VICTOR MURDOCK SCORES PRIVILEGE

Victor Murdock, of Wichita, Kansas, and that states representative in Congress, before a large audience in the Heilbroner hall last Thursday night delivered an interesting lecture on modern political conditions in the United States and especially upon the inner manipulations of the federal legislative bodies at the National Capitol.

The leader of insurgency began his discourse by the eloquent recital of his first impressions of the Hood River Valley. "I like Hood River," he said, "like your beautiful homes, the superb view from Van Horn's hill or knob, the tender verdure of your valley, the shadows beneath your murmuring pines, the ruby, red and wine-colored apples, kissed by the sunshine in your unexcelled orchards, and finally most of all, the cordiality of your people. If I would spend my life in this valley I would sing its praises 24 hours in the day."

"A government has nothing to give. When one man receives special privilege it means another is losing. A favorite of a government also means a victim. Special privilege is the great evil with which the American people must contend. It is ever seeking advantage in the laws, in their administration and in the adjudication of them."

"Such things as this have been the cause of insurgency, which will wage a bitter war, economic and political, against privilege. Many of the officials of the country are bound to the interests. However, let me say that among those who are faithful to the people is Dr. Wiley."

"It is one of the fights of insurgency to abolish machine politics. Yet everywhere is raised the cry that insurgency does not believe in organization. This is an absolute. Every political organization means the self surrender of the individual. I learned one of the principles of organization in my boyhood. I shall never forget it. To illustrate my point I will tell you a story. I was born on the prairie among the boot and spurred cowboys. In the neighborhood was the Patterson family. They had a son, Bud Patterson. Bud was the wonder of the neighborhood. Everybody predicted great things for him. His family thought that he might be president. Well, among the other things that were taught Bud was how to conduct himself at the table. His table manners made his family proud of him. Yet, where the people were dirt poor, Bud's table was set for dinner and it was one of the sorrows of Bud that he never had an opportunity to display his accomplishments. How ever, at last the opportunity came. The most fashionable family of the neighborhood invited the Patterson family to dinner. Bud conducted himself properly through all the courses. The dinner was served. It was eleven o'clock. Bud ate with relish, proud of the fact that he had not made a blunder, when suddenly his tongue came in contact with something that he knew was not a cherry. It felt like a hot iron in his mouth. The hero of the occasion wallowed it around and around in his mouth. He told me about the affair the next day. Finally I asked him: "Well what in the world did you do with it, Bud?" "By George," he finally said, "I swallowed it out of respect for the family."

Now you know and I know and everyone of us knows that at some time in our lives all of us have swallowed something of moment for our parties, be we members of whatever party. But the insurgents do not believe in swallowing everything. The congressman told of his fight relative to the payment by the United States for hauling the mails. When he went to Congress, he said, he found that the railway companies were being paid on the basis of an average daily weight. However, when the law was made in the early days, mails were not carried on Sundays. The mails were weighed every day except Sundays and the sum divided by six. The government was losing five millions of dollars a day. His fight lost in the House and it took an order from President Roosevelt to make the divisor seven instead of six.

In his closing remarks, Mr. Murdock praised the Oregon system of direct primary and vote for the president, he said, would eventually penetrate all the states. When your doctor orders you to stop work, it staggers you. "I can't," you say. You know you are weak, run down and must work as long as you can stand. What you need is Electric Bitters to give tone, strength, and vigor to your system, to prevent breakdown and build you up. Don't be weak, sickly or ailing when Electric Bitters will benefit you from the first dose. Thousands bless them for their glorious health and strength. Try them. Every bottle is guaranteed to satisfy. Only 50c at Chas. N. Clarke.

GERMANY WANTS HOOD RIVER APPLES

Oregon apples are in such demand in Germany that W. Knudel, representing a firm of exporters of Hamburg, was in Portland last week for the purpose of purchasing select stock from Hood River and other districts. "We never have been able to get enough Hood River apples," said Mr. Knudel yesterday. "By coming right on the field those to obtain at least all that the market here will offer. However, the demand for Hood River Spitzenbergs and Wenatchee winosaps is so great that I don't expect to get all I could dispose of. The Germans we consider the Oregon apples the best that can be grown. They are served in the leading hotels and in the best cafes and are in constant demand in fashionable homes. The people are willing to pay a higher price for apples grown in this state than for those grown in any other part of the world. There will always be a market for Oregon stock in Germany and little danger of an excess supply."

Beyond. Away beyond—somewhere, where mystery veils the things we may not know. Will friend meet friend in fellowship and hope revive, lost here below? Oh, starry night, with shadows deep, canst thou those secrets give? Who learned them consulted once, before our age did live? If living soul were launched in space we know not of, so vast its sphere. Nor change its course forever on, we wait, oh soul, wilt thou draw near? What tale tell, what secrets thou hast gathered in thy onward flight. We may not know, we cannot learn till we, like thee, shall take this flight. "It is not for us, poor forms of earth, to know what thou hast earned so well. By constant faith we'll take thy flight—will we the mysteries ever tell? Our throats can leap a thousand leagues, as quick as spirit can it fly. If that's the soul, the spirit form, the good ones—they should never die. Relieved by sorrow and by weep, in purer stream they sure shall flow. Till, christialized by love divine, our faith and love forever grow. And thus we see out and beyond, where other eyes and senses fail: The secrets of this mystic night revealed to us—withdrawn the veil. And know that treasure never found except by those who rend the veil. The great jewel of eternal life, in pure thought, thou shalt prevail. And thus the world, electrified with that of good for man, We crossed the gulf, we made the flight into the mystic land. The seal of death is just a mask that opens up Eternal Life. The spirit then, or purer thought, will lead you thru the shadow night. J. K. McGee—Mosier.

Mr. Hussey, who is a retired shoe manufacturer of Haverhill, Mass., but who has been located on the Underwood ranch for the past two years, was clearing land to be set into orchard.

Marshall Raises Record Crawfords. The young peach orchard of W. H. Marshall about a mile south of Dee has produced a record crop of fruit for the valley this year. From 100 trees last week Mr. Marshall picked seven bushels of peaches, each packed 100 boxes. The fruit which is of the Crawford variety, is being handled by Crocker & De Reiding.

Joke on White Salmon Realty Man. A local land man who has become so enthusiastic that he often goes to the dock to meet prospective buyers, "got his" the other day. He marched up to the dock and handed him his card. The stranger took it eagerly and replied, "How are you old man? I'm after the dirt, all right, just carry this grip up the stairway, please." The excited land man got death grip on the heavy thing, sweat like a steer, bought a couple of 15 cent cigars for his man, when they got up town, set up the soda water, talked farms and ordered the man to give him the deed room in the house. "And now I'll have a team here in a moment—rather warm isn't it? Have another smoke?" The rig came, but when they drove by one of the general stores the stranger asked to be let out and thanked his very hospitable friend. "But don't you want to buy a farm?" "No sir," replied the man. "But you said you were after the dirt." "And so I am—I'm selling soap and washing powder—thanks for your kindness."—The White Salmon Enterprise.
