VETERAN POLICEMAN LOCATES HERE

Jerome B. Mason, father of A. E. Mason, has come to Hood River and will make his home with his son on the latter's east side ranch. Mr. Mason, Sr. came from St. Louis where he has been a member of the police force for over 40 years. The following comment on his retirement is copied from the St. Louis Post Dispatch:
After devoting forty-one years to police duty, Jerome B. Mason, severed his connection with the department Friday by resignation. He will go to the apple ranch of his son in the famous Hood River district and spend his declining years there. His resignation was accepted by the Police Board.
"Joe" Mason, as the old soldier-policeman was affectionately known, leaves the force with the best wishes of Chief Young, Assistant Chief Gillaspay and his other superiors. "Joe" Mason was a Union soldier. He shouldered a musket when he was barely able to handle it. After the war he became a painter. He joined the police force June 18, 1869. And for the entire forty-one years he was a consistent Republican. The various Democratic administrations recognized "Old Joe's" worth and retained him.

FELLOWSHIP TO BE A CORPORATION

At a meeting of the Hood River Apple Growers' Fellowship held in the Commercial Club rooms Saturday afternoon the members present voted to incorporate the society with a view to facilitating the transactions of the organization. The articles of incorporation do not call for any changes in the Fellowship its purposes or policies and the step to incorporate was taken only to give the society a legal standing whereby it could do business more conveniently.
The meeting Saturday also changed the by-laws of the Fellowship to include three members of the faculty of the Oregon Agricultural College as advisory members of the board of trustees. The three horticultural experts will be in addition to the 11 members of the board who are members of the Fellowship and their duties will be purely of an advisory sort. The by-laws provide that the experts shall be the professors of Horticulture, Entomology and Pathology at the college.
The trustees are planning to make another canvass of the valley in order to get every orchard owner of the district to become a member of the organization which will investigate the various tree diseases and pests which from time to time may turn up in Hood River valley. The maximum annual assessment was recently reduced from $1 to 50c an acre and it should now be an easy thing to get all the orchardists to join in the movement.

LITTLE INTEREST IN TELEPHONE MATTER

A meeting of the Hood River Merchants' Association was to have been held Tuesday evening and the announcements of the meeting stated that the report of the Committee on Telephone Services would be received and acted upon, but only three or four persons showed up to attend the meeting and the hearing of the report was postponed. President Carl H. Vaughan said that another matter which should be brought before the association is that of co-operation in raising a fund with which to build a permanent fruit fair exhibition building.

John A. Smith Buried Here.

John A. Smith, who was for many years a resident of Belmont, died Friday at the home of his niece, Mrs. Belle S. Bartlett in Tacoma and the body was brought here Saturday and buried the day following beside that of his wife in Idlewild cemetery. Mr. Smith came to Hood River in 1894 and lived here until 1901 and has been here at times since then. He was 88 years old. Mrs. Bartlett accompanied the body here and George and Charles Cramer, nephews of the deceased, from Oregon City, who formerly lived here, also attended the funeral, which was conducted Sunday afternoon from the Bartness Chapel by Dr. T. B. Ford.
