Hood River Man Fined.
 George Bigford and A. C. Robinson said to be from Hood River got drunk and ran amuck at The Dalles, Friday night, and as a result liberal fine were assessed against them by the police judge in the neighboring town the next morning. They were each fined $5 for being drunk and $7.50 for fighting, while Bigford had $25 more tacked onto his debt, because of the fact that he carried a large revolver.

Frank Williams, who has been Marshall Lewis' principal care for the past few weeks was released Thursday but by Friday night he had put himself in condition to get the $25 and costs which he is now lying out. Alfred Nelson also was picked up for being drunk Friday morning and paid $5 and costs into the city pocketbook the next morning.

UNIVERSITY CLUB
ANNUAL DINNER

About 100 members and guests of the Hood River University club gathered Saturday evening at the Mt. Hood Hotel for the second annual dinner of the local college men. An informal reception was held in the lobby of the hotel, during which the diners got better acquainted and enjoyed an hour or so of college reminiscence before the orchestra struck up a lively air and the march was led to the dining room.

The room had been decorated with autumn and evergreen boughs, and the walls were hung with college and frat-rnity pennants. The Halloween idea was carried out with varicolored electric lights shining through the "pumpkin" faces which were strung down the center of the tables. Throughout the excellent dinner the orchestra played a series of popular tunes and the diners more than once broke forth in song joining the orchestra musicians and singing as they had not done since the good old college days. Arrangements had been made to have the scores of Saturday's games as these were read between the courses, chess and college yells rung out from various groups when the news of a victory for their 'varsity.

After the coffee and cigars, Dr. J. F. Watt arose as toastmaster and conducted the further ceremonies of the evening in a most happy fashion. The quartette composed of Cornell fellows, was called upon to start off the post-prandial festivities and they did so well that they were called back several times during the evening to entertain the clubmen with the college songs. Judge J. L. Henderson, was called upon for the first toast, and he responded to "The Ladies" in a delightful manner.

E. H. Shepard, "father of the University club", was asked to tell of the growth and prosperity of his "year old son" and he told of the beginning and progress of the club during the first year of its life. He told that the present membership was 117 and the 102 of the members were actively engaged in raising apples in Hood River district. This showed the about 15 per cent of the orchard-lets were college men and testified to the just claim Hood River has to its intelligent fruit growing. So far as Mr. Shepard had been able to learn, the local club has the distinction of being the only organization of its kind which thrives in so small a community and shares with Portland, Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane the honor of having the only university clubs in the Pacific northwest.

Frank Cutler spoke of the relation of the club to the valley and outlined briefly the great influence which the club could have in the development of the district. A. W. Morrison responded to the sentiment of "Our Alma Mater" and spoke feelingly of the ties which bind the college men to the institution which contributed to the happiest years of his life. Murray Kay contributed to the pleasure of the evening with two toasts which marked him as an old glen club "star".

Funman Butler was called on to speak in behalf of the older members and responded with some good stories. J. C. Melanes spoke for the Washington side of the river and John W. Galtway responded for the upper valley. R. W. Kelley had had the dinner in charge, was not allowed to escape without a speech and he primed the members for the next affair of the club which will be a hop later in the season. Dr. Beaumont spoke of the relations between the club and Portland. The evening was brought to a fitting close when the diners rose and drank a toast to E. L. Smith, the oldest member of the club, who was unable to be present at the dinner.

If Old Ways Were Always the Best

The world of business would have stood still if old ways were always the best. It is the new things that have made for progress and prosperity. We recognize new ways and new ideas in our Drug Business as soon as we believe they mean for better service for customers and our policy in that direction proves itself right by a drug service not surpassed elsewhere in the state.
