O. H. Gilbert of Portland, manager of the Pacific Tel. and Tel. Co., was in the city Friday and Saturday looking after the company's interests here. He was also inspecting the wires strung between here and Portland, and says that they will be ready to use by the first of the week. This will give the public a better service to Portland.
Aug. Johnson, of St. Paul, Minn., was in the city the past week looking up real estate investments. Mr. Johnson has been to several points in Washington and Oregon, but likes Hood River district the best and will no doubt find some land that suits him and buy. He says that hundreds are planning to come to this spring from that section of Minnesota, and that most of them will conclude to buy out here and make the west their home.

A special train of several refrigerators of seed oysters came through Thursday on the time of train 7. The special came all the way through from the Atlantic coast on passenger time so that the young oysters could be planted in the Pacific at the earliest possible moment.
A large Rhode Island Red capon taking care of a brood of young chickens, was an attraction in the show window of Bragg's store last week. The bird is an excellent step-mother, having raised over two dozen chicks last year, and takes the best care of his brood, hovering them when necessary, feeding food for them, doing the mother hen stunt to perfection. The bird is owned by I. C. Clodfelter.
Mrs. Theres Jamme, of Minneapolis, closed a deal yesterday through the agency of Maxton Mackie, for the 25 acre orchard property in the Barrett District which was owned by I. M. Clodfelter and J. A. Eppin. This property, which is a portion of the old Henderson place, brought $500 per acre, and is the second sale made at that figure within a week, in the so-called "rocky belt". The fine soil analysis made and published by the Government in a bulletin sent out from the Experimental Station at Corvallis last fall, together with the great success attained by the Sargent and Albee orchards, has attracted much favorable attention to this district and values are steadily rising. Associated with Mrs. Jamme, is her son, Mr. Andrew Jamme, who will assume active management of the orchard. They plan extensive improvements and this slightly tract promises to become one of the most attractive of the many beautiful properties on the west side of the valley.

The base ball game at the Columbia base ball grounds Sunday did not seem to be very interesting to the "fans." A game was played between Hood River and Mosier, with the result of 13 to 3, in favor of Hood River. The Mosier boys are all right if they just had the chance to practice. They have some good players among them, but have not had the opportunity to get in trim, as our local team.
Albert Lawrence, of the Lawrence-Henley Produce Co., Denver, was in the city the latter part of the week arranging for strawberries and other fruits this season. They have been heavy purchasers of our berries and say they are the best that come to the Denver market. Mr. Lawrence is an old personal friend of J. H. Fredrick, O. K. & S. agent, and enjoyed a nice visit with him while here.
H. A. Sublett, of Frankfort, Ky. arrived in the city Thursday and has been looking over our fruit farms. He predicts a heavy immigration from Kentucky, this year, not only to see the Exposition but prospective buyers from that state who have heard so much of the opportunities of the west and such wonderful fruit stories. After seeing for himself he feels that none of the reports have been exaggerated. Frank H. Green, of Aberdeen, Wash., was transacting business in this city Thursday and Friday. He registered at the Mt. Hood.

Wilbur Carnes, brother in law of A. H. Labbe, and his friend, P. E. Chapman, both of Hood River, who have been here visiting, returned home yesterday. They are greatly pleased with Eugene and think it one of the best towns in the state—Eugene Register.
Herbert Folger, assistant general agent of the German American Insurance Co., at San Francisco, writes A. C. Buck: "I have the greatest faith in Hood River and am only sorry that I cannot make you a visit during the next month, for the purpose of helping to consume some of your strawberries, which cannot be equalled anywhere else on the Pacific coast."
Ross & Richards have installed a new buttermilk cooler that is in advance of anything heretofore seen here in this line. It is a glass fountain, into which a smaller glass receptacle is placed to contain the ice, so that the melting of the ice does not water the buttermilk. The buttermilk on sale is from the Hazelwood creamery, and has the surplus water extracted, while sweet cream is added. Try a drink of the buttermilk and you will be a steady customer.
Complaint is being made that young children and even grown ups who ought to know better, are picking flowers in yards of the residences of the city, and in many cases are not content with picking a few flowers, but destroy the bushes and plants as well. Some of the flowering shrubs have been ruined in this manner, and if the guilty parties are caught they will be made an example of.
A serious runaway accident occurred Saturday evening. J. A. Kerr was driving into town with his family to attend the meeting at the tabernacle, when the wagon tongue broke while coming down the grade on Twelfth street. The team started to run, the wagon was overturned and the occupants thrown out opposite the Crowell residence. Mr. Kerr escaped injury, but Mrs. Kerr was severely injured and her mother, Mrs. Susan Blanchard, had two ribs broken and her collar bone fractured. Mrs. W. B. Corey, who was in the rig, was severely shaken up. They were taken to the Crowell residence and cared for there until they were able to be moved to their home, west of the ball grounds.
