SAID SHE WOULD FAINT

Mrs. Della Long Unable to Stand On Her Feet More Than a Few Minutes at a Time.

Pendergrass, Ga.—Mrs. Della Long, of this place, in a recent letter, says: "For five or six years, I suffered agonies with womanly troubles. Often, I couldn't sit up more than a few minutes at a time, and if I stood on my feet long, I would faint. I took Cardui, and it helped me immediately. Now, I can do my work all the time, and don't suffer like I did. Take Cardui when you feel ill in any way—weak, tired, miserable, or under the weather. Cardui is a strength-building tonic medicine for women. It has been found to relieve pain and distress caused by womanly troubles, and is an excellent medicine to have on hand at all times. Cardui acts on the womanly constitution, building up womanly strength, toning up the nerves, and regulating the womanly organs. Its half century of success is due to merit. It has done good to thousands. Will you try it? It may be just what you need. Ask your druggist about Cardui. He will recommend it."

N. B.—Write to: Ladies' Advisory Dept., Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. For Special Instructions, and 48-page book, "Home Treatment for Women," sent in plain wrapper, on request.

A SONG OF THE SPUD.

SING about the soaring spud That wings its way toward heaven; 'Tis proud 'e'en though it springs from mud— A dollar buys most seven; Then smite the drum and twang the tyre For the spud that keeps on climbing higher.

The farmer raises fancy things, A Burbanked line of fruit; He's scientific, now, by jingal And gives plain crops the boot; And so we see potatoes soar And pause awhile, then soar some more. Oh, speed the day when from the ground The plain old stuff will spring, When less and less praise will resound For some new seedless thing; Then for more spuds, joy to relate, No man will fear to pass his plate. —Denver Republican.

For Art's Sake.

"Look pleasant," said the photographer. The sitter raised his eyes and gave a sickly smirk. "Your head just a little more to the left, please," suggested the voice from the black shroud. "No, don't move the eyes." "Like a man suffering from a stiff neck or an Eiffel tower collar, the sitter tilted his head gingerly till it reached the desired angle and he remembered a dying fish trying not to mind. "That's very nice—very nice, indeed," said the photographer. "Stay just there while I make the exposure." He moved the cap as he spoke and counted out a minute and three-quarters. "Thank you, sir," he then observed. "You can get up. I'm afraid you've been sitting on your hat."

"My hat!" roared the sitter angrily, regarding the fattened felt. "Why the dickens didn't you tell me I was sitting on it?" "My dear sir," protested the photographer blandly, "that would have spoiled your expression!"—Answers.

Proved His Case.

Every one knew Jonathan Skinfint as a millionaire with the exception, so it appeared, of Skinfint himself. He invariably wore the shabbiest of clothes and is reported to have dined one day on a couple of peas and a grape skin. One day an old friend endeavored to persuade the miser to dress better. "I am surprised," he said, "that you should let yourself become so shabby." "But I am not shabby," expostulated Skinfint. "Oh, yes, you are," replied the friend. "Remember your father. He was always neatly, even elegantly, dressed. His clothes were very handsome." Skinfint gave utterance to a hearty laugh. "Wrong," he shouted triumphantly, "these clothes I've got on now were father's."—Ideas.

Immune.

Physicians say that chickens are among the few animals that are free from consumption. And no old hen with a brood of chickens to scratch for ever showed signs of hookworm. —Denver Republican.

Mortal Pride.

Oh, would some power the gift give us to see ourself as X rays see us! It would from many a blunder free us and foolish notion.

One Trouble.

One trouble about giving a man rope enough to hang himself is that he generally uses part of the rope for the purpose of entangling others. —Chicago Record-Herald.

Or Break Him.

Marks-Jack seems bent on matrimony. Parks—Well, if he marries Helen she'll straighten him out all right. —Boston Transcript.

The Dead Center.

"Lead me a dollar, old chap; I got paid tomorrow." "Haven't got it, old scout; I got paid yesterday."—Puck.

Bound to Be Occupied.

"Your life is too sedentary," said the doctor. "What you need is constant excitement." "Well, I guess I'll get it," replied the fair patient. "I'm going to marry a man to reform him." —Philadelphia Record.

Subtle Flattery.

"She had him arrested for kissing her, and he was fined $500." "Yet they are good friends now." "Yes; he announced in open court that it was worth the price." —Pittsburg Post.

THE WITNESS UNDERSTOOD.

At Least He Was Certain He Knew All About It.

A CERTAIN man was under examination by a member of a New York law firm with reference to his qualifications as a juror in an important case, involving a considerable sum of money. "You understand," the lawyer questioned, "what is meant by a preponderance of evidence?" "Yes, sir," the man replied, promptly.

"Let me have your definition of it." "I understand it, I tell you. 'Well, what is it?'" "Why, anybody can tell that." "I would like to have your definition of it." "I know what it is," said the man, hotly. "When I tell you I know what a thing is, I know it. That's all there is about it." "Well, what was the question I asked?" "You ought to know what that was if you've forgot your own questions, don't expect me to remember them for you."

"I don't want to hear any more of that kind of talk," interposed the court. "Answer the question addressed to you by counsel." "Judge, I did. He asked me if I knew what it was, and I said I did." "Are you sure that you know what is meant by preponderance of evidence?" the court questioned sharply. "Of course I am, Judge." "Define it, then." "It's evidence previously pondered." —Green Bag.

A Rosy Rejoinder.

A too convivially inclined young clubman was introduced at a reception last week to a clever society woman whom he understood in some lazy fashion to be a great artist. She was not an artist, nor had she ever made any attempt to be. But the young man, whose wits were apt to go wool gathering at times, thought she was. And he was very anxious to make a sufficiently pretty speech to her. He murmured the usual conventionalities when he was presented, and "You paint, don't you? So many people have told me about it!" he then said ingratiatingly.

The young woman stared at him, looked him severely in the eyes, let her gaze fall on every feature of his perplexed face, gazed her indignation and then she spoke: "If I do," she remarked lightly, "at least I don't make a mistake and put it on my nose." —Philadelphia Times.

Deserving of No Mercy.

"Here," said the policeman after he had hurriedly entered the dentist's reception room, "what's goin' on? You've had a man in there hollerin' bloody murder for nearly half an hour. Why don't you give him something to stop his pain?" "Give him something to stop his pain? My dear sir, you don't understand. I had occasion to take a lady to lunch one day last week—oh, it was a business matter, nothing more—and this chap saw me. Well, the next day he happened to meet my wife, whom he knew before she was married, and he mentioned that he had seen me and wanted to know what the other lady's name was. Of course I—" "Oh, never mind. Go ahead and kill him." —Chicago Record-Herald.

Needs a Monopoly.

Every man has his field of usefulness, but the trouble is he can't build a fence high enough to keep others out. —New York Times.

The Frog Bandit.

"Hands up! Let me have those blue bottle flies."

Maternal Oppression. "Maw says I musn't play with that Griggins boy." "Well, that's all right. He's a bad boy."

"I know it, but she's spoilin' half my fun; I can lick the tar out of 'im." —Chicago Tribune.
