The royalty of Europe and Asia demands the best in the world of apples, this applies principally to the product of Oregon—Hood River, Rogue River and the Willamette valley. The public which has the money to buy the product of any section, invariably asks for the fruit from Oregon when purchasing the fruit of the fruit from Oregon when purchasing the fruit from Oregon when purchasing the fruit from Oregon when purchasing the fruit from O

Notwithstanding the enarmous crop of apples produced in the eastern portion of the United States and in Europe, there is always a demand for the better quality. In comparison with the prices obtained for a box of Oregon apples, every other section lies low.

To secure a reputation for honest quality and pack, Oregon growers have led the world in improvement in apple culture. Extra fancy apple labels from the leading Oregon sections mean exactly what they say. The fruit is the same from top to bottom and from side to side. Every apple is uniform. Those going out from the better sec-tions under the extra fancy label are not only uniform in size, but are not only uniform in size, but are cause they were strung so close to-marked for colors and the smooth skin is wonderful to look at. #### BUCK DISMISSES CRIMINAL CHARGES

Accompanied by a cartoon depicting a Hood River apple grower handing back to a German straft for apples and announcing to the nations of Europe that he had no more Extra Fancies left, the cartoon entitled "Do Your Shopping Early," the following, written by Hyman H. Cohen, appeared in Sanday's Portland Oregen Journal:

The other day a check for a very large sum of money was returned to certain parties in Hamburg, Germany, by officials of the Hood River Apple Growers' Union.

The more return of the check did overflowing.

The mere return of the check did not signify much to the outside, but to those that are most closely identified with the apple market, the occurrence indicated much.

In the face of the greatest crop of apples produced throughout the world and especially in the United States, Hood River has been unable to supply the demand for its world's famous fruit. While it is true that the crop of apples on the coast west of the United States and especially in Oregon, Idaho and Washington, was comparatively small this season, this deficiency was more than made up by the record production in that section east of the Rockies.

The line of the Hydro Electric Co., for a great distance along the country road, parallels that of the Pacific Power & Light Co. At the Indian Creek bridge but a short distance from the city limits the Hydro Company found it necessary, according to the testimony in order to clear the lines of its competitors, to erect poles 65 feet in height. While making ready to set these long poles on the day before Thanksgiving, a guy-rope fell across the Pacific Power & Light Company's wires and created a flash that, as residents of the city will remember, put the lights out in town for almost thirty minutes. In order to prevent a has only a few thousand of the light overflowing.

the fruit from Oregon when purchasing apples. This accounts for the fact that even if a big crop here there is scrarcely ever a sufficient amount of apples produced to fill all the eastern and foreign demand and leave a small crived from patrons becuse of lack of current, as is alleged, began an investigation. amount for home consumers.

In the world's market for apples, the Oregon product stands in a class entirely by itself. There is no apple from any other section of the world that approaches within sight of the prices that are paid for the fancy stock from this state.

Coived from patrons because of lack of current, as is alleged, began an investigation long the lines and discovered the plugs cut. However, he made no move to have the replaced, although he had had orders to heat the wires. The wires remained without their current of 2,200 volts for about four and a half. and a half hours, and asserting that it was a willful and malicious damage to them because their patrons were with out electrical energy for power and heating purposes for this period, the manager of the company preferred the charges.

Evidence was introduced by the defense, which was represented by A. J. Derby, to show that even though the action had been malicious, because of the fact that the wires of the line were unlawfully constructed no fine could be assessed by law. The testi-mony tended to show that the lines were improperly placed upon the cross arms, and that a workman engaged on
