Hood River Glacier

Issued Every Thursday by ARTHUR D. MOE, Publisher.

In the valley around Cove, Oregon, there will be produced this year, two hundred tons of cherries and five hundred cars of apples. The people there realize that they will need from two hundred and fifty to three hundred people in addition to their local population to pick and pack the cherry crop.

The matter of the selection of officers to be appointed by the governor was taken up last week by the Democrats, who picked out the five best offices, leaving the balance to the Republicans. As the Repulicans are in a large majority in Hood River county, they are not satisfied with the selection made, although we have a Democratic governor. The Commercial Club has declined to interfere, as is proper, because party politics have no part in its deliberations, and would cause a split in the association that could not be healed. It would appear the best for each party to nominate a full ticket, then get together and agree on a division, if possible, and if an agreement cannot be reached, submit the two tickets to the governor to select the new officers from both parties. If the Democrats expect to retain any of the offices after the next general election, it will be well for them to meet the Republicans half way in the first appointments, as the voting strength of the two parties is overwhelmingly in favor of the Republicans. In the management of the affairs of Hood River county, where we are all friends and neighbors, party politics is not as important as the selection of the best men for the offices. Such men may be found in both parties, and their selection should depend more upon their ability and integrity than in their allegiance to any particular party.

$150 for Best Article.

Fatal Accident at Wyeth.

Sunday morning the local, after pulling out of the Wyeth station, struck E. L. Thomas, a local hotel keeper at that place, from the effects of which he died at the Cottage Hospital in this city the same day.

The man was walking along the track, and shortly before the train reached him, deliberately started across the track. The engineer frantically blew the warning whistle, to which the man apparently paid no attention, appearing bewildered, and was struck with such force as to hurl him twenty feet from the track. The train was brought to a standstill and backed up, when the bruised and unconscious man was taken aboard and brought to Hood River. He was taken to a hospital, but never regained consciousness, and died shortly after.

He was 64 years old and leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters to mourn his loss. S E. Bartmess had charge of the funeral arrangements, and the services were held in his chapel yesterday forenoon, Rev. A. H. Lathrop officiating, and the remains buried in Idlewilde.

The following, besides the family, attended the funeral from Wyeth: Mr. and Mrs. N Stokoe, Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson.

Don't Like Rogue River.

J. W. Stevens, who returned a week or more ago form a trip to the Rogue iver valley country, where he went with a view to locating permanently was in town last Saturday from Hardman and informs the Times that he is more than ever satisfied with conditions in Morrow county. He says that the peach crop in the Rogue River valley was practically all killed by the late frosts there, there being heavy frosts and some ice there as late as the middle of May. Then he says the land there is no better than it is here. The inference is that he is fully satisfied with this county and more than ever inclined to make his cme here.—Heppner Times.

A SITE SECURED FOR SPRAY PLANT

A site has been secured for the new plant of the Hood River Spray Manufacturing Co., across the Mt. Hood Railroad bridge. They have secured concessions from the Electric Light Co. to locate the plant on their land this side of the power house, and the building will be put up at once.

F. A. Frazier, manager and president of the company, arrived this week and will move his family to Hood River at once. Mr. Frazier has considerable experience in the manufacture of the spray, and Mr. Lamberson, of Portland, an expert cooker, will have charge of that part of the work.

The main office of the company will be located in the Stranahan & Clark building, an addition to be put on to that building for a commodious office.

The Portland plant which has been making the winter spray is being torn down, and no more spray will be made in Portland. The Hood River plant for making the lime and sulphur winter spray will be large enough to fill any orders which they may receive, not only for this valley but for shipment A warehouse with a storage capacity of 3,000 barrels, will be built at once, and they have ample room to increase the plant as the business may require.

Four Years Old June First.

The First National Bank, of this city, passed the fourth mile-stone in its history Monday, June 1, 1908 having opened for business June 1, 1904. Established upon a sound financial basis, a bright future was assured from the beginning but the actual growth has exceeded the expectations of its most optimistic shareholders.

Following is a comparative statement of deposits on June 1 of each year:

June 1, 1904 (Opening day)	$ 5,000.00
June 1, 1905	70,000.00
June 1, 1906	156,000.00
June 1, 1907	235,000.00
June 1, 1908	241,000.00

The cash capital of $30,000, June 1, 1904, has been increased by its shareholders and added to from its earnings until, at the present time, it stands at $67,500.00 and, should business conditions and requirements warrant, will be increased to $120,000.00 in the near future.

Cashier Blanchar stated to the reporter recently, "The general depression in business lines during the past six months has resulted in a corresponding shrinkage of the average bank deposit per capita but financial conditions are one hundred per cent more solid now than last year. It is the policy of the First National to loan funds entrusted to its home for the building up of Hood River, and not to its officers and directors.

"No banking institution was ever favored with a safer or more conscientious board of directors than this one and the importance of this feature of a bank cannot be over estimated for the reason that the control and responsibility of a properly managed bank rests with them under the National Banking law. It has always been their policy to insure safety to depositors in preference to profits for stockholders.

"The exceptionally high average of intelligence and business ability existing among our customers naturally result in leading banking along more pleasing lines in Hood River than in many cities where I have investigated the subject and we look forward with pleasure to an increasing business the coming year."

Locals Defeat Dufur.

Last Sunday, a large delegation of people came down from Dufur and The Dalles to witness the baseball game between Hood River and Dufur.

An excursion train was run between the two places and a large bunch of baseball fans accompanied the team, confident of seeing their team defeat the locals. Since Dufur had played seven games this year and had been beaten only once and having beaten Hood River once they came with plenty of money to bet on the game.

The first score in the game was made by Hood River in the second inning. Dufur secured her first run in the next inning.

Myers was steady throughout the game and allowed only two hits besides striking out thirteen men, while Marin, of Dufur, was touched up for nine hits and secured seven strikeouts. However, some snappy ballplaying was done py both sides.

The score is as follows:

Dufur		Hood River
Marin	p	Meyers
Guilliford	c	Castner
Ginini	ss	Sheets
Jewett	1b	Bebee
Ross	3b	Gessling
Coates	lf	Hart
Carson	cf	Beveredge
Evans	rf	Blower
Mulkins	2b	Leopold

The score by innings:

Dufur:	0 0 1 0 2 0 0 0 0	3
Hood River:	0 2 2 3 0 0 1 0	8

Cherry Growing on this Coast.

"The Royal Ann. She is not a legitimate queen, pomologically speaking in fact, the name does not appear in the lists of cherry royalties except upon this coast in newer regions of the earth which have drawn names from our coast. For this cherry, reversing the course of favors among men, fell into royalty, not from it. It was in this way, as the story goes: The pioneer introducers of grafted fruit trees upon this coast crossed the plains with a wagon load of little trees set in earth in a wagon box, watering them as streams were crossed and keeping them alive and growing en route quite as well as they expected to. But when almost at their destination in western Oregon, and climbing a steep hill with their outfit, the tailboard of the wagon gave out and trees and earth slid to the ground in a great mixup. The trees were put back as well as possible, but it was not possible to get all the trees in exactly the same places they occupied before and opposite their names, which had been written on the side of the wagon box. Thus it came about that though the trees grew well and were successfully transplanted from their tourist berths to Oregon soil, their names were lost. One cherry showed peculiar value but it had been disconnected from its name.

Pioneer gallantly concluded that so good a thing must be a lady, and so they called it 'Royal Ann'. After a time, of course, the identity of the variety as determined by comparison with later introductions which had brought their proper names with them, and though for forty years it has been known that Royal Ann is Napoleon Bigarreau, the real Napoleon of cherry finance on this coast is still masking in petticoats as Royal Ann and probably always will, for she holds the throne on this coast, than which there is no greater sweet cherry territory in the world.

"Royal Ann reigns by virtue of commercial suitability. There are two great lines of cherry suitability; Cherries to eat as they grow, and cherries to eat from a cut-glass dish filled from a tin can. To eat as it grows Royal Ann is not delicious; it is too hard and cold a beauty; but, having been processed in the can, and lying afterwards in cut-glass in a clear syrup, its pallid beauty is charming and its flavor adequate. Though there are other white cherries which are rivals of canner's flavor, none has yet displaced Napoleon-Ann.

"Flavor is, however, rather a fickle thing in cherries, as elsewhere When a supply of red and black cherries is a little above the fresh eating and shipping demand, the price may fall bel low cost of picking and packing, because canners can use but few of them. When the canners are keen the prices of their favorites may go to twice the current prices of the dark varieties; when the canners are shy, the situation may be exactly reversed, and Royal Ann may drop to half the price of the best blacks; for though Royal Ann goes for shipping, it has such a small local eating demand that depression owing to canner's attitude cannot be cured. Last week this condition prevailed; the blacks were 50 per cent ahead of the whites. This may be reversed even before the present season ends, although there is of course a chance that the passion for planting Royal Ann during the past few years may have gone too far. This has been the way with cherries for the last thirty years and until the canning demand became great and regular, a decade or so ago, grafting of old trees back and forth, from black to white, and white to black, was freely indulged. Fortunately, the cherry takes very kindly to top-grafting."—Pacific Rural Press.

The above are factors, when combined virtually means from "Factory to homes" with the least possible advance over actual cost price.

First—The makers, W. W. Kimball Co., with their immense seven finely equipped factories, covering over 17 acres—about double the capacity of any other in their line in the world—quantity producing—over 60,000 pianos and organs yearly—and with a large cash capital and a ready sale and demand for their products, the cost of manufacture and sale is reduced to the minimum—estimated at least one-fourth less than any other—and in this you share in buying a Kimball.

Second—The Sellers—Eilers Piano House—with ample capital and 40 well-organized stores located at different points in the Northwest and on the Pacific Coast—under one management—one general office—one buying center—thereby reducing the fixed general expense to the very lowest possible amount. We mention particularly that in buying any article, be it a suit of clothes, a wagon, carriage, or a piano, in fact anything, the cost and a certain proportion of all expenses to the time you buy must be included in the price—therefore if in manufacturing the cost can be lessened without sacrificing quality and durability, and then the cost of selling be made the lowest—which can only be accomplished through selling large numbers of instruments at about same expense others sell a few—then and only then has one firm an advantage over another. The Great Eilers Organization of 40 stores not only accomplishes all the savings mentioned above, but still another important item of economy—that of Quantity Buying. Two thousand, sometimes three thousand pianos, are bought at one time—this is especially true of the Kimball Factories, and then the great saving in shipping the pianos by carloads without boxes—"in harness," thereby saving about $25 in freight, besides cost of box, etc.

So in the purchase and freighting we economize still further—more savings for our patrons—because we give these savings back to our customers in a lessened price when they purchase, and why not? By so doing we do not lessen our yearly earnings on our capital invested—we merely do more business to make up for it, and naturally a better class of business because careful, frugal buyers invariably center around a reliable, dependable store; one that has their customers' interests at heart and gives a full, big dollar's value for every dollar invested in a piano or any other musical instrument.

To accomplish the advantages explained above, the Eilers Piano House knew that Quantity Making, if combined with Quantity Selling, on progressive methods, would cause savings for their customers that would bring to their stores the largest business in their line in the West—and it has—more than double that of any other house on the Coast.

You can now share in the economy of this great organization—if you need a piano—and will call at the store or write us. Cut out the coupon below and send same to us by next mail, as we have something special to offer you—but the time is limited. Mail coupon today.

You are absolutely safe in buying a Kimball Piano by mail.

If you live out of the city and cannot come to the store we wish to impress upon you the fact that we sell hundreds of pianos to out-of-town customers every year who buy by mail. A piano can be bought of this house just as safely by mail as by a personal selection, and most times our musical expert can give greater musical benefits when not hindered by slight details and individual tastes. Merely give us your choice of case design and whether you prefer mahogany, walnut or quartered golden oak. (Give 2nd choice as to woods.) Leave to us selection of the particular instrument to send and we will guarantee absolute satisfaction.

Mail us the coupon to let us know you are interested in buying a piano. It's to your advantage to do so.
