DATSON URGES COUNTY TO IMPROVE DEE ROAD

G. B. Datson, the government engineer, who has charge of the force of men now at work on the trail that is being cut through the Lost Lake region around the base of Mount Hood, was in the city again last Thursday securing supplies for the two camps on this side of the summit and to take back with him an additional dozen men to push the work to completion as soon as possible. Mr. Datson thinks the work will be completed by October 1.

"We now have about a hundred men at work on the trail," said Mr. Datson. "The engineers have finished staking off the way and they are being rapidly followed by the axemen and pick and shovel gang. The actual trail is only about 18 inches wide. Although a width of timber more than 10 feet is taken out and the earth above the trail is excavated enough so that there will be no slides."

The engineer says that the route for the county to follow, in order to connect with the trail should be that along the big ditch of the Dee Power & Irrigation Co., which runs with but a very slight grade from the lumbering town of Dee almost to the end of the government way. He says that efforts will be made to secure a larger appropriation from the government next year, and such being the case the work of building a permanent road will immediately begin. This county, he adds, should improve the highways from Dee, in order to make the transportation of supplies by the government more easy.

The Sunny Side of Broadway.
The story of "That Nifty Song Show," "The Sunny Side of Broadway," book, lyrics and music by Boyle Woolfolk, reveals a real plot.

It deals with a young up-to-date college chap who has been fired from Yale, and who is engaged to a young girl named Flossie Ring. His father, a wealthy banker and mine owner, from Calumet, Michigan, has put his foot down on the marriage, his reason being that he thinks she is an actress, but he doesn't tell his son that. She is not an actress, however, it being her sister, Gloria Ring, who is the actress. The son and his sweetheart, in order to get around the old man, take Flossie's sister, Gloria, into their confidence and she agrees to try and win the old man over for them. When the father arrives the son introduces him to Gloria, calling her Miss Bell, at her request.

The father being so down on his son's experience at college, says if he can find two men who have learned something besides football, smoking cigarettes, and dirting with actresses, he'll give them each a swell job running a mine. The son tells two of his college chums about this so they can get the jobs, but in the meantime catches them flirting with his sweet-heart, and to get even with them and at the same time play a joke on his father, he meets two Irish laborers and a Hebrew, and gives them some money to buy some college suits and sends them up to New Haven to meet his father.

The instructions the son gives them brings forth much laughter, as does the scene where the two Irishmen return from a practice football game that the other two students have gotten them into to beat them up for getting the jobs away from them.

The father catches one of the Irishmen making love to Gloria when by this time he has become infatuated with and calls the jobs off with them. Gloria then acknowledges that she is not Miss Bell but Miss Ring and an actress. The father changes his mind about actresses immediately and is also relieved to find that George, his son, is not engaged to her, but to her sister who is not on the stage. His son then comes in, the father tells the son that he is going to marry Miss Ring, and George says, "Let's make it a double-wedding, Pop. It takes two rings at a double wedding and here is the other," and introduces his sweet-heart, Flossie Ring.

The father then agrees to set his son up in business in New York, and he, in return, to square himself with the two Irishmen, promises them jobs as night watchman and office boy, and all return to "The Sunny Side of Broadway."

Will appear at Monroe Opera House one night, Friday, Sept. 1.
