Alfalfa, Cows, Hogs and CALIFORNIA

A combination that can't be beat for quick and sure money. Special knowledge and experience are required to raise fruit successfully. It takes from 5 to 10 years to grow a profitable orchard. Anybody can make a success of alfalfa. With cows and hogs it pays $200 an acre the second year. California, in the Upper Sacramento Valley, has the best alfalfa land in the world. Five and six cuttings a season, 10 and 12 tons per acre, one acre supports 2 cows and 3 hogs. Gravity irrigation. Same climate and same fruits as Los Angeles. Land cheapest in the west. Very easy terms. We provide settlers with all the fresh dairy cows they want and take half the butter fat receipts from month to month in payment.
