The Freedman Shelby Shoe Co. succeeds the Freedman Bros. Shoe Co. An entire change has been made in the company. New trade marks, new labels, different lot No. and different styles of shoes are to replace the former ones. Not wishing to have two different lines we have decided to close out our entire line of Freedman shoes before our Spring goods arrive.

There are no better shoes manufactured than the Freedman shoe, being for fifty years the leading shoe house in the United States. They use only the best skins from the leading tanners, and employ none but expert shoemakers in their factories, making good every wrong pair of shoes to their customers. This is why they have accomplished such marvelous results

SAN JOSE SCALE A CHINESE PRODUCT

The San Jose scale is known to be of Chinese origin, says C. L. Marshall, of the United States department of agriculture, in a bulletin on the insect just published. Its first point of colonization in America was in San Jose, Cal., in the grounds of James Lick. Mr. Lick was a great lover of plants and imported trees and shrubs for the ornamentation of his grounds from foreign countries and it was in his orchard that the scale first appeared. By 1873 it had spread on neighboring orchards. It had extended as far west as San Francisco by 1883 and reached important fruit districts in Southern California in 1886 and 1887. It had already slowly extended its range on the Pacific coast to the status west of the Rocky mountains, including California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho on the north and Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico on the south. From the early '90's it had penetrated into British Columbia. By the end of August, 1894, the scale was known in Florida, Virginia, Maryland, Indiana, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.

In capacity for harm the San Jose scale probably exceeds any other scale insect known, and it attacks practically all, both those grown for fruit and the ornamental. Its economic importance is increased by the ease with which it is distributed over wide districts through the agency of nursery stock.

The practice of several means of control are particularly the lime sulphur wash, has been demonstrated. In the case of certain fruits, for example, the peach, it has been found that the lime and sulphur wash has a very great value as fungicide, so much so that some growers are recommending its use whether the San Jose scale be present in the orchard or not. Furthermore, the presence of this scale has led to much more careful methods on the part of the nurserymen and in the planting and care, thus raising the standard and giving intelligent and conscientious, painstaking growers a distinct advantage over their careless neighbors. The necessity of annual spraying of the trees is now clearly shown. With the exception of a few hours of active larval existence and an equally brief winged existence in the case of the mature male, the life of this insect is passed under the protection of a way scale. This scale covering conceals the real insect beneath. The winter is passed by the insect in a half grown condition under small, black protecting scales, more points; just visible to the naked eye.

BY THE WAY

Arguing for its new $50,000,000 issue of stock, the Great Northern management has strangely omitted the real explanation; it needs money.

The Coach Horse.

By request we reprint the following article which appeared in a recent issue of the Daily Live Stock Reporter, and which will be fully endorsed by stockmen generally who are posted in the matter:

"A good many of our readers have asked us the difference between the several breeds of coach stallions, and how they would cross on our southern mares. The first breed of coach horse we had in this country was the old Morgan horse known as the Vermont Morgan. He weighed from 1300 to 1400 pounds, was short backed, round barreled, big in the heart and lungs, well muscled, and was an ideal all purpose horse; but this breed is almost extinct. Still a good many of our fastest race horses breeding contain some of the Morgan blood. They were not noted for speed, but breeders of speed in the early days contended that a cross of Morgan gave them more stamina. A horse does not have to be a coach breed to be a coach horse. Coach horse means a horse of coach size, with style and action; full made, with good feet and bone. The American trotters are often used for coach horses when they have the conformation, size and action that a coach type requires; but if you would be sure to raise coach horses, breed to one of the recognized coach breeds.

The Hackney is a coach breed raised in England but is not a large breed of horses, and when crossed on small mares fails to produce size enough. The French coach are raised in France. They are inclined to be narrow in front and behind, heavy in the middle, and very light boned for their size, and do not reproduce themselves like some of the other coach stallions, and when crossed on our small southern mares they do not get size enough to bring good prices. The coach breed, in the writer's opinion, best suited to cross on the small southern mares, is the German coach stallion. They weigh from 1400 to 1500 pounds, have extreme action and style, are mostly bays, blacks and browns in color, round of rib, short in the back, big in the heart and lungs, have breezy heads and necks, large intelligent eyes, well set ears, clean cut at the throat, broad foreheads, and are of fine disposition.

When crossed on common mares they reproduce themselves to a wonderful certainty. This is not to be wondered at when it is known how long a time they have been bred in one line. History tells us that it was in the beginning of the fifteenth century (according to chronicle) when in the marches of the present Duchy of Oldenburg a considerable number of horses were bred. There is hardly any breed of horses or cattle that has been bred for so many centuries for the same type as the Oldenburg German coach horse. For this reason the Oldenburg horse has acquired an extraordinary uniformity, and it is an acknowledged fact that when crossed on heterogeneous breeds, it proves itself to be an impressive breed. Colts sired by the German coach horse from Texas mares are selling readily at weaning time from $150 to $200. There are a few of these colts at May, De Leon, Panhandle and Amarillo."

Your Health Is your best asset. Proper health is most essential to your happiness and welfare. Pure air is an absolute necessity, and no effort should be spared to keep it so in every house. Where open-flame illuminants rob the air of oxygen and turn it into carbonic acid gas, pure air is an impossibility. Air poisoned by the flame of a gas jet, or that of an oil lamp is unfit for breathing purposes and exercises a decidedly injurious effect upon the occupant of the room. Electric Light burning in an air-tight bulb leaves the air of the room pure and fresh, and furnishes a better, brighter and safer light than any other medium.
