Tragic and Romantic Episodes In Its Historic Career.

DEADLY BATTLE WITH A MOR

The Bloody Climax to the Attempted Raid by the Lord Gordon Ristore-A Financial Coup That Was Spoiled by the Duchess of Mariborough romantic a history as that pertaining to the Bank of England, the "Old Lady One of the bloody episodes in the history of the bank is that embraced in the story of Charles Walter Godfrey, one of its early partners in the bank 36 32 It appears that Godfrey while crossing 4 74 the channel in the midst of a regrific 41 60 storm and laden with £60,000 to drafts for the aid of King William, who was just then besieging Namur against the forces of Louis XIV., insisted upon his 10 45 right to deliver the warrant for the money into the hands of the king, then 21 00 in the trenches under hot fire. As he tanded the document to the king, say-ing, in response to William's growl of 2 52 remonstrance, "Am I, then, more exposed to danger than your majesty?" 4 72 a cannon ball swept away his head. Not so very many years ago there stood over the massive fireplace in the directors' room of the bank three rusty specimens of the old "Brown Bess," together with a number of roughly 35 40 shaped bullets. In these relics was embodled a picture of the November night in 1780 when the mob of Gordon rioters marched down from Newgate, setting fire to every Catholic chapel on the way and advancing with a force of 5,000 upon the bank itself. The cierks, armed with muskets, were unprovided with shot. Before them lay rows of leaden inkstands. suggesting the possibilities of a new use. In less than half an hour the inkstands had been melted and turned into bullets. The muskets were loaded. At every window of the bank 25.28 stood two marksmen, their guns train-103 65 ad on the mob below. Yet the rioters came on until they were within ten yards of the bank gates. Then sharp and clear above the frightful din rose 3.76 the order to fire, and from the winlows poured a deadly volley. When the smoke finally cleared away 250 tay dead or dying in the open space now covered by the esplanade of the Royal Exchange. The attacking army wavered, stopped, broke line and fled. and the Gordon riots were at an end. During the first part of the reign of George II. It was the practice of all banks to give a receipt in payment of a deposit, the receipts being passed from hand to hand and serving the same purpose as the check of today. At that time Childs' bank, a private concern, which had the backing of a great part of the English nobility, exalbited such signs of future greatness that the Bank of England became greatly alarmed, especially in view of the fact that the "Old Lady's" notes little by little, through their agents. the managers of the Bank of England bought up every receipt bearing the Childs signature, allowing the collections to accumulate each year until the time should be ripe, during a shortage of gold, to present the receipts in one great mass for payment. It was deemed a certainty that Childs' would not be able to meet the demand and would The principal figure in the drame that ensued was no other than the famous Sarah Jennings, is whom Childs bank found its stanchest supporter One night there came a wiid clanging at the bell of the great gate of the town of Blenhelm-s clanging that soon awakened every one in the town. A white faced, travel stained man stag gered into the ducal hall, begging an audience with her grace. When the duchess, in her dressing gown, appeared, demanding to know the reason for this unseemly visitation, the man explained that the Bank of England held the Childs' receipts in the amount of £620,000, that those receipts would be presented for payment at noon following, that there was not at Childs' enough gold to meet them, that un-less the demand could be satisfied within eight hours Childs' was ruined and that there was but one person in the world-her grace to whom they might

Whereupon the redoubtable duchess ant down and wrote out a check, which she banded to the agent. It was an order on the Bank of England for the payment of £700,000. He was instructed to take this check to the Bank of England and to say that if it hesitated for a single instant in paying it the duchess would proclaim it as a de-

At 12 o'clock that day there appeared at the Childs' counter an agent of the Bank of England bearing a big bag ful of receipts and blandly suggesting immediate payment. At the same mo ment the Childs' agent was in Thread needle street receiving cash on the theck of the duchess.

The cashlers at Childs' naturally took their own time in scrutinizing the receipts, spending fully half an hour over the first batch alone. They were at the end of the first hundred when their messenger arrived. Then they quick-ened the procedure a little, and within ten minutes the Bank of England had been paid in its own coin. The net result was that Childs' was many thousands of pounds richer.-Harper's.
