The Daller is making a desperate struggle to build a city hall and public library. Success to you.

The death of W. H. Goode is a great loss to the state of Oregon. He was a man of virile mind, indomitable zeal, charitable heart and splendid life. He was rapidly becoming a man of the nation. We join with his legion of friends to pay tribute to a great and good man.

The fruit growers of Idaho contemplate organizing a "clearing house." Not to use in the exchange of money (we have banks for that purpose) but through which they can exchange ideas regarding the planting of orchards, the growing, pruning, spraying, harvesting, packing and marketing of fruits. The western country is rapidly being peopled with those inexperienced in fruit culture. A bureau, where reliable information can be secured in reference to the intricacies of the fruit industry, would be a most desirable institution for our valley.

Arbor day is close at hand. Next Friday will witness another occasion of tree planting. Are you preparing to observe it by planting trees and shrubs? The custom is not only a useful, but a beautiful one, and it should be made the occasion for demonstration in tree planting that will be of permanent practical value. Whether school or public grounds are to be planted the exercises should be appropriate to the day and should be educational as well as ethical in their aims. The public schools of the city and valley are making due preparations for the observance of this American day. Special programs befitting the occasion will be rendered by the respective schools. If possible join the vast student body of our nation and augment its spirit of reverence and respect for the sentiment of this day.

Walnut growing is rapidly becoming an important industry of our state. Prof. C. J. Lewis, of the Oregon Agricultural college, has recently received a letter from one of the largest importers and dealers in fancy fruits and produce in New York City, asking him for a list of the names of men who are growing walnuts in Oregon. This shows that Oregon grown walnuts are already attracting the attention of those who make it their business to supply the trade with the best which is to be had. The Oregon Franquettes and Mayettes are much larger in size and finer in flavor than the French nuts of the same name. Oregon grown walnuts are destined to become as popular as Oregon apples. There is little danger of an over plus within the next half century. In 1905 we imported over twenty million pounds. The supply is wholly inadequate to the demand. Several young orchards have been planted in Hood River. We await with interest the results of the experiment.

The largest emigration in the history of the Northwest is now taking place.

In a letter to the East Oregonian, a citizen of St. Cloud, Minn., says that several hundred excellent families of farmers will leave that section this year for the milder climate and more promising opportunities of Oregon. This is the result of advertising Oregon, not only with literature, but with products. Oregon apples have performed the cellars of Minnesota for a quarter of a century and Oregon blankets have warmed the cold skins of Minnesotans for almost as long. Minnesota, they say, is a good country to leave. Its long, gloomy, monotonous winters sap the life and vitality from people. Eight months of cold weather takes away more vitality and vigor than the remainder of the year can supply. Let them come to Oregon and be welcome. Here the thrifty German farmers may become rich in a few years. Here, where former sheep herders are now sheep kings and former clerks are merchant princes, energy, activity and honesty are splendidly rewarded.

Hood River offers and affords opportunities for agricultural and commercial developments that are seldom equalled in any country. Check your baggage to Hood River, Oregon.

A Loyal Lad.
A passenger alighted from a west bound train the other day and purchased some of Jack Rand's juicy apples. A Hood River lad stood just by witnessing the sale. As Mr. Rand passed on the purchaser turned to the boy and inquired, "Do these fine apples grow on these high hills?" Theurchin courteously replied, "Yes, sir." The stranger asked, "Where at?" The boy (pointing to the large oak trees upon the hill-side just south of town) remarked, "Right up there on the hill." It is evident that the stranger had reference to the tall oaks, for he took an extra big bite and exclaimed, "Gee whiz, I never saw such big apple trees in all my life." With this the stranger swung himself aboard the morning train.

Butler Banking Co.

The Glacier office is in receipt of the annual statement and announcement of the Butler Banking Co. It is a neat way in which to express its gratitude to its patrons, and acquaint them with the financial condition of the institution.

The writer remembers when Butler & Co. first opened their doors for business in 1901. It appeared at that time as though there was no room for a bank in Hood River, the town being small, it was the thought of many that a bank could not be conducted on a paying basis.

Butler & Co. were men of great faith in the future of Hood River and were willing to take the venture, accordingly they opened up for business, and by their courteous treatment and conservative methods they soon discovered that they had made no mistake, and Butler & Co. soon became an indispensable necessity to the commercial welfare of the community.

Hood River Citizen Honored.
Hon. E. L. Smith, of Hood River, has been appointed by Governor Chamberlain to represent the state of Oregon at the opening exercises of the Jamestown exposition, April 23. This appointment is not only an honor to Mr. Smith, but an honor to the state. Mr. Smith is eminently qualified to discharge all duties that may be incumbent upon him as the state's ambassador. His vast store of knowledge, and his extraordinary ability to announce it in private, or proclaim it in public, will fit him for any duty that may devolve upon him. Mr. and Mrs. Smith expect to start for the East in a few days. Mr. Smith will stop at Eau Claire, Wis., to attend the wedding of his niece. Mr. Smith will go directly to Jamestown to participate in the opening exercises of the exposition. After the visit to the fair, Mr. and Mrs. Smith have planned an extended visit through the eastern states.

Flumes and Fences Blown Down.
The wind storm of last Thursday afternoon, which lasted for only a few minutes, attained a velocity of about 50 miles an hour. Some little damage was done to flumes and fences about 12 rods of the high flume of the Farmers Irrigating Co., near the C. L. Morse place was completely wrecked and several sheds and fences were blown down throughout the valley. A narrow escape was made by a farmer who was driving into town. As the car opposite the Columbia Park, the horses became frightened and gave a quick lunge, just then about 100 feet of the high board fence was thrown into the road, and would have entrapped the vehicle and occupants if the team had not given the timely lurch which carried them past the danger point.

$500 Damage Sustained.
C. L. Morse made a tour of inspection over the Farmers' Irrigating Ditch Co.'s canal during the week. Mr. Morse stated that the heavy snows and constant rains have caused many slides along the ditch, and that it will cost about $500 to clean it out and make the necessary repairs.

Mr. States, with a crew of 12 men, is at the head gate clearing it out, and making it 12 feet in width and sustained by three abutments. Mr. States will be through on the upper ditch about April 25. A crew will then build and repair the lower laterals.

To the Public.
In the unfortunate case of Kelsay Young, son of Sherman Young, there need be no fear of contagion or spread of disease, as all possible precautions have been taken from the commencement of the case to separate and keep separate the sick from the well, to use antiseptic and disinfectants, to properly fumigate the premises and to remove the family from the house to a more private place, the better to guard the public and to remove the family from any possible source of contagion.

H. L. Dumble, attending physician, J. Edgington, health officer.

Musical Success.

The LeRoy Gesner engagement held in the opera house on last Friday evening was a decided success. The inclement weather prevented many from attending. However, a large and appreciative audience greeted the company.

Mrs. Silas H. Soule, who presided at the piano, proved herself a most efficient artist.

Mr. J. C. Rathbone delighted the audience with his splendid tenor selections.

Miss Gladys Hartley, who is one of Hood River's most favorite singers, was loudly applauded as she made her appearance on the stage. Miss Hartley rendered her selections with the ease and grace of a prima donna and highly pleased her hearers.

LeRoy Gesner, the violinist, by virtue of his reputation, became the center of attraction. Mr. Gesner proved himself a master musician and his selections were so varied as to fully display the technique demanded at a master's hand and truly he was a master.

Mr. Silas H. Soule, who was instrumental in securing this engagement for Hood River, is deserving of many thanks.

A Communication.
Portland, Ore., April 8, '07
Editor Glacier—Please give me space in your paper to correct an erroneous conclusion that Peter Hinrichs arrived at by teaching an article published in the Portland Telegram and copied in the Glacier.

Now I will say that the yarn that has so aroused the worthy Peter's ire was not spun by me, but by Copley Hinrichs, Peter's nephew. As you well know, I had never heard that Peter lived in a cave, neither had I heard of the coyotes chasing the children for Copley.

I will make no reply to the slurs Mr. Hinrichs along at me, but will say that the number of families that were in Hood River when we came was not mentioned in my hearing and instead of being but six, there was 15 or 18.

Now I have known Peter Hinrichs too long to insinuate that he would tell an untruth or trump up a cock and bull story like the one published in the Glacier. I said it if I had had that you or Mr. Shepard or Copley Hinrichs.

Mr. Editor, you know who spun the yarn and who wrote the article to the Telegram. Will you please publish the facts of the matter of the parties that are responsible for it.

Oblige Yours,
Lyman Smith.

OBITUARY.
D. O. Entriean.
The sudden death of D. O. Entriean on last Friday was a great shock to the citizens of Hood River.

Mr. Entriean, who was about 75 years of age, has been failing in health for some time. He made a trip to his homestead only a few days previous to his death. Mr. Carson, who has been talking with him the evening before, went to his home on Friday morning and found him dead, apparently having been dead all night. The direct cause of his death was apoplexy.

The funeral service was held from the Unitarian church Sunday April 7 at 2 o'clock p. m. Rev. W. L. Elliot, Jr. of Portland, conducted the service.

Members of the A. O. U. W. acted as pall bearers and conducted the services at the grave. Interment in Idlewild cemetery. S. E. Bartsness undertaker.

Mrs. Daniel Smith.
Mrs. Lucy Smith, wife of Daniel Smith, who is one of the engineers on the Mount Hood railroad, died in Hood River on last Thursday morning, April 4. The funeral services were held on Friday at 3 o'clock p. m. from S. E. Bartsness' undertaking parlors. Mrs. Smith has been a Christian for many years. She had a most faithful mother, being a kind and helpful neighbor. Her acquaintance in Hood River has extended over a period of about three years, during which she made many friends who sincerely sympathize with the bereaved family.

Rev. W. C. Evans conducted the funeral services. Interment made in Idlewild cemetery.

Temperance White.
Temperance White, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Manley White, died in Hood River Friday morning, April 5, and was buried Saturday at 2 o'clock p. m. Services were held at the home, Rev. J. L. Hershey officiating. Interment in Idlewild cemetery. S. E. Bartsness undertaker.

Kelsay Ordway Young.
Kelsay Ordway Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Young, died in Hood River April 5, 1907, age four years, seven months and 27 days. The funeral service was conducted at the family residence, April 10, at 11 o'clock a. m., Rev. J. L. Hershey officiating. The body was taken to Pine Grove for burial. J. E. Nichols, undertaker.

Cured of Rheumatism.
Mr. Wm. Henry, of Chattanooga, Tenn., has rheumatism in his left arm. "The strength seemed to have gone out of the muscles so that it was useless for work," he says. "I applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and wrapped the arm in flannel at night, and to my relief I found that the pain gradually left me and the strength returned. In three weeks the rheumatism had disappeared and has not since returned." If troubled with rheumatism try this wonderful Pain Balm. You are certain to be pleased with the relief which it affords. For sale by Keir & Cass.
