

HOOD RIVER GLACIER

They are evidently learning how to do things down in the Bay city. The associated press gives the following account of Vice President Zimmer who refused to talk in court:

"E. J. Zimmer, vice president and former auditor of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company, was sentenced to five days in jail this morning. Zimmer was found guilty of contempt of court because he refused to testify against Louis Glass when called to the witness stand.

"Glass is being tried on a charge of having bribed city supervisors to vote against the application of the Home Telephone for a franchise in San Francisco.

"Zimmer was called to the stand and questioned about his knowledge of the transaction. He refused to answer the questions put to him by the graft prosecutors and was sentenced to five days in jail. In passing sentence the court ordered that Zimmer be kept prisoner until he answered the questions put to him by the prosecution.

It appears from the associated press news that San Francisco is to have a double-header at the front of her municipal affairs. Dr. Edward K. Taylor, physician and lawyer, dean of the Hastings law school of the university of California, has been elected mayor of the Bay city by the board of supervisors.

Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, who was recently convicted of graft and extortion, declares that he will not relinquish his hold upon the city government, and that he is still the mayor of the city.

The chief of police has announced that he will recognize Schmitz as the official head of the city and that he will vow allegiance to him. If Schmitz is to hold the reins of government the harness makers will have an all summer's job to extend the lines down to the penitentiary.

We are very glad to announce that we are able to inform the citizens of Hood River that the water which can stint our present domestic supply system, is pure and wholesome. Some grave apprehensions were entertained as to the purity of the present water supply. The matter has been discussed among our citizens to no small extent, and we are glad that the whole matter has come up in this way. We are now prepared to give you the findings of Ralph C. Matson, bacteriologist to the state board of health, to whom three samples of water have been submitted for chemical analysis, reports favorable in each instance. The text of the report is as follows:

"I have to report examination of three specimens of water received from Dr. Jesse Edgington, of Hood River. These specimens were marked for examination No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3. Upon examination I have been unable to find any evidence of contamination in the three samples of water for examination and would therefore pronounce all as safe for drinking and domestic purposes."

There is nothing more vital to the health and sanitation of a city than pure drinking water. This analysis by a competent chemist will forever set at rest the fears of a sceptical public.

Fairbanks Visits Hood River. Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks stepped off the train last Wednesday forenoon while enroute for the east and shook hands with a host of citizens who were at the train. It was not generally known that he was to pass through the city. It is not possible to know in time how Hood River would have had her band at the depot to greet the distinguished gentleman. However, what was lacking in public demonstration was fully supplied by the presence of the Hon. E. L. Smith who told the gentlemen more of the fame of Hood River and her fruits in 10 minutes than we could write in 10 hours.

Mr. Fairbanks stated that he had heard of the glory and fame of the valley, and he manifested a perceptible interest by asking numerous questions concerning our resources and future prospects.

He stated that the receptions accorded him by the various cities of the coast had been very judiciously planned and thoroughly enjoyed by him. He made special mention of his visit to Seattle where he addressed the National Christian Endeavor society in his visit to Astoria and his reception in Portland last evening as the guest of the newspaper fraternity.

The fellow who started the story that Vice President Fairbanks is an "iceberg" simply lied. He isn't cold. He isn't stiff. The Glacier representative had the opportunity to shake his hand, and we found it to be the real, genuine handshake of a warm-hearted, sympathetic, courteous man. There is absolutely nothing stiff or rigid in his make-up. This cold current which has been circulating through the press of the state and nation must have been filtered through the screens of "yellow" journalism. To us, "he looks good."

As he stepped off the train he was unattended by a retinue of secret service men, and appeared to be perfectly at ease as he shook hands with the bystanders promiscuously. As he boarded the train Mr. Smith said, "Why, Mr. Fairbanks, you don't look like an iceberg!" He replied, "Well, you see I'm in a warm latitude now."

Large delegations will go from Oregon to attend the Christian Endeavor convention at Seattle, the National Educational association convention at Los Angeles, and the Baptist Young People's convention at Spokane, and all should bear in mind that every ticket is good to any railroad point in Oregon. Judging from advance preparations being made by the different delegations they will do a great work in advertising the resources of this state.

Don't forget the musical treat on Tuesday, July 23. McKee Bros. concert at the Baptist church.

WELCOME TO HOOD RIVER VALLEY

Dr. W. P. Laraway has just handed us a copy of the extra edition of the Glenwood, a paper which gives a record of the terrible storm which occurred in and around Glenwood Saturday, July 6, at about 9:45 p. m.

The approaching storm was seen by the citizens of the place and as it came gradually they were afforded an opportunity to seek shelter. The down pour was a mixture of rain and hail which fell like a torrent upon the town. The flood ran over the sidewalks and into the basement windows of several of the business houses until they were filled with six inches of mud and 18 inches of water. Houses and barns, which came in the path of the storm, were literally washed to pieces and the debris scattered to the four quarters of the earth.

Growing crops were literally beaten into the ground. Horses and cattle were stamped and in their effort to seek safety ran into the wires, fences and were cut and mangled in horrible shape. Chickens were killed by the wholesale as the hail fell upon them in great clouds. Among other things the opinion states:

"The peach trees in the Berger orchard were practically killed and thus in half an hour was destroyed an orchard that Mr. Berger had spent 40 years in building. He estimates that his loss in trees alone over $200. There are a few trees that are not injured but in many places he found strips of bark four inches wide and two feet long that had been pounded off the trees. After the late spring and frosts he had seen plenty of signs of an abundant peach crop, but now the orchard is killed besides the year's product."

The history of one of these storms sounds like a fairy tale to the native Oregonian. We, who have resided so peacefully in the valleys of the Cascades, know absolutely nothing of these things.

You, native sons of the Hawkeye state come and eat your lot with us. There is ample room for us all in this great Pacific northwest. Here you will be immune from the terror by night and the hazard by day. We, of Hood River, know absolutely nothing of the treacherous winds and deadly storms. Our rest and slumber is the repose of perfect peace. Again brother, we most cordially invite you to come to Hood River. There are still thousands of acres of the most productive soil that lies out of doors, awaiting the touch of the tiller's hand. Do not sell your birthright for a mess of pottage. Come and lay hold of the splendid opportunity awaiting you in this land of peace and plenty.

Over the Hills to the Poor House. Clarence Gilbert surely had the ride of his life last Thursday. He left Hood River for The Dalles in an automobile driven by C. F. Fisher, of Portland. Mr. Fisher drove his famous machine "Astoria" from Hood River to The Dalles in three hours. This is a wild drive when you take into consideration the conditions of the road. It is an assured fact that Gilbert will never tackle it again.

He started the auto when driving up the steep mountain over the divide between this city and Mosier that it often became necessary to stop the car and each time that it would come to a halt the brakes would set; but notwithstanding this fact it would slide back down the hill, and upon one occasion they narrowly averted going over the steep grade. Again as they were passing down the Mosier side they found the road filled with loose rocks about the size of hen eggs. This condition was very annoying, the machine could not be kept under control and they went down the rocky steps at a two-forty rate. The most sensational escape awaited the sports as they drove into the city.

Clarence was anxious to return to Hood River on No. 1, and as they came into the city they went at full speed for the Umattila House where the young Hood Riverite expected to board the train for home, and just as they reached the intersection of the street and railroad, the passenger train pulled through. The driver did not have sufficient time to stop his machine he gave it a sudden turn, and as they paralleled the moving train the side of the coach struck Clarence on the shoulder. The front wheels of the auto were under the side of the car.

Clarence stated that as the engineer approached the train under full speed, he threw his hands over his eyes fully expecting a head on collision and a look of agony was upon his face. Clarence returned to Hood River by way of the steamer Mrs. Fisher continued his trip into the interior of the state.

Irrigation Co. Makes Improvements. The East Fork Irrigation company has been very busy of late making substantial improvements to their plant. They have just completed their Odell lateral and the water is now running in the same, supplying the thirsty farmers in that section with the necessary irrigating juice.

The company is now at work building numerous distributing ditches and that section will soon be drenched with these minor laterals; this territory is a very profitable field for the company; they have sold a water right to nearly every user in this section.

The officers of the company were busy last Saturday selling water stock and preparing the necessary credentials for the same. There are now 70 stockholders in the company and as many more are expected to sign up before the first of August.

The maintenance fee for the present year will not exceed $4 per inch, and it is very probable that this amount will be very materially decreased next year. The company is well satisfied with the present outlook of affairs and the system will soon be running to its full capacity.

Lindsay-Omeg. Weddings are coming on apace, another taking place at about 1 o'clock this afternoon. It occurred at the home of the bride's sister, Miss Mabel Omege, on East Third street, the contracting parties being Mr. Robert B. Lindsay, of Hood River, and Miss Lucy Omege, a daughter of Peter Omege, of The Dalles, and the officiating clergyman, Rev. A. Luce. A few friends were present, a brother of the groom and intimate friend of the bride acting as best man and bride's maid, wedding rings followed and the young couple took their departure for Portland on the afternoon train. They will make their home in Hood River valley and Dalles friends wish them well, congratulating Mr. Lindsay on securing such a worthy young woman as a life partner. —Dalles Chronicle.

recently purchased a tract of land on the Washington side near Hosum, has been out to take a look at the tract and is very much pleased with his boy. The property was purchased for Mr. Gary by his brother-in-law, C. S. Smith. He returned to his home last Saturday evening greatly elated over this country. He also took 15 acres adjoining C. S. Smith on the west.

G. S. Nishizaki, a prominent JP of Portland, was in the city last Wednesday in the interest of a Japanese Mutual Protection society which is to be organized in Hood River valley next Sunday. The address will be in both English and Japanese.

F. A. Pattie, a wholesale nurseryman of Winchester, Tenn., who has been visiting the recent cherry show in Salem, and attending the annual session of the Northwest Nurserymen association, was in Hood River last Wednesday. He took a drive over the valley and was highly pleased with the orchard conditions. He stated that the west raised the best fruit in the world, and that he had never seen the equal of the cherries exhibited at the Salem fair.

J. M. Hamblet left last Wednesday for a visit with friends at Ione, Ore. He will leave in the near future for Portland to attend to business in Missouri and while in the east he will be present at the annual reunion of the Eighth Missouri cavalry of which he is a member. He stated that he had not had the privilege of meeting with his extended family in Kansas and Missouri and he is planning to have his wife and daughter accompany him on his trip.

Ed Williams, of Winslow, Arizona, is visiting in Hood River. His friends are glad to welcome him back, and rejoice in the fact that he is looking hale and hearty. He appears to be strong and rugged again. Mr. Williams does not have any particular fascination for that country, and expects to return to the coast as soon as he believes his health will warrant the change. After a two weeks' visit in Hood River Mr. and Mrs. Williams will return to their home in the south.

Clarence Gilbert was a west bound passenger Wednesday. He stated that he was going to the Rose city. Clarence is becoming one of the most popular young men in three states. He has been kept busy for the last three weeks returning out-of-town calls. He informed us that he was going to Everett, Wash., in a few days, and that he had an offer to chaperon the Hawaiian ladies who are to visit our city soon. He will accept the latter proposition and be with the sugar-cane girls when they banquet at the "devil's punch bowl."

Roy Ellis Miller, son of Fred Miller, of the Barrett district, had his foot severely wounded and crushed by coming in contact with the sweep of the hay bailer. The boy was sitting on the machine driving the team and his foot hung idly down, and as the sweep returned it caught it and nearly tore it off. It is possible that he may sustain a permanent injury.

An Ole Olsen by the name of Lara Larsen swiped about $75 worth of colt-lateral from the boys at Green Point on a recent date and made good his escape. The officers of the city had a very meager description of the perpetrator, consequently they had little clue to work upon. However, they kept vigilance over every departing train. At last the marshal spied a couple of suspicious looking fellows and he ordered them to unroll their blankets; this they did, and the discovery revealed their innocence and they were allowed to pass on. One of the fellows remarked that he would never hit this town again.

Cherries Purloined Enroute. Dr. W. P. Laraway stated to a "Glacier" reporter recently that he had shipped a 10 pound crate of premium Glen cherries to his son, S. E., at Glenwood, Iowa, and upon the arrival of the gift it was discovered that the crate had been opened and nearly all of the fruit had been stolen. The express agent of that city stated that the crate arrived at his office in that condition; if this be true the various express messengers enroute must have been the guilty parties. It is not so much the value of the fruit which is lost, as it is the defeating of the purpose of the donor, and the sense of humiliation which accompanies the knowledge of the fact that the recipient has been awarded an empty crate. Dr. Laraway will send the next shipment which he forwards to his home city. His son wrote, however, that there were still enough cherries remaining in the crate to afford them a taste and that they were mighty good.

Live Soldier Lying in the Street. Last Tuesday as the Glacier reporter was on his way to the depot to meet No. 7 he espied an American soldier lying in the street near the Wancomah hotel. Marshal Canger, who was near at hand, was notified and the two gentlemen proceeded to investigate the case. Respiring to the place where he was lying they took him by the shoulders and raised him to his feet. It was thought at first that he was dead, but the marshal being a better judge of mortuary matters, pronounced him to be alive. Upon examination it was discovered that his name was Americus. The letters O. P. E. were stamped upon his shoulder straps, and it appeared that he was from the regiment of Henry Campe, of San Francisco. He was born in that city in the year 1880. In order to spare the gentleman from humiliation and disgrace he was taken in charge by the reporter and sent over the road in a manner befitting his station.
