NATIONAL PROHIBITION.

Much of what Candidate Chaffin says of the "old parties" is true. There is a great deal of humbug and clap-trap about their professions and pretensions, and much to be desired in their performances, says the Oregon Journal.

Properly, considering his position as a candidate of prohibitionists, Mr. Chaffin regards prohibition of the manufacture and sale of liquor as the paramount issue, the one great question to be settled. It is certainly a great and live question, but many efforts and long experience have shown that it cannot be made a party or political question.

From a sentimental or an abstract point of view, Mr. Chaffin is right; if the liquor traffic is a great moral wrong and a terrible evil it should be prohibited and what is good for some precincts, counties and states should be good for the nation; yet the people will not have it this way.

They prefer to deal with this question locally, at the most by states, usually by counties or less divisions, no such division being willing to impose prohibition upon other states or the country at large.

SELLING FRUIT. The opinion expressed by Mr. H. F. Davidson, of Hood River, that dealers in fruit lost money last year is undoubtedly correct, and it may be expected that their experience will make them a little cautious this year in loading up with supplies, though there is nothing in the industrial situation that warrants extra caution.

Whether with good reason or not, a man who has lost on an investment will be slow to make the same kind of an investment again. Men who laid in a large supply of apples last year will buy this year only what they can see a certain market for. And yet, at somewhat reduced prices, there should be as active a demand for apples for consumption as ever before. While growers will probably not agree to such a statement, it is quite possible that the price of apples, like that of many other commodities, was excessive last year. Values in all lines were high. Though it would be gratifying if apple growers could get as high prices every year as they did last season, such good fortune is not to be expected.

In defiance of all the acknowledged laws of nature in regard to horticulture and fruit growing, a plum tree, thrifty and loaded with fruit, stands wedged in on all sides in the backyard of Tompkins Bros. cigar store. The brick wall of the Hood River Banking and Trust company's building overshadows it on one side, while that of Frank A. Cram imprisons it on the other and in front the cigar store building jams into its vitals. A narrow outlet at the back allows one dejected limb to reach out for recognition by the public, but it is doubtful if many see it. Nevertheless the plum tree, which is of the yellow egg variety, flourishes mightily. Bearing its head above the roof of the store its limbs are covered with an abundant yield of yellow fruit. Unlike the flower that is "born to blush unseen and waste its sweetness on the desert air," the fruit of this plum tree each year delights many mortals with its fine flavor. Irrigated with salt water from empty ice cream tubs, fertilized with cigar butts and sprayed with lemonade we are informed by the proprietor of the store that each year it brings forth its abundant crop unencumbered, ununsung and unboasted.

JAPS BUY 1,000 ACRES IN WASCO

One thousand acres of land have been purchased at Eight Mile by the Columbia Land Produce company, which is composed of Japanese capitalists, says The Dallas Chronicle.

M. Skimomura, S. Shigemura, H. Okita and L. Nishizaki, president, vice-president, secretary and manager of the company respectively, were in the city today making preparations for the taking of supplies, etc., to their new holdings.

As announced some time ago the Columbia Land and Produce company was incorporated at the county clerk's office in this city by several Japs, the object of the incorporation being given as that of buying and selling real estate, growing farm produce, stock, etc.

The 1,000 acres of land at Eight Mile were purchased by the company from Messrs. Wilson and Davis. The consideration has not been made public. The property is about six miles from the Great Southern railroad.

It is the purpose of the Japanese to carry on truck gardening, fruit growing and stock raising. They will ship the products of their land to Portland, Seattle and other distributing points.

When seen today by a Chronicle reporter, S. Nishizaki, the manager of the Columbia Land and Produce company, said that Wasco is one of the best counties in Oregon in which to carry on truck gardening, and that they expect to do a good business in the way of gardening, grain and fruit growing. The Columbia Land and Produce company will carry on a real estate, grain, fruit and vegetable growing business and also will do business as commission merchants. Their farm address is rural free delivery number 2, Boyd, Oregon.

S. Nishizaki, manager, left on the Great Southern railway today for Boyd, accompanied by the other officials of the company. They sent a large wagon, heavily laden with necessary goods for housekeeping, out to the farm today.

Good Roads Meeting Sept. 19. Arrangements have been made for a rousing good roads meeting to be held at Hood River Saturday, September 19. The meeting will take place in the afternoon and Judge Webster and Judge Scott, who represent the State Good Roads Association, will be present to deliver addresses. The meeting place will be announced later and it is expected that residents here will make it a point to be present at this meeting. The Commercial Club, Merchants' Association and the city and county officials with many others feel that the matter of better roads is one of the utmost importance and are anxious that the meeting be a large one.

COUNTY OFFICIALS IN NEW QUARTERS

Hood River county's officials are installed in the building recently purchased by the county for a court house and the first session of court was held there Tuesday. The interior has been refurbished, the walls tinted and the new wainscoting placed around the rooms.

The room in the east end of the building has been set apart for the use of the court and a desk has been built in one end of a raised platform for the deliberations of the judges. The room in the east end of the building has been raised off to provide quarters for the sheriff, county assessor and county clerk. Adjoining the clerk's apartment is the new vault recently completed for filing the county books, papers and other documents.

Furniture for the use of the county officers and their assistants will be put in place in a day or two and those having occasion to transact business with the new county will be able to do so with neatness and dispatch.

380 Boxes Fruit Burned on Dump. Three hundred and eighty boxes of fruit were burned on the dump at Seattle Monday at the order of the deputy state commissioner of horticulture. One shipment of 208 boxes of apples from Zilab in Toppishid district was found to be wormy and covered with fungus and vegetable growth. Another shipment of 50 boxes from the same district was wormy and a shipment of 50 boxes of pears from Okanogan county, on the upper Columbia river, was covered with scale and was wormy. This makes 738 boxes of Washington fruit burned this week and a total of 119 boxes from California and Washington for the week.

Up to this week less than 100 boxes of fruit grown in this state had been condemned in Seattle, although more than 430 boxes of California fruit were found to be wormy. Without exception poor fruit has come from almost identical the same neighborhood as did poor fruit a year ago, indicating that growers have not used proper precautions.

Wenatchee and North Yakima have sent almost perfect fruit. The Paradise Farm property is the largest estate at Hood River and originally consisted of 320 acres and included the Idlewild and other additions near it which have been sold off as the city line grows larger and a greater demand created for building lots. There is still 280 acres of the property and the intention is to sell off and develop the large tract west Mrs. Adams' residence. This will be sold in 10 and 20 acre tracts with the stipulation that improvements must be started on it immediately.

As soon as enough of the property is sold to warrant the improvement streets will be cut through. About half of the estate is in the city limits and it is expected that much of this will be utilized for building purposes. The house and several acres of land will be reserved by Mrs. Adams as her residence.

The large estate owned now by Mrs. Adams was taken up under the donation act and set many years ago and the first store at Hood River was built there and occupied the land where the laundry building is now situated. The many residence buildings that are going up in that neighborhood indicate that it is looked upon one of the most desirable sections of the city for this purpose and that it will build up rapidly.

Suspend Work on Bridge. Owing to the fact that a misunderstanding has arisen between the Columbia Bridge company, who are constructing the bridge to the east of the city and the city council, work on the structure has been suspended for the present. The bridge company is also said to have been influenced to some extent in suspending the work on account of there not being enough funds in sight to pay for the structure when finished. It is expected that the matter will shortly be adjusted and work on the bridge resumed.

Mrs. Edith Anna Talbott. Mrs. Edith Anna Talbott, aged 77 years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Pine Grove Sunday, September 6. Mrs. Talbott was born in Pennsylvania and was married to Allen Talbott in Indiana in 1854. Five children were born to them, but one of whom survives. Her husband died six years ago. Mrs. Talbott came to Hood River five years ago and has lived here since.

The funeral was held at Pine Grove church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. W. Rigby conducting the services. Interment was in the Idlewild cemetery under the direction of J. E. Nichols.

Meeting With Favor. The proposition to build an automobile road between Hood River a d Portland is said by J. Adrian Epping, who was one of the committee appointed to negotiate the matter, to be meeting with favor by residents here. In a canvass which he recently made in and to securing funds Mr. Epping says that several stated that they would be willing to give $50 toward the project if it is found feasible. With the help that could be secured from Portland on one of Hood River property, Mr. Epping thinks that the road could be constructed and that it would prove a big attraction and a great benefit to the town and valley.
