for these positions, among practically to the election of senators by popular vote.

The method of electing senators has been a subject of controversy for several days past, opinion differing on law. To settle this, President Haines prefaced the ballot by reading the law at the time the vote was to be taken.

Born in Him.
 The little son of the lawyer has finished working an elaborate sum on the blackboard, and, after the usual detail of elaboration of the operation, he concludes with:
 "Therefore the answer is 2,645."
 "And can you prove it?" asks the teacher.
 The boy looked wise.
 "Prove it? Yes, ma'am. I will subpoena the entire class as witnesses, but I must request a postponement for ten days in order to prepare my defense."—New York Life.

Oranges.
 This is the West Indian way of preparing oranges for the table: Peel the oranges, taking off as much white skin as possible; then slice them off all round as you would an apple, regardless of the sections. This leaves the seed, tough, stringy central part and most of the inner skin together and is a much less tedious process than removing the skin by sections. Use a very sharp knife, so as to make clean cuts and not crush the fruit.

Cold Calculation.
 "You should do something to claim the gratitude of posterity."
 "What for?" asked Senator Sorghum. "I don't know that posterity will have anything I especially desire, and if it should have there is no way for it to deliver the goods."—Washington Star.

Makes Him White
 "Jimmy's got a great scheme to get out of school on nice days."
 "How does he work it?"
 "He goes out and washes his face, and the teacher thinks he's ill and sends him home."—Philadelphia Inquirer.
