VISITING ENGLISHMAN LAUDS ORCHARDS

W. J. Bellis, a prominent fruit merchant of Liverpool, member of the liberal party and a justice of the peace of Wallasey, the newest borough of England, accompanied by his friend and political opponent, W. S. Chantrell, councillor of the Conservative party for the borough of Wallasey, spent last Thursday and Friday studying the methods of the local fruit industry and viewing the beautiful scenery of the Valley. The two well known Englishmen crossed the Atlantic to New York as cabin mates aboard the Corona of the Cunard line and have since been making an extensive tour of the United States. On reaching Hood River Mr. Bellis stated that they had traveled 8,072 miles. Everywhere they have been, he continued, that is, wherever it was known they were fighters on different sides of the suffragette cause, they have aroused the greatest surprise among Americans. Mr. Bellis left Hood River on a Soo-Spokane train to return directly to his business in England. His friend, Mr. Chantrell, however, will continue his tour for a while on this continent. He left for Seattle, Vancouver, from which point he will start east, making a study of the Canadian provinces as he travels.

Mr. Bellis is a strong sympathizer with the suffragist movement in England. However he says that he does not go so far as to support the militant suffragettes. In speaking of the militant suffragette who threw the bottle at the head of Mr. Asquith, however, he says, that he admires her very much. "I do not think I have ever seen such heroism," said the English J. P. who, when he is not selling fruit, presides as judge at Wallasey. "She was certainly willing to sacrifice her life for the cause of the suffragists. For a number of weeks she refused to take food and her life was only sustained by the liquid nourishment forced down her throat by the prison guards." In addition to his political prominence, Mr. Bellis is a leader in the fruit business, to which he has devoted his time for the past 32 years. He has for the past 2 years been president of the Liverpool Fruitgrowers Association, the membership of which extends to all of the cities of northern England. Mr. Bellis states that he has been much impressed with all parts of the Pacific coast, but grew enthusiastic when speaking of Oregon. "We Englishmen never realized what a magnificent country and how much progress was going on on the western border of our country," he said. "My, but it is a revelation! The improvements that you are making are wonderful. And Hood River—I have known the place a long time and it is easy now to see how you raise such fine apples, after I have beheld the healthy and clean conditions of your orchards. From appearances they must receive more attention than the royal park of our England."

Mr. Chantrell, the Conservative councillor of Wallasey, is an enthusiast over photography. He has been securing views in all parts of America, with which he will illustrate a series of lectures on his return home. He took a number of pictures of the Valley and scenes of Mount Hood. When asked about the scenery of the state as compared with that seen elsewhere, he stated that he saw nothing that could compare with the Columbia River Gorge from Portland to Hood River, except some short stretches along the Coast Line of the Southern Pacific. "You must have an ideal climate for apples," said he. "And what a paradise to raise them in." Mr. Chantrell was also impressed with the price received for orchard land. He stated that the most intensively cultivated soil of England did not bring such a price.

Mr. Bellis and Mr. Chantrell were accompanied to Hood River by J. O. Hihn, a prominent capitalist of Santa Cruz.
