MOUNT HOOD ATTRACTS MANY

Cloud Cap Inn, which has become known throughout the country because of its wonderfully scenic location, will open July 1. Inquiries that have been received in Hood River as to the means of reaching the summer resorts on the north side of Mount Hood and the accommodations afforded indicate that an unprecedented number of persons will spend their vacation at the mountain this season.
Oregon people are showing a more decided interest in their great mountain every summer and the peak is always an object of great curiosity to visitors from the East. It is the opinion of travelers generally that Hood is the most beautiful and at the same time the most rugged mountain on the Pacific Coast, and that very few mountains in the whole country can equal it.
Every summer some scores of people who have been in the habit of going to the beach for their vacation come instead to Mount Hood, and invariably they are delighted by the change. It is now becoming understood how comparatively easy of access the mountain has been made.

In variety of interesting features afforded, a vacation spent at the seacoast is not to be compared with a week at Mount Hood. A morning train brings the visitor from Portland to Hood River. From here a delightful automobile ride of 24 miles through the famous Hood River Valley is enjoyed and then a stage is taken for four miles of steep mountain highway that embraces a wealth of scenic beauties.
Six thousand feet above the elevation of the Columbia River, the ride ends at the edge of a living glacier, a source of never-ceasing wonder to the savant or the pleasure-loving vacationist. Below lies the forest, with a vista of foothills and valley beyond, while high above towers the majestic mountains.

The tired traveler may have his fill of grandeur while taking his ease; or if he be of adventurous turn of mind, here are experienced guides to conduct him to the top of the mountain. Rare specimens of native flora attract the botanist in the deep canyons; varying rock formations and the effects of glacial action supply interesting studies for the geologist, while the artist is overwhelmed by the number of subjects that invite his brush or camera.
Climbing expeditions are monotonously frequent during the summer months; yet the man or woman who can't boast having climbed Mount Hood is entitled to respectful attention in any Alpine club.
Mount Hood is becoming more generally known throughout the country. It is the opinion of many that within a very few years tourists will come from the East with the sole object of visiting and climbing Oregon's famous mountain.

PINE GROVE.
The Ladies Aid will meet with Mrs. Newman Friday afternoon of this week.
Rev. Black, of Dufur, occupied the pulpit last Sunday morning. Rev. Wood, of Belmont, will hold a service next Sunday morning.
Dr. Sweetland, after visiting a few days with friends, returned to his business in Salem Thursday.
Johnny Johnson's people are entertaining friends from Portland this week.
Miss Gladys Davis is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Davis.

Francis Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lewis, arrived Thursday morning of last week from Fargo, N. D.
Mr. and Mrs. L. Sonneman, with their little girl, returned from Peoria, Ill., Monday evening.
August Paasch is entertaining his brother from Minnesota.
The road meeting at Grange Hall was well attended Wednesday evening.
Miss Jennie Down, of Hood River, visited friends in the community a few days last week.
Joy Mason is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Mason.
Mrs. Wagner, mother of Mrs. Martin Dragseth, returned to her home near Wilsonville, Oregon, Wednesday.

Beginning May 7, Hotel Wau Gwin will serve special Sunday dinners.
