VICTIMS OF TREE SUE FOR DAMAGES
 Mat Douglas and Dave Peck, the victims of the falling tree in the wind storm of March 24, when they were returning to the city just before dark from the country, where they had been working, have each sued the county for damages to the extent of $2000. The accident occurred on the Belmont road near the home of Edward McGregor. The plaintiffs claim that the county was negligent in allowing the pine snag to overhang the road for more than a year. The rig in which they were riding at the time of the accident was demolished and both men were seriously injured. The attorneys for the plaintiffs are Judge A. J. Berby, of this city, and Bennett & Sinnott, of The Dalles. The case will probably be heard in Wasco county. Advertiser Letter List. September 18, 1911.
