A large and appreciative audience heard the story of "The Man Who Spoiled the Music" at the Methodist church last Sunday evening. Jack, the man in the story finds that through drink he has been spoiling the music of those dear to him and after sinking to the very depths in his remorse he makes good resolutions and lives them so well that we find him helping to make the sweetest music where before he had only spoiled the music of others. The story as told by Mrs. J. E. Ferguson was interspersed with songs, old time favorites and new, by the following double quartet, Mrs. C. G. Chapman, Misses Viola Mapes, Blanche Lafferty and Margaret Nichols and Messrs. Noel Davis, Harold Sexton, Lloyd Moss and Loren Gates, whose singing was a very enjoyable part of the program. There was also an appropriate solo by little Miss Martha Ferguson. The accompaniments by Horace Sylvester, violinist, and Miss Eva Boyd, organist, were beautifully rendered. We believe the listeners will agree that this was a temperance lesson in song and story told in an appealing and entertaining manner.
