Bradshaw Decides in Favor of Plaintiffs in the case of Jesse Davidson and

Walter Davidson, plaintiffs, against E. O. Reade, defendant, Judge Bradshaw decides in favor of the plaintiffs. This was a suit brought by the plaintiffs to mjoin the defendant from interferring with the water flowing from a spring n government land near the Moun Hood post office, which water was of prior appropriation and adverse us-ige. The defendant had recently made filling on the water with the state engineer while the plaintiffs had used the water for irrigation purposes for sev-eral years, but had made no filing with the state engineer. The defendant having failed to make a filing on the water with the state engineer they were not entitled to the same. How ever, the court sustained the plaintiffs intention, holding to the old rule that first in time was first in right and per-petually enjoined the defendant from interferring with the water. Attorney S. W. Stark represented the plaintiffs and George R. Wilbur the defendant.

Whisker after whisker followed name after name and the faces of the men began to look like the contour of a moulting hen.

Then the Jew selected twelve whisters and giving them a jerk uttered through his teeth: "The Twelve Disciples!"

It was almost too much for the Irish it was almost too much for the Irishman. He opened his fists and the Hebrew was for a moment in danger of a good licking. However, he held himself and then, seizing the remaining beard of the Jew, with a downward beard of the Jew, with a downward tug that almost jerked his head off, shouted; "The Ancient Order of Hibernians!" He won.

It was suggested that a mimeograph machine should have been carried along and a daily newspaper issued. This would have added to the merriment. The following are a few of the amusing occurrences.

Friday morning C, K. Marshall, to whom much credit is due for the arrangement of the tents, found that he meeded some gasoline in his automobile tank. He got a galvanized pail and sieging a merry lay is the early morning tefore but a few were out of their blankes, went down to the power house and lorrowed a bucketful of buzz wagon juice. On the return to this camp he was whistling "Get up, Oh, John, John, John; for the Old Grey Goose is Gone and the Fox Ran Through the Town." Just as he warbled off the third John, he stubbed his right to on a projecting root. The bucket of gasoline went up and came dwn and drowned the song.
