CHAMBERLAIN'S ELECTION

The election of George Chamberlain as United States senator for Oregon should not be laid at the door of the members of the legislature nor should they be blamed. In fact it is to their credit that they have chosen the man selected for that office by the will of the people and whom they were pledged to support through the workings of the state's freak primary law.

Like other states, Oregon, by the provisions of the constitution of the United States is allowed two senators to represent its interests in the national congress. The manner in which they shall be elected is provided for and also a provision for changing their mode of election by an amendment to the constitution. It does not, however, stipulate that Oregon has the power to make this amendment or any other one or half dozen states. The constitution provides that an amendment to the law providing for the election of United States senators can originate in either house of congress, requiring a three-fourths vote of both houses and the ratification of the legislatures of two-thirds of the states, to become a law. Or it can originate from the states and become a law by the ratification of both houses of congress. There is no question that the trend of public opinion is toward the election of United States senators by direct vote and it would also appear that the time may not be far distant when this manner of electing them may prevail.

The Oil Trust will have to put in a new underground pipe line into Missouri.

Any person who says the president will not bag at least ten elephants in Africa is a candidate for the Ananias Club.

Mark Twain has been legally incorporated. That's what comes from association with trust magnates.

The winegrowers want a high tariff. They will never let the ambitious poor cultivate a champagne appetite.

Johnson, of Minnesota, is said to be thinking already about 1912. He has the support of McCarren and the opposition of Bryan. Seems to be a tie.

The German Emperor is reported as broke. Perhaps he has just got through with his holiday shopping.

Roosevelt, Wright, Loeb, Lodge, Knox—these are some of the names connected with the Taft Cabinet positions. It looks as if the "now-I-see" man was correct in suggesting a cabinet in words of one syllable.

Some people are so rich that they can go to the opera and have beef-steak too.

It is to be feared that seven years in the Presidential chair has a tendency to spoil even the sweetest temper.

Tammany Hall, having been repudiated by about everything political, is now figuring to save itself by repudiating McAllellan. Tammany's trouble is that the greater city of New York has outgrown it, and the fact would as well be recognized.

CHAMBERLAIN ON FIRST BALLOT

In the House

It lacked but a few minutes to the hour when Speaker McArthur asked all present to turn so as to face a photographer located on a high platform in the northwest corner. At the flash many women started in their seats and uttered exclamations of alarm. When the laughter had subsided the speaker said the House might rest at ease.

Members in the House voting for Chamberlain were: Abbott, Altman, Barrett, Bedillion, Brady, Brandon, Bryant, Campbell, Clemens, Corrigan, Couch, Davis, Drake, Dodds, Eaton, Hatteberg, Jackson, Jaeger, Jones of Lincoln and Polk, Jones of Douglas, Jones of Clackamas, Libby, Mabona, Mariner, McDonald, Miller, Muncey, Munkers, Orton, Paton, Phillipot, Purdie, Richardson and Husk.

For Calkins—Applegate, Beals, Bonebrake, Buchanan, Carter, Farrell, Greer, Hines, Hughes, Mahoney, Mann, McKinney, Reynolds and Speaker McArthur.

For Fulton—Bean, Belknap, Bones, Brattain, Brooks, Calkins, Conyers, Hawley, Leineweber, McCue, Meek and Smith.

Bean of Lane cast his vote for Harvey W. Scott, but changed to Fulton before the ballot was announced.

Williams Wrath

"George E. Chamberlain owes his election more to Senator Tom Kay than to any other man," said Ralph E. Williams, National Committeeman for Oregon. "Had Tom Kay come into the game, we could have defeated Chamberlain."

"I can say absolutely that had we wanted to we had enough statement men in the House to block Chamberlain. They would have come to us whenever we wanted them. Kay spoiled it all, however, when he refused to assist. It was only necessary for us to secure 30 votes in the House to defeat Chamberlain, and this could have been done."

Chamberlain Makes Statement

On being informed of his election, Governor Chamberlain said: "This is a great victory for Oregon and the people of our state. I am thoroughly glad of the honor which the people of this state and their chosen representatives have accorded me. The people are the law and their voice has been obeyed. I thank the press which was with the people in their flight, and I thank the legislators for fulfilling their pledges. The results of this day will stand in our political calendar as a victory for popular government."

MAKE CUT IN FIRE INSURANCE RATE

The fact that the State Board of Underwriters have made a new survey at Hood River and have reduced insurance rates here, will be welcome news to Hood River residents and business men. The survey was made by Stanley G. Jewett, of Portland and the decrease in rates runs from 5 to 75 per cent, with an average decrease on all insurance rates of about 20 per cent. Insurance on dwellings houses receives the biggest cut, the rate being lowered from 50 to 75 per cent. Stocks in stores get a big reduction in rates, particularly where they are located in brick buildings. Brick or concrete buildings receive a correspondingly low rate.

Mid-Winter Styles in Dress

"If you are planning to have a new winter gown after the holidays," writes Grace Margaret Gould in Woman's Home Companion for January. "There are one or two things I want to call your attention to in regard to material and trimmings. All of the new fabrics have a sheen effect, whether they are wool or silk. Fine cashmere, which has such a wonderful luster, is a reliable and fashionable material. The chiffon broadcloths are still the rage, and woad satins and Henrietta cloth are desirable materials. It is unwise to select, even for a winter gown too heavy a material. The new style of dress demands light weight fabrics. Much plain tucked net matching the material of the gown in color is used, and the milnie nets braided are never than the flets. For a gown which you wish to wear in the evening or for infernal social affairs there is nothing better than the lovely new crepes, which are so soft and shimmering. Messaline and satin are still being much worn."

"In the way of colors, all of the shades of gray are in high favor and are to be recommended because of their neutral, inconspicuous color. Taupe, which has an undertone of dull green, is extremely fashionable, but the woman of pale complexion should avoid it unless it is brightened up with a touch of some color which she knows is particularly becoming to her. Mauve, elephant and London smoke are all good gray shades. Caraway, dress of wine, wistaria and a number of fashionable shades, in hunter's green is also in demand. In regard to the blues, which are apt to be so universally becoming, there are a number of fashionable shades. There is a tint known as Edison blue, which reminds one of Albee blue, but is darker. The blues with either a tint of green or an undertone of gray are also good styles. Not in a long time has black been considered as smart as it is this year."

Maggies Eat Ears From 100 Porkers

The M. Ely of Hoover has discovered a new hog cure. Mr. Ely has a set of 100 pigs and is making the fight of his life to keep them from being eaten alive by maggots. When Mr. Ely bought the pigs he cut a notch in each porker's ear as a mark of identification. Just about the time the present cold spell began the notched ears were neatly healed. Then came the maggots. Ely tried to either for warmth the hogs lay like sardines, awaiting the next meal. The maggots were out looking for something to eat, too.

One bird, perched on a fat pig's back noticed a drop of blood on the pig's ear. The bird pecked at it and found it good. The hog flapped his ears and grunted. The maggot passed the good secret along.

The birds have kept every hog ear of hundreds of bleeding ever since and Mr. Ely declares in some cases the animals are just as much as half an ear. The beasts are defenseless animals. They try to get their heads under some other hog to dodge the birds, but the maggots are too quick and never leave the job a moment.
