OREGON'S MOST PROSPEROUS SECTION.

Commenting on an editorial that appeared in the Glacier recently in regard to apple production here in the future The Dalles Optimist says: "The Hood River people estimate that within three or four years they will ship from that town fully 3500 carloads of apples, and of course a largely increased number of cars and crates of other products of the soil. "Their estimates are based on a solid foundation, the number of trees to come in bearing, and with no devastation, no unforeseen misfortune, we believe the figures given are not exaggerated, but rather within the expectations. "Just how many cherry trees we have adjacent to The Dalles we do not know. Nor do we know how many trees we have that will come into fruition during the coming three or four years, but the number is surely very large and our cherry crop will be certainly multiplied by four by the fourth year from now, or in 1912. And at the same time our peach and other trees, aside from cherry, will be greatly in excess of the present number. So it can safely be said that if we do not make as great a showing as Hood River will be a good second. But we think our advance will be fully as great as that of our neighbors. "But of one thing there is no doubt and that is that this section, from Hood River to The Dalles, is destined to be within a very few years far and away the most prosperous portion of Oregon. "Our products will be greater per capita, our expenses less, and consequently we will have a greater net return than any other section of the northwest can boast of. We are not writing this in a spirit of derision to any other community. All Oregon will prosper with us. Every community in the state will be benefited, experience a spirit of wonderful prosperity during the same time, and we certainly hope for every county in the commonwealth a great advance in wealth. But we verily believe that here in Wasco and Hood River counties we have the natural resources, climate, soil, water and market facilities, which coupled with the intelligence of our land owners gives us an advantage over every other section. "With a largely increasing volume of business each year paved streets in the business portion of the city are becoming a necessity. Paved streets mean an increase in property values, a cleaner city and an object lesson to visitors of progressiveness and enterprise. "The article in another column by E. E. Coad, superintendent of the city and county schools, is well worth the perusal of parents who are contemplating sending their children to school during the coming term. Mr. Coad's suggestion of a better understanding between parents and teachers will undoubtedly do away with much friction, increase the efficiency of the schools and produce better results. "The Hood River Apple Growers' Union announces that it will conduct a school for the instruction of those who want to learn how to pack apples. As in times past, the officers of the union are demonstrating that they are equal to the occasion. Many more packers will be needed this year to get them in to teach them. Preparation for the future means progress and success whether it comes through properly packed apples or other channels. "Preparations are being made for Hood River's Eighth Biennial Fruit Fair and indications are that it will be the largest and best ever held. The fair managers, however, are having the same difficulty in providing quarters for the exhibit that occurs as often as the fair is given. The erection of a building that will provide a permanent home both for the fruit fair and the Commercial Club would bridge this difficulty, add prestige to the town and prove a paying investment. "The beautiful interior piano player, which has attracted so much attention at Soule's Piano House lately was purchased by Bert Stranahan.

WILL ASK COUNCIL TO PAVE STREETS

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Hood River Commercial Club which was held last Thursday evening among other matters brought before them was a request that the city council be asked by the club to take up the matter of paving the streets in the business portion of the city. It was stated that paving the streets with some kind of pavement that will render them passable and free of mud during the wet weather is becoming a necessity that can no longer be ignored and one that will prove one of the best investments in the way of public improvement that can be secured for the city. A number of property owners who own or are building business blocks are said to be in favor of the proposition and that many others who are interested in the city's advancement are also favorable to it. The plan as outlined would be to put in a solid foundation of concrete or crushed rock that could be covered with wooden blocks. "The foundation would be permanent and after the blocks became worn could be used to relay them or for any other kind of pavement that might be decided on later. A committee was appointed to secure estimates which they will place before the council with the request that it take the matter up. "The subject of putting some plan on foot whereby the water power adjacent to Hood River could be developed and used for manufacturing purposes was brought up for discussion and on motion was referred to the president of the club, who has appointed a committee who are to work in conjunction with a similar committee from the Business Men's Association.

Kicks on the Herd Law.
Editor Glacier:—What is going to come of this thing at once? New county, dry town and the herd law. The new county is all right, as is the herd law in its place, but as I understand it it goes too far. We have no herd law at Mt. Hood. The township line should be the limit. Our cows hardly go past the township line and we have no cows that go over decent fences. So please let them alone, for if you fence them all you do is to take so much bread and milk out of my children's mouths. There are thousands of acres of land not fenced south of the township line. You are too far with your herd law. Give us a chance to live. We have no apples to sell, neither have we water to irrigate. J. F. Hillstrom.

Did Not Get Property.
On account of legal complications the deeds which were given to C. H. Stranahan, Jas. Mearns and Chas. Deane last week for property owned by the Hood River Development Co., on which the sewer assessment had not been paid are said to be invalid. Owing to the fact that equity rights are involved in the transfer of property it is claimed that full possession of it cannot be given to anyone without the consent of the heirs. Until a final decision of the court can be reached the property will likely remain in the hands of its former owners.

Mrs. J. T. Cooper.
Mrs. J. T. Cooper, well known at Hood River, died at her home in The Dalles last Thursday aged 31 years. Mrs. Cooper's maiden name was Clarissa Gribble and she was born in Clatskanie county, Ore., in 1877 and was a sister of W. S. and Walter Gribble of Mt. Hood. She deceased was a member of The Dalles Baptist church and the funeral was held from there last Friday with interment in that city. Mrs. Cooper is survived by her husband and four children and by her mother, five brothers, and one sister.

Hobbed It.
Dorsey B. Smith, of Portland, general manager of the Open River Transportation Company, says the Telegram, had an experience Saturday evening which is calculated to set his heart towards the man who seeks passage by train without having the wherewithal to pay his fare, when he was forced to ride from The Dalles to Hood River on the blind baggage of passenger No. 1.

Mr. Smith had been in The Dalles on business, and when it neared train time, put in his appearance at the waiting-room of the Umattilla House, preparatory to boarding the train when it should stop there. He did not know that No. 1 does not stop at the Umattilla House, but makes only the one stop at the depot, and when he saw the engine with its string of coaches gradually increasing in speed as it scoured the hostelry he grew anxious to know if it were going to slow down, so casually asked a bystander, who informed him that No. 1 was one of the two passenger trains that did not stop. Smith had to get to Portland so grabbing his grip he made a wild dash for the blind baggage, as he feared if he should wait until the coaches came by they would have attained to great velocity. With accuracy and precision that smacked of experience he gripped the flying step rail and swung to position on the top step, whence he waved farewell to the laughing bystanders and associates who saw him make the leap. As No. 1 is a through train, it does not stop at the smaller stations, and Mr. Smith was carried on the blind baggage to Hood River where it is reported he was induced to enter a coach.

The reports of the year were read and approved. Though the church of this place has this year assumed a budget of $2000 it has all been met more readily than ever before. This has been as a result of an increased membership and because of the liberality of the friends and strangers interested in church doings in Hood River, all of which is much appreciated by the officers of the church. During the pastorate of D. Lathrop 88 accessions to the church have been made. During the past year the Ladies Aid Society of the church has been more active and united than for years and over $200 has been raised and applied on expenses incident to the church and parsonage property. It is much to be regretted that the condition of Dr. Lathrop's health has made it necessary for him to change his place of residence. During his stay in Hood River he has gained the respect and admiration of all who have known him or his family in any way.

In his place is to come in Hood River the Rev. Dr. Nathan Evans, who is known in Hood River and who will fill the pulpit with ability. It is a matter of no small worth to Hood River that the prosperity of all her churches is showing a steady growth during the past year.

YANKEE GIRL WALKS TO INN AND BACK

Not to be outdone by an Englishwoman, Miss Jane Stearns, an American girl, whose home is in Wisconsin, made the trip to Mt. Hood and returned on foot and also climbed to the top of the mountain. Miss Stearns left Hood River last Thursday walking as far as Mt. Hood postoffice the first day, where she stayed over night at LaWood's. The next day she continued her journey skidding arriving at the top late in the afternoon. When she left her car, she said she would stay at the inn until the haze lifted so a view of the surrounding snow capped peaks could be obtained. The atmosphere cleared up Monday and Miss Stearns in company with several other climbers, was taken up the mountain by Guide Weygant. Having climbed other mountains without donning the garb considered necessary for women making the ascent of Mt. Hood, Miss Stearns objected strenuously to attiring herself in overalls, but on the refusal of the guide to allow her to accompany the party unless she did so, she finally complied. She refused point blank, however, to allow her name to be blacked and as a result returned to Hood River with a painfully severe case of sunburn. Although a mountain climber of considerable experience she is said to have been much staggered by the part of the climb and badly frightened during the descent which is made quickly by sliding over the snow and ice for a quarter of a mile. On reaching the inn Monday afternoon she was warmly greeted by the staff and her trip back to Hood River, reaching Mt. Hood settlement Monday night where she stayed, and arriving here in time to take the boat to Portland Tuesday afternoon.

Class. We want our schools to attain a degree of excellence that will hold in Hood River the best class of home seekers coming to the west. We want those of our graduates who go away to college, university or technical school to be able to prove themselves the equals educationally of the graduates of any high school in the state. And I am sure that this is the aim and determination of the students themselves. Our high school graduates are now admitted to any western college or university without examination.

Opens Fine Jewelry Store.
Arthur Clarke, who has had the store formerly occupied by the Pacific States Telephone company remodelled for his jewelry business, has moved in and is now ready for business. The interior of the store is fitted up with handsome cases for all show cases on either side for the display of silverware and cut glass. Glass counter cases for the display of diamonds, watches and jewelry have also been provided and handsome mirrors and ornaments, with the wall and ceiling decorations, combine to give an effect that is artistic as well as ornamental. Two large plate glass show windows have been placed in the front of the store and the view from both outside and in is of a metropolitan jewelry establishment transplanted to Hood River. As an additional attraction Mr. Clarke has secured the services of Miss Ethel Coppinger, clerk to fit in with the new surroundings.

Do Not Injure Fruit.
Owing to the fact that there is a general impression that pine boxes are undesirable to pack apples in because of the fact that the material used in making the boxes might be full of pitch. If we knew that to be a fact we would make it a point to use material saturated with pitch, and pack all our Bee Davis apples into them, for they are flawless, as you know, and if the flavor of pitch could be imparted into them we might be doing a land office business in them, by reason of the medicinal qualities that they would contain.

Shipping Apples to Alaska.
The Davidson Fruit company made their first shipment of apples from Hood River this season when they sent three cars to Alaska this week. The apples were of the King variety and were shipped green in order to reach Alaska before river navigation there closed. The Davidson company has also shipped several cars of Bartlett pears.
