ARTHUR D. MOE, Publisher. Subscription, $1.50 Per Year.

HARVEY W. SCOTT. Harvey W. Scott, editor of the Portland Oregonian since long before most of us began reading it, is dead, Mr. Scott's passing will be deeply felt. He was an editor who injected his personality strongly into the editorial page of his paper and who never failed to take a fighting stand on every subject, defending his own side with such zeal that he allowed no good could exist upon the opposite side of the issue. He has made the Oregonian his monument and it is regarded as the best and most thorough newspaper on the Pacific coast. Mr. Scott was a national figure and, while his impress was keenly made on Portland, Oregon and the Northwest, the country at large regrets the loss of a man who made himself felt in its affairs.

DAN SMITH KILLED IN LOGGING CAMP

Dan Smith, a brakeman, on the logging train of the Oregon Lumber Company, was killed Friday at Camp 1, south of Dee. Smith sat down on the track under a car which had just been loaded with logs and in loading the car following two logs on the first car were knocked off. A warning was shouted to Smith and he jumped from under the car just in time to be struck by the second log which fell, pinning him to the ground and causing instant death. Coroner J. Edgington held an inquest Saturday and the verdict was accidental killing without placing the blame for the accident. The deceased had been in the employ of the company about five years. He was born in Kansas about 33 years ago and has been in Hood River for the past six years. He is survived by four small children, his wife having died several years ago. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon from the home of the deceased, where C. Gilmore officiating and the burial took place at Idleville.

FRADULENT AND FORGED CHECKS

Thursday George Thompson, who had been working here for several weeks as a cook, cashed several bad checks among local business men and then returned to the city for small amounts drawn on the First National Bank, where Thompson had no account, and were cashed by Kent & Garbrant and Morrison & Hayward. Thompson was located Friday in The Dalles, where he had also tried to pass checks. Deputy Sheriff Charles Morse went to the city up the river for the man but the Wasco county officers kept him for trial for the frauds committed in that county.

Tuesday a check for $10 signed with the name of R. E. Gibson and drawn on the First National Bank here came to the bank and had evidently been cashed by the North Bank agents at Grand Dalles, Wash. It is suspected that Thompson is the author of this check which was a forgery. Thompson was employed by Mr. Gibson while here.

Law Firm Organized.

Judge A. J. Derby and George R. Wilbur will hereafter be associated in the practice of law under the firm name of Derby & Wilbur. Both lawyers are well-known here and the combination of two men who have demonstrated their legal ability so well cannot but be a success. Judge Derby has made an eminent success in the office of County Judge since the creation of the county and is also the city attorney. Mr. Wilbur has come to Hood River more recently and has been in the Hood River Abstract company. He had considerable legal experience in Nebraska where he practiced six years.

BROKERS WOULD BUY WATER BONDS

A representative of Keeler Brothers, bond brokers, of Denver, has been here during the past few days conferring with Mayor McDonald and members of the city council in regard to the $90,000 bond issue for the municipal irrigation plant. The Denver firm has customers among the insurance companies and will, they say, be able to underwrite the bonds. The council did not meet Monday night and the negotiations with the Denver house have not been brought before the body formally. An ordinance to advertise the bonds another time was brought up at the last meeting of the council and is in the hands of a committee to be reported back at the meeting of the council Monday night, when it will probably be passed. The Denver house it is understood has made the city a very good proposition but the council seems to be making very careful investigation before taking any steps toward closing the deal.

DISTRICT MAY SELL ADDITIONAL BONDS

The Supreme Court handed down an opinion last week affirming judgment in the case of Charles Hall, applicant, against the Hood River Irrigation District, respondent. The appellant, Hall, brought this suit to enjoin the Irrigation District from issuing and selling a second bond issue amounting to $75,000, this sum being required to complete the irrigation project, alleging that the law did not authorize the second bond issue. A demurrer was interposed and sustained by Circuit Judge W. L. Bradshaw, from which judgment the appeal was taken. In the opinion, which was written by Justice King, the lower court's judgment is upheld in that an amendment to the Constitution provides and specifically implies that when a district legally authorized to construct irrigation ditches, dikes, canals and ditches, finds that the funds derived from the first bond issue are insufficient to complete the work, a special election may be called and further bonds issued. The election in Hood River County having been lawfully held and the second bond issue approved by the voters, the case is affirmed.

Lights on Hotel Oregon.

Dean & Shaw have just completed extensive electrical work for illuminating the outside of the Hotel Oregon. A large electric sign was placed on top of the hotel Monday, Roy Dean having climbed Mt. Hood the day before in order to put himself in trim to place the sign on the fourth story. Besides the big sign, the neon signs on the second and third floors of the hotel have been outlined with electric lights so that a considerable illumination of the building is now possible.

Secretary Skinner Moves.

The new quarters of the Commercial Club in the new First National Bank building are being fitted up as fast as the furniture arrives. Secretary J. C. Skinner has moved his office from the exhibit booth near the depot to the new quarters. The pool and billiard tables have been installed and other furniture is coming daily.

Notice to Apple Packers.

The Apple Growers Union requests all packers who want to pack apples this fall to call at the office of the union and register their names and place of residence. Good pay and a long season of work guaranteed all experienced packers. C. H. Sprout, Manager Hood River Apple Growers Union.

TWO PRETTY PARTIES AT STEWART HOME

Two very beautiful parties were given Thursday and Friday evenings by Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Watt and Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Nelson, at the handsome Stewart home on State street in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Henry, who came to the valley recently from Washington, D. C. The first evening was a musicale and the entertainment the second evening was Dutch whist. The house which was opened as one large room, was tastefully decorated with the porch and garden, the latter being illuminated with many small electric lights. Yellow was the prevailing color in the scheme of decoration and inside the house were suspended many baskets which gave an effect of a hanging garden.

The musicale was one of the most pleasing affairs ever given in Hood River and the talented musicians and singers who helped to entertain the guests rendered a program which is seldom excelled by local artists in much larger communities. The singing of Mrs. Henney, the guest of honor, was most highly enjoyed. Other soloists vocal and instrumental were Mrs. P. S. Davidson, Mrs. Charles Hall, Mrs. C. H. Sletten, Mrs. A. A. Jayne, Miss Bryant, Miss Alberta Jackson, George R. Wilbur, Murray Kay, J. Adrian Epping and Will Chandler, the last named being accompanied by Mrs. H. L. Dunlap, Mr. Patterson of Portland, formerly a member of the Chicago Apollo Club, also performed and one of the most surprising and pleasing features were solos whistled by Miss Morgan, a small girl from Goldenlake. The Mandolin Club orchestra played several numbers in the garden while the refreshments were served.

Friday evening the guests were entertained with Dutch whist, a novel and very entertaining game. The prizes were in keeping with the idea and the first prizes were won by Mrs. L. F. Henderson and E. R. Manning, while the second trophies went to Mrs. Manning and E. J. Young.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank the friends at Dee and Hood River for their kindly assistance and sympathy occasioned by the death of my brother, Daniel Smith. Sincerely, B. B. Smith.

Dr. H. L. Dumble is spending several weeks in Chicago.

The Style Shop has been sold by Miss J. J. Davis to Mrs. Weeks. Miss Constance Henderson went to Portland Wednesday for a visit with friends.

W. F. Laraway and family have returned from an automobile trip in the Willamette valley.

Henry Howe has returned from Walla Walla where he has been working in the U. S. Land office.

William Francis and wife are here from Southern California for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Deitz.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Montgomery, of Greenfield, Ind., will arrive Friday for a few weeks visit with their son, James E. Montgomery.

Essie, the two year old daughter of L. H. Mohr, who died Sunday at her home at Camp 3, above Green Point, from cholera infantum.

Mrs. Robert Cochran, of Hamilton, Ohio, her niece, Miss Lucia Gilchrist, of Grand Junction, Colo., left Tuesday for their homes after a visit with friends in the valley.

Hone & DeWitt have a Buick auto truck which they are trying out in Hood River. It will haul a ton of freight and has a two cylinder motor. It is adaptable for hauling passengers also and may be used by the firm as an auto bus.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new Heilbroner building at the corner of Third and Cascade streets and the plans have been changed to include a third story which will have a hall, well, equipped for gatherings of various sorts.

Banks Mortimer returned Tuesday from a surveying trip in the Willamette valley and after visiting his mother, Mrs. D. Mortimer, for a few days he will leave for Medford from which point he will go on a railroad survey.

Dr. and Mrs. E. O. Dutro took their daughter to Portland Monday to have a wad of paper removed from the child's nose. The operation was successful and the child is resting well. Mrs. Dutro remained in Portland with her.

Plans are being prepared by Architect Albert Sutton for a fine country home to be erected by H. C. Peters on his east side ranch. The house will be modern in every way and it is the plan to build it in the center of the 80 acre orchard, from which point an excellent view of the valley may be had.

A crowd of 25 Greeks here has been about town for several days looking for George W. McCoy, for whom they had done considerable work on a place in the valley. It seems that McCoy failed to pay the foreign laborers and they have been unable to find him. He has had similar troubles with laborers before. The crowd of local Elks who went to Astoria Saturday and to Seaside for a clam bake on Sunday enjoyed a very fine time and made the enormous crowd in attendance realize that Hood River was there. Among those going from here were Joe Vogt, J. H. Fredrick, Charley Morse, Judge A. J. Derby, E. C. Smith, Harry S. Carter, Arch Adams, Carl Vaughan, Charles Castner and wife and J. B. Hunt and wife.

Albret L. Crocker, Ralph R. Ellis, Robert J. McKay, Johnnie Shields, John Coshaw and George Bragg are camping at Lost Lake this week.

The eight months old boy of D. P. Shrum in Dukes Valley died Tuesday night of pneumonia. Several other children in the family are ill with the same malady.

The new macadam road out the west side has been oiled by the county during the past week and if the plan which has been followed proves successful it is probable that the other roads of the valley will receive similar treatment.

CHILEAN STEVEDORES.

A Ferocious Class of Men With the Manners of Savages. At Carouel, the principal coaling port on the west coast of South America, it is customary for cargo boats to ship twenty or thirty Chilean stevedores, in addition to the regular crew, to break out the cargo when it is consigned to various ports further up the coast. A worse looking lot of cutthroats than these seagoing longshoremen it would be hard to find even among the bandits of southern Europe or the old time pirates of the West Indies. Swarthy, underbred, dirty and clothed in nondescript rags, they are about the bottom notch in the scale of humanity.

What they lack in intelligence they make up in ferocity and animal cunning. Even a crew of Kanakas will refuse to berth or mess with them. Every man of them carries a knife, and they are commanded by an overseer who is addressed as "captain" and exerts a certain degree of authority. They do their own cooking while aboard ship, each man serving as cook for a week, at the end of which time he resigns in favor of the next in line. Of course the "captain" never descends to menial labor, not even to work the cargo. He stands by with a cigarette between his fingers and directs his men. The table manners of these savages are the manners of the stone age. Neither knives, forks nor spoons are used, but every man grabs for himself and crams as much as he can into his mouth at once, greedily tearing the meat apart with his fingers and cleaning up the grease with a piece of bread, which also does duty as a napkin before it is swallowed. A number of sheep generally are taken out of these tramp steamers and killed when fresh meat is needed. When the Chileans learn a crew is going to be killed they creep around with tin cups or basins to catch the warm blood, which they drink eagerly. They also bring chunks of bread and sop up every drop that falls.—New York Press.

THE FIRST PHOTOGRAPHS.

Head Tongs, Long Exposures and the Ordeal of Looking Pleasant. An event was the taking of the first photograph in the olden days, when photography was still hampered by pitchforks and long exposures. There are few good baby pictures of our fathers. The fond mother and father sit bolt upright, frozen or petrified, while between them is a very starchy little dress surmounted by a very composite of several partial illnesses of the hopeful.

But it was with the child of ten or twelve years that the old time photographer succeeded best, the child that has reached the age capable of feeling the tremendous responsibility of having a picture taken. Every old album, such as used to grace the center table in the front room, prides before you a long array of these conscientious young people undergoing the terrible ordeal of "sitting." Loving mothers spend hours combing those smoothly plastered locks tightly back and binding them uncompromisingly behind with iron-wire-ribbed bands. At the last moment, after the operator has screwed the iron fork tight up behind the trembling head and has pushed the huge camera here and there, ducking in and out under the black cloth in a most awe inspiring manner, mother has slipped into range and given just one more pat to the starchy skirts and one more tug at the big sleeves. Then there came the awful command, "Look pleasant," which the victim did by a remarkable effort of will, usually attaining somewhat the expression which comes over the face of a strangling cat. Five minutes later the "artist" announces that "what will do," and the family feels the same relief that comes to friends with the announcement that the "patient has survived the operation and is resting comfortably."—Detroit News-Tribune.

Pain and Sudden Death. In angina pectoris, agony spasm of the heart, there are two chief features—pain and sudden death. The pain is coming and going, intense, peculiar, strange, awful, usually in the chest around the heart and spreading into the shoulders and abdomen. Death, which comes in a higher percentage than in any other known disease, for few ever get over it, is usually sudden, often, as the poet says, "life struck sharp on death." There are indeed in this disease many mysteries remaining to be cleared up. A father and his four children have died of angina pectoris.—New York Press.

At Sea. A man was discovered one evening by a friend leaning disconsolately over the rail of a transatlantic steamer. "Are you waiting for the moon to rise?" asked the friend facetiously. "No," was the savage reply. "I have not swallowed the moon."—Los Angeles Times.

Going Round the World.

In sailing around the world eastward the days are each a little less than twenty-four hours, according to the speed of the ship, as the sun is met a little earlier every morning. These little differences added together will amount to twenty-four hours. This gives the sailors an extra day—not in imagination, but as an actual fact. They will have done an extra day's work, eaten an extra day's ration of food and imbibed an extra day's allowance of grog.

On the other hand, in sailing westward the sun is overtaken a little each day, and so each day is rather longer than twenty-four hours, and clocks and watches are found to be too fast. This also will amount in sailing around the world to the point of departure to one whole day by which the reckoning has fallen in arrears. The eastern bound ship, then, has gained a day, and the western bound ship has lost one. This strange fact, clearly worked out, lends to the apparent paradox that the first named ship has a gain of two whole days over the latter, if we suppose them to have departed from port and returned together.—Philadelphia Record.

Modern Gold Mining.

Up until about 1850 only placer or surface gold was mined—that is, free gold, deposited in the beds of streams, in sands and in the crevices of rocks. Placer mining, mainly in new and remote regions, still furnishes a material though not a large percentage of the world's output. Formerly the alluvial gold was separated from the sands and gravels containing it by washing them in pans, cradles, rockers and sluices. In 1822 the hydraulic method was first employed in California. By this means "glant" streams of water turned against the side of a mountain washes everything before it. The gold settles to the bottom of the tunnel or sluice through which the gravel, sand and water flow. In 1880 dredges or excavators were first used in Australia. Today steam and electric dredges produce a considerable portion of the world's output.—Byron W. Holt in Everybody's.

Why Boiled Water Freezes Easily.

Water which is hot of course cannot freeze until it has parted with its heat, but water that has been boiled will, other things being equal, freeze sooner than water which has not been boiled. A slight disturbance of water disposes it to freeze more rapidly, and this is the cause which accelerates the freezing of boiled water. The water that has been boiled has lost its air naturally contained in it, which on exposure to the atmosphere it begins again to attract and absorb. During this process of absorption a motion is necessarily produced among its particles, slight certainly and imperceptible, yet probably sufficient to accelerate its congelation. In unboiled water this disturbance does not exist. Indeed, water when kept perfectly still can be reduced several degrees below the freezing point without its becoming ice.

Gardens in the Ice.

A glacier when it dislodges itself and sails away over the Arctic ocean never travels alone. In the wake of every large one floats a line of similar companions. The Eskimos call this phenomenon "the duck and ducklings," and any one who has watched the progress of the wild duck followed by her brood will appreciate the aptitude of the name. Strange as it may seem, plants grow and blossom upon these great ice mountains. When a glacier is at rest most attaches itself to it, protecting the ice beneath, just as sawdust does. After a time the moss decays and forms a soil, in which the seeds of buttercups and dandelions, brought by the wind, take root and flourish. Those who have traveled much in arctic lands say the poppy does not bloom during the brief northern summer.
