A. J. Derby came within five votes of being the Democratic nominee for congress. The fact of his opponent being a Portland man, and well known in that city, gave him a large vote there, while Mr. Derby carried the state at large outside of the city of Portland.

The action of the stockholders of the Apple Growers' Union in almost unanimously voting to build a cold storage warehouse to cost $25,000, is commendable, and is evidence of the fact that the growers realize the importance of being prepared to take care of the big apple crop which in a few years require systematic handling to bring the most profitable results.

Real Estate Excursion. There will be an excursion of the real estate men and their ladies from Portland on the steamer Spencer to Hood River on May 9, next. The steamer is due to arrive here at about 10 o'clock p. m. The excursionists will be 150 in number, more or less. It is the purpose of the people of Hood River, town and valley, to meet these excursionists with conveyances and take them through the valley, going out on the west side, stopping for a 30 minutes' rest of the teams at the Pine Grove Grange, where a few five minute speeches will be delivered, returning to meet the boat at 6 p. m.

The committee of arrangements and reception, appointed by the Commerce Club, consists of J. L. Henderson, chairman, W. J. Baker, J. H. Heilbronner, F. W. Angus, J. M. Culbertson, and A. W. Othank. This committee has met and appointed a sub-committee consisting of J. M. Culbertson, F. W. Angus and J. H. Heilbronner to take up the matter of conveyances with the out of town people.

Of course, the resources of the town are limited, and the lively spirit which is to be expected with all the volunteer town conveniences, cannot provide for half of the excursionists, so, in order to make the matter a success, the farmers will have to come to the rescue.

build a cold storage warehouse. Upon the roll being called it was found that there were 94 votes in favor and only seven against, while three of the latter signed for stock after the meeting, leaving practically only four votes against the proposition.

Resolved, That the capital stock of the Hood River Apple Growers' Union be, and the same is hereby increased from two thousand (2000) dollars, to present authorized capital stock, of the par value of ten (10) dollars a share, and being two hundred (200) shares, to twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars, the said par value of ten (10) dollars per share, and being two thousand five hundred (2500) shares of said capital stock: Provided, however, that within 30 days from the date of adoption of this resolution, the amount of 15,000 dollars of new issue of the said capital stock shall have been subscribed, the proceeds to be applied to the erection of a cold storage plant in the City of Hood River, and the property of said corporation, to be worth twenty-five thousand (25,000) dollars:

And provided further, that the adoption of this resolution and the subscription of the said stock and the payment of the same, shall be a condition precedent to the payment of said interest in the manner as aforesaid.

Resolved, that the collection of said stock subscriptions, the method of assessment, the collection thereof, in accordance with the by-laws of this corporation, as well as the erection of said cold storage plant, the manner of paying out the same, and the method of guarantee of interest on the capital stock paid in, shall be, and the same is hereby turned over to the Board of Directors of this corporation and their successors, with full power to act in relation to the matters pertaining thereto; and be it further

Resolved, that one copy of this resolution be turned over to the secretary of this company for the use of said stock subscribers, and that the same be spread upon the minutes of its next regular meeting, that the third copy be prepared, as the law directs, and submitted to the Secretary of State of the State of Oregon by the secretary of this corporation, and that the necessary certificate, and that as soon as said certificate shall be obtained from the Secretary of State and filed with the secretary of his corporation, that he and he thereafter, the Board of Directors shall issue the necessary certificates of said increase of the capital stock to those entitled to receive the same.

Resolved, that in future the president and secretary be instructed not to call on any stockholder for less than $100 amount, and be it further

Resolved, that no stock be issued to any individual except an apple grower and orchardist

Resolved, that every stockholder of the Hood River Apple Growers' Union be expected to subscribe $100 for additional stock.

Sproat and Director Shepard of the resolutions, E. D. Calkins asked if stock could be transferred or sold to any one Mr. Shepard said that he was not prepared to give an opinion as to the law, but thought that it could be sold to any one.

Capt. Henry Randall suggested that provision might be made whereby the stock must be first offered to the Union, when it could be bought up and placed in the treasury if it was thought to be going into undesirable hands.

A. L. Mason said that he did not fully understand the first of the resolutions, which had been prepared by J. L. Henderson for the directors. He asked for an explanation of the clause about assessments of stock, and wanted to know if it was proposed to make the stock assessable.

B. R. Tucker read a set of resolutions, which were not voted on, however, and which he explained provided that the stock be not a revenue producing stock but merely self-sustaining. He said that such an effect would be to eliminate the possibility of capitalists getting control of the stock and which they would not want to do.

Mr. Sproat said that the idea of making the stock pay seven per cent was to give those who put up unequal amounts of money to get returns in proportion to their investment. It might be necessary to get a few subscriptions from business men or banks to make up the required amount, if it was not found possible to get the whole amount subscribed by the growers.

Mr. Shepard also advanced another argument in favor of the 7 per cent stock. He said that there were many who would take stock who would not have orchards in bearing for a number of years, provided they got some return for the money invested, but which might wear the stock if they did not absolutely return for their investment for a number of years.

B. F. Shoemaker was decidedly in favor of the 7 per cent clause.

Mr. Tucker further explained his position in favor of the 7 per cent clause, which he said that he considered the 7 per cent clause would in practically make the stock self-sustaining and in favor of it.

A. L. Mason said that he was opposed to the 7 per cent clause. He said that he had a cold storage plant of his own and was not personally interested in the proposition of the union, but thought that the plan was necessary and that it did not pay a dividend, but differed to the plan submitted by the directors. He was sorry the co-operative plan was not considered, and thought that it could be worked out as successfully as the ditch association.

Troy Shelby spoke in favor of the proposition as submitted by the directors.

H. A. Cuming objected to placing the minimum of stock which could be subscribed at $100, as he was unable to pay that amount now, and thought there would be others whom it would inconvenience. He wanted only $20 stock himself. He was in favor of the co-operative plan and borrow the whole amount to build the warehouse, and let the future storage charges pay it back.

Mr. Sproat said that arrangements had been made with the banks where by those unable to pay $100 cash for their stock could get the money at the bank for 8 per cent, and which would be carried for a reasonable length of time to enable every one to make arrangements to pay for it. As the stock had not cost more than 7 per cent it would cost the borrowers but one per cent, or one dollar a year, and enable the union to build the warehouse without delay.

The widow's pension bill has now become a law, and the increase will date from April 19. The National Tribune says: "Widows should understand that no application and no services of attorneys are necessary to secure them the increase under the widow's pension bill, which is now a law. These widows on the roll will have their pensions increased at the next payment by the pension bureau without the need of any action on their part. The only applications necessary will be from those who have heretofore been denied pensions on account of having an income in excess of $200. This qualification having been abolished, those who have heretofore been rejected for that reason can now apply and receive their pensions."
