MRS. JAN KUBELIK.

Who is Happily Married to a Man of Genius.

Twenty-seven years ago the poor Bohemian market gardener Kubelik, to whom a son had just been born, would have called insane anybody who predicted that the baby would have to marry into the most exclusive aristocracy in Europe. In his part of the world music is the supreme art, and it seemed natural that the king of modern violinists should wed Countess Mariane Czaky, daughter of one of those ancient Bohemian houses that trace their origin further back than any other aristocracy in Europe. Kubelik was but twenty-three years old at the time of his marriage, and the little countess was even younger. They live at Kolin, Bohemia, where the famous violinist has bought a castle, and there they divide their time between music and the care of their twin daughters. If there is anything in the adage that a good son makes a good husband, Mrs. Kubelik should be very happy, for her husband is devoted to his old peasant mother and deeply reveres the memory of his father, who made every sacrifice for his son's musical education. The first money Jan earned by playing he spent in buying a wreath for his father's grave. Kubelik is making a concert tour in America this winter, and his wife accompanies him.

An Effective Room Decoration.

Not every girl is so fortunate as to have a large room for herself, and especially if she be of a large family her own private room may be very small indeed, and it is then that all a girl's ingenuity is brought into full play so that the best possible effect may be obtained in a limited space. Nothing so reflects a girl's character and personality as her own bedroom or boudoir. First of all, an outsider can tell whether the girl is naturally neat or given to shiftiness. The books first and then the pictures on the wall show what sort of things most appeal to her, whether she is frivolous or perhaps too serious minded, and even the wall paper reflects the natural characteristics to a certain extent, for a bright pink room with rose color abounding everywhere must needs belong to a sunny, happy disposition, while a soft green paper relieved by a note of pink or yellow in the border and hangings is said to portray a character fond of quiet and intellectual pursuits.

It is of course far easier to make a large room bright and attractive than a small one, but if the wall paper is carefully selected, of a pattern that tends to give the effect of space behind the design, and if the hangings carry out the exact design and color of the paper considerable size is added to the room. A striped paper, for example, is not good in a long, narrow room unless there is a deep flower border to shorten and widen the effect, while a small design in tiny flowers or spray is better in a small than a large room. For an extremely tiny room a plain paper—mottle or cartridge—is best, with the curtains and chair coverings of the same shade in chintz or of a bright flowered chintz matching the border of the paper.

The glazed English chintzes are decidedly fashionable at the moment, and certainly they do tend to brighten a room even more than the American and French chintz, with its soft, dull surface. In selecting the hangings as well as the paper for a room there is much to be taken into consideration beyond the mere choosing of an attractive pattern or pretty shade of coloring.

How to Hang a Portiere.

A portiere of denim or cretonne is beautifully hung by using loops of the material instead of metal or wooden rings. The loops are an inch and a quarter or an inch and a half wide when finished. They are sewed at the top of the curtain and made long enough to slip easily over the rod. My portieres are a plain pink denim trimmed with a striped and flowered cretonne in pink and white, and the loops are from stripes of the cretonne. For smaller curtains these loops could be of tape, braid, ribbon or whatever might be most suitable. Remember, these will not slip over the pole as easily as metal rings, but sometimes that is more desirable.

We handle drugs and everything in the drug line, except booze. We want it distinctly understood that Nichol's Pharmacy does not sell liquor of any kind, and that we strictly adhere to this policy. We have been bothered quite a little, since opening our drug store, with those who wanted alcohol or some other spirituous liquor, therefore we take this opportunity of notifying the people of Hood River and vicinity of our policy in this respect. We are told we cannot succeed if we stick to our intentions in this matter and our reply is, we will sink or swim on this policy. We have a complete stock of paints, toys, patent medicines, brushes, perfumes, gasoline, candy, cigars and soft drinks and will do our best to please you. Try us.
