A Puzzling Applicant.

When newly Mrs. Calderette required a letter of introduction to the benevolent association Jules Dupont, proud of his ability to express himself in English, obligingly helped her out. Imagine the bewilderment of the secretary when a large, robust lady in search of work presented what well meaning Jules had written:

"This is Miss Calderette that I induce wherever to everybody. This lady has been sick for a long time and is still in bed. She has five children, all little and partly dead, and is in very poor condition, as she have no money. Her husband went away two years ago and has not never been heard of since. This man has rheumatism, is a cripple and cannot help herself. This lady is his brother's girl. Help her and she will be very comfortable."

As the sick abed lady could speak no English, she was unable to explain why she looked so well, but the secretary made her "very comfortable" with steady employment in a laundry.

—Youth's Companion.

Just Like Himself.

The chief justice needed all his good spirits, for the severe operation had been a failure and the doctors were hesitating to tell him. The physician stood by his bedside in the hospital, and from his grave expression the patient suspected the truth.

"Well, doc," he said, with a sad smile, "it must have been like this."

He fumbled under his pillow and produced an envelope which had been erroneously delivered in another ward. On the envelope was scribbled in pencil, "Opened by mistake."—New York Sun.

Mighty Jupiter.

Jupiter, the largest of the planets, is 1,300 times the bulk and 310 times the mass of the earth, and accomplishes its rotation on its axis in nine hours fifty minutes. As the equatorial circumference is 275,000 miles, the linear rotational velocity of a point on the equator is nearly eight miles a second.

His Writings.

Kiddler—Do you write for art's sake or for the money? Scribbler—For both. I write for the magazines for art's sake and to my father for money.—Toledo Blade.

The Dear Innocent.

Mother—When he attempted to kiss you, why didn't you call me? Daughter (innocently)—Well, mamma, dear, I didn't know you wanted to be kissed.

Spoke From Experience.

Willie Good—Pa, our teacher says that "collet" and "congregate" mean the same thing. Rev. Mr. Good—Well, you tell your teacher, my boy, that you'd have information that there is considerable difference between a congregation and a collection.—Liverpool Mercury.

Origin of "Canard."

The French name for a duck is canard and a French journal recalls the etymology of "canard" in the pejorative journalistic sense. A Paris reporter once upon a time in the hot weather could find no news and he fell back upon his imagination. He published an account of a remarkable experiment conducted in a farmyard. A farmer took twelve ducklings, chopped one up fine and gave it to the eleven others to eat. A second was chopped and the remaining ten gobbled him up. For eight more days one duckling was served up to the others. At last, when only two were left, one of the two was given to the other to eat. This remarkable experiment resulted, therefore, in the one remaining duckling having eaten up his eleven brothers.

The story of the "Twelve Little Ducks" sprang at once into fame. A "canard" in a newspaper has ever since meant a statement nearer fiction than fact.

Jumping at a Conclusion.

"My wife says that young man with a title is a quondam," said Mr. Cumfox.

"What's a quondam?"

"I dunno exactly, but I have an idea it's French for 'debt.'"—Washington Star.

Hans Lage spent the week end in Portland.

The young man then took his mother's place to attack the joint, and he was followed by his sister for the sweets, all doing justice to the menu. In the crowd the tourists did not notice the unusual lunch, but the head waiter did, and when asked for the bill presented one for four lunches. The patrifamilias grumbled a good deal—and paid!—Geneva correspondence Pall Mall Gazette.
