The injured man, who was a section hand of the railway company, was brought here on the local train and then placed on the west-bound Oregon-Washington Express. The pilot of the Mail Train struck him and knocked him to the side of the track. His body was badly mangled.

Charles Lee Clapp

Failing to rally after having undergone an operation on the evening before for an intestinal trouble, C. L. Clapp, whose home was on Avalon Way, succumbed on Wednesday night, March 13. The fatal attack came on very suddenly and the news of Mr. Clapp's death was a great shock to his many city and valley friends. Funeral services were conducted Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Eastman chapel by Rev. James K. Hargreaves, pastor of the Heights Baptist church. The body was laid to rest in Idlewild cemetery.

Charles Lee Clapp, the son of Leonard and Jane Chamberlain Clapp, was born at Salem, N. Y., in the year 1854. At the age of three years the family moved to Iowa City, Ia., where they remained a few years, later removing to Jersey county, Ill., where his parents made their home and where the deceased grew into manhood.

Mr. Clapp came to Nebraska when the Indian reservations in that state were being opened by the government. For about 23 years he made his home near Beatrice, and it was there, December 29, 1877, that he met and married Miss Laura Walker. They continued their home near Beatrice and were blessed with three children. While the children were still small the family moved to Oklahoma, seven years having been spent in the state, a part of the time on a homestead in Kiowa county and a part at Newkirk. From Oklahoma the family came to Wyoming, where Mr. Clapp engaged in sheep raising until four years ago, when the family came to Hood River and the Avalon Way home was purchased.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Clapp leaves surviving a son, three daughters and a brother and sister. The children are—Harry, Vivalee, Edna and a baby daughter, Mrs. J. R. Voorhees, the sister, lives in Ohio. The surviving brother, D. C. Clapp, recently removed from here to California.

Mrs. Margaret Rebecca Swick

While visiting her son, William Swick, of Avalon Way, Mrs. Margaret Rebecca Swick, was seized with an attack of pneumonia last week. She had been in ill health for several months. Her death occurred Monday morning. Mrs. Swick was 69 years of age. She leaves surviving in addition to her son, a sister, Mrs. Mary E. Mitchell. On the same night that Mrs. Swick died, her son's wife received news of the death of her father, Mr. Franklin, whose home was near Heppner, Ore.

Mrs. F. T. Thomas

Mrs. F. T. Thomas, of the west side, who was suffering from an affection of the mastoid bone on her head, died at the Cottage hospital at three o'clock yesterday morning. Mrs. Thomas leaves surviving, in addition to her husband, several children.

McFarland-Yates

The news of the wedding last week of Miss Eva Yates, who last summer removed from here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Yates, to Portland, is of much interest to her many friends here. Miss Yates is a niece of Mrs. Chas. T. Early.

The Sunday Portland Oregon Journal contains the following account of the wedding:

A 6 o'clock a. m. wedding party gathered at St. David's Episcopal church last week when Rev. Henry Russell Talbot officiated at the wedding of Miss Eva Yates, lately of Hood River, and Dr. Frank McFarland of Portland. The ceremony, which came as the culmination of a romance begun in high school days, was witnessed by parents of both bride and groom and a few relatives and friends. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Yates. Mr. Yates was postmaster at Hood River for many years and Dr. McFarland is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McFarland, who attended Hill Military academy and North Pacific Dental college. Immediately after the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. McFarland left for Seaside. After March 29 they will be at home, 1178 Belmont street.

Dynamite Charge Hurts Stone

Workers digging the excavation for the new storage building of the Davidson Fruit Company had failed to properly blanket with heavy grounders the charge of dynamite touched off Friday afternoon, and when the explosion occurred two fragments of flying stone were hurled over 100 feet, one crashing through the plate glass window of Pifer's bookstore on Cascade avenue, and the other into one of the third-story rooms of the Hotel Oregon. Although broken glass was shattered over the clerk at the bookstore and he was badly frightened, no damage other than the broken window and a scarred counter resulted.

Well Trained Class Entertains

Displaying an exceptionally good training, the elocution class of Mrs. Louise Boyden in their recital Monday evening entertained an appreciative audience at the Baptist church, on the Heights. Those taking part in the entertainment were: Miss Hunt, Miss Calkins, Mrs. Carmichael, Miss Hartley, Miss Stranahan, Miss Taylor and Master Seobie. Variety was lent to the occasion by the beautiful musical selections of Mrs. Henney and Mr. Epping. The audience displayed their deep appreciation by the applause given the pupils and by their apt attention evidenced when Mrs. Boyden read selections from Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables."

Unitarian Church

A feature of the services at the Unitarian church next Sunday will be the Victoria concert to be given by Rev. H. A. MacDonald in the evening. Selections will be given on the following musical world favorites: Tezzazzini, Schumann-Hotik, Melita, Homer, Abba, Caruso, Scotti and McCormack. Prof. J. O. McLaughlin will deliver an address that evening on "New Trends in Education."

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our kind neighbors and sincere friends for their love and sympathy during the sad hours which came to us the past week.

Mrs. Laura Clapp and family.

LAWRENCE DISCOVERS CAUSE OF ROT

Spores' dormant period these diseased areas increase in size very slowly, although the fungus penetrates to the cambium in which it may spread considerably beyond the area of the superficial canker, but with the advent of the warmer weather in spring with its induce physiological activities, they may increase in size readily until under favorable conditions the disease may invade an area several inches in diameter by the latter part of May. At that time the increase in size of the canker spot and the energies of the fungus are, therefore devoted wholly to the production of spores. At that time the diseased areas are dark brown in color, markedly depressed, and usually limited by ragged, irregular fissures which separate the dead from the surrounding living tissues. These dead spots vary in size from those not more than one half an inch in diameter to extensive areas three or four inches wide by six or eight wide.

"The spores being so small and light are readily carried long distances by the wind, and may also be carried by birds and insects." During the summer months the spores, which burst their way through the bark, are held in place by a gelatinous matter which the fall rains melt and thus the spores are released at a time of the year when it is most conducive to their germination.

Growers Build Storage Houses

In addition to the companies that are building and increasing the capacity of storage warehouses, a number of private growers are erecting buildings to facilitate the handling of their crops. Thomas E. Avery will construct an apple house to cost the sum of $2,500. It will have a capacity of 8,000 boxes. Lawrence & Smith, who took a number of prizes at the local apple show and the Portland show from their ranch near Otell, have begun the construction of a house to take care of their crop.

Here's Your Car-- at the Right Price

After you have looked all through the Motor Show and seen all the 1912 Models you will have a pretty definite idea, especially after you have seen the very high priced cars, as to what features you want in "your" car. The next question is where can you get all these desirable features most economically.

Of course you will want a car with a self-starter. The days of cranking are over. No car nowadays is up-to-date without this convenience.

You will want a car with a long stroke motor. That's another trend of modern design. You want a four forward speed transmission. Nearly all the high priced cars have this feature. And demountable rims. Big wheels and tires. Cellular radiator. Carburetor dash adjustment.

Then, too, you will want a comfortable, convenient car. A beautiful car. One handsomely finished; well upholstered.

With these features in mind, we invite your attention to the $1800 Chalmers "Thirty-Six." It is the one car at the show selling at a truly economical figure which includes all these features. We question whether there is any other car at no matter what price that has all these desirable features.

By noting the good points of many cars you will be able to decide what "your" car should be. Then when you examine the "Thirty-Six" you will say "Here it is--at the right price."

Chalmers "Six" $3250; "Forty" $2750; "30" $1500.
