VALLEY PRODUCES EXCELLENT WHEAT

That the Upper Hood River Valley will produce excellent wheat has been demonstrated this year by the crop grown by the young orchard south of Dee. The wheat has made an excellent growth. It has been cut for hay. The grain meshes have been well filled out and are heavy enough, experts say, to return a yield of 60 bushels to the acre.

Two varieties have been planted on the tract, one a tall yellow chaff wheat, the other known as the blue stem. The seed was secured from eastern Oregon. The later variety has not grown so tall, but has the better filled heads.

Fins, Furs, and Feathers.
Portland is renowned from Shanghai to London for its crayfish. Down at the Quells, where a reputation has been made for serving the succulent fish, the guests are served with a tablecloth for a napkin and a finger bowl that will hold two gallons of water. All of this preparation is necessary; for when one begins to eat crayfish, the noise made in the operations of the repast are similar to those generated by a negro eating watermelon. And as the coon gets the melon on his seat and the back of his head, so is the crayfish epicure liable to mishaps. The juice just naturally flies, when one reaches the crustacean apart. Those who are experienced in crayfish dinners are said to wear automobile goggles.

But this prized food is not limited to Portland. A number of Hood River people have located the haunts of the crayfish right here in the Hood River valley. Several streams are said to be pretty well stocked with the shell fish. J. A. Epping knows the camping grounds of several colonies, which he visits regularly for the purpose of giving the lectures on proper methods of living that they may later furnish food for a banquet. Mr. and Mrs. Epping entertained a number of friends last Friday evening at a bridge party, after which the "piece de resistance" was comprised of crayfish.

Game Laws Will Be Revised
All members of the tribe of fins, furs, and feathers are hereby warned to sit up and take notice: for the state board of game commissioners have declared their intention of making drastic changes and revisions in the laws governing the state's game and fish. Revisions in bills will be submitted to the next legislature.

The state board of fish and game commissioners have undertaken a thorough revision of the present system of the game laws. The idea is to present a code for adoption at the next legislature which will give more complete protection to fish and game and correct numerous errors in the present system of laws. The commission desires in making up this new game code to get a thorough expression of public opinion before the code is presented to the legislature. For this reason the members of the commission ask that residents in different parts of the state, especially farmers, fruit growers, as well as sportsmen, send in any suggestions so that the commission may act upon them. Suggestions are also sought from the granges, commercial bodies, rod and gun clubs and other organizations, in order to get a game code suitable for different parts of the state.

All communications and suggestions should be sent to J. F. Hughes, Secretary of the Fish and Game Commission, Salem.

Judge A. J. Derby, W. L. Clark and the latter's son, Newton, left Sunday for Hunter's Cabin, a noted point on the Lake Branch of Hood river. They carried camp equipment and will spend three weeks in the alluring wilds.

The fishing on the Little White Salmon near Cooks, Wash., is said to be excellent. Last Thursday Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Parker of Mitchell's Point, accompanied by Miss Gertrude Dillon, Mrs. Parker's sister, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Conger, journeyed across to the scenic stream by motor boat and spent the day angling for the trout. They caught about 20 of the big handsome fellows that make the pools there their haunt.

The ranchers of the West Side are up in arms. With dogs and the family freemas they are giving chase to a big bear that has come out of the Green Point hills to seek spring chicken and cultivated berries. The brain was seen for the first time by Bob Shinn, who is on Appleton, the Osborne place on the Green Point road. The big fellow had climbed Mr. Shinn's back-sloped culinary department and was entering the room of his sleeping quarters, when he awoke. The episode occurred at night. Bob admits that he went over a widow sill in the same way that a frightened frog makes for the pool of water beneath its favorite bank. The tails of his night shirt fluttering a farewell in the night breeze frightened the bear, which knocked over the stove in making a retreat.

July 20 will be trout planting day in streams around Portland. Game Warden Finley notified the officials of the Multnomah Anglers club that 1,000,000 trout, rainbow, cut-throat and eastern brook, were ready to be shipped from the Bonneville hatchery to stock adjacent streams.

The fish will be put in milk cans and there will be 100 fish in each can, each weighing in the neighborhood of 100 pounds. There will be 1000 of these cans.

Mr. McFarland is secretary of the Anglers club and would be pleased to hear as soon as possible regarding the different streams around Portland.

The cans will be shipped to the nearest railroad point and they will have to be transported thence by wagons to the streams.

It is also announced by the Oregon Fish Commission that 6,500,000 trout would be planted in the Oregon streams during the remainder of the summer.

Secretary Ray E. Scott has written for Hood River county's pro rata share of the moneys, which should be received here on next Saturday.

Pathfinders Explore Country
Scouring interior Oregon, picking out the best routes for a flying squadron of automobiles that will make the run to Lakeview late in August for the convention of the Central Oregon Development League, is a party of men interested, headed by C. C. Chapman, secretary of the Oregon Development League. This pathfinding trip is occupying two weeks of strenuous road finding and map making.
