beauty of the route was still incomparable, the green of the trees and the greys and browns of the cliffs sharply

Express Company Not Unfriendly contrasted with the cliffs sharply contrasted with the white of the snow patches. Always scores of dashing waterfalls tumble from the top of the gorge to the water's edge of the Columbia. The melting snows increased the numbers to hundreds and the silver thread of cataracts have been viewed with delight by passengers during the past few weeks.

Hood River people and transcontinental travelers admire the gorge in springtime, when every crag is abloom white of the dogwood. The array of sautumn colors, the golden vine maple and purple foliage of Oregon grape can never be forgotten. Yet, at no time of the year is the wenderfully scenic region more replete in its splendor than when touched by the white of the

Clubwoman Now Here

The Glenwood, Is., Woman's club, is noted the country over for the civic improvements it has instituted and the perfect accord in which the men of the city work with the women. A charter member of the organization is Mrs. W. F. Laraway, of this city, who was an active worker of the club for 14 years. She was chairman of the first social committee of the corganization. The club recently celebrated its twentieth anniversray with a banquet about which the Mills country Tribune.

The Glenwood, Is., Woman's club, is noted the country over for the civic ism of the parcel post, devoting their time and attention towards the continued of the efficiency of the company's service to the public.

With its enormous resources and vast commercial interests, this country is large enough for both express companies and the parcel post. Each will serve the public in its respective capacity, and the conclusion can safely be drawn that the shipping community will carefully consider the benefits derived from the service rendered by both systems, utilizing that which best twentieth anniversray with a banquet about which the Mills county Tribune,

WORK ON BIG DAM PROGRESSES RAPIDLY

From the fjords of frozen Norway to the palm lined ways of Mandalay, "Where the sun comes up like thunder out of China cross the bay," the eye of man has never feasted on more splendid and gorgeous natural scenery than that of the Columbia river gorge between Hood River and Portland.

The side of the rugged gorge, with its trees, its stones and pinnacled crags, is awlays beautiful but never more so than during the past two weeks, when a covering of snow has been piled in the canyons, on the rocks and the boughs of the fir trees. On and the boughs of the fir trees. On days when the snow fell steadily in big, heavy flakes that hung upon the boughs of the trees the passengers on the line of the O.-W. R. & N. seemed to be gliding through a snow white fairyland. And after the snow had been blown from the tree boughs the beauty of the route was still incompar. structed of iron. Last week the cons truction company, Stone & Webster, was threatened with a strike of its
