What a Woman Says.
Singleton—I want to ask you a question, old man. Wedderly—Come on with it. Singleton—Does a woman always mean what she says? Wedderly—During courtship she doesn't, but after marriage you bet she does.—Chicago News.

Possibly.
Henry—Do you think she would accept me if I should propose? Ethel—Why, of course. She has accepted lots worse looking chaps than you.—Exchange.

Next Step.
Ruler—Children are now raising their parents. Boeker—The next generation will engage in parent study.—New York Sun.

He that voluntarily continues ignorant is guilty of all the crimes which ignorance produces.

The Supremacy of Verse.
Gray's "Elegy" was not much esteemed by its author, who in one of his letters said that "the public would have received it as well had it been written in prose." The poet was a poor critic, for the third line of the first stanza achieves the supremacy of verse. There can scarcely be another to equal it in English literature. "The plowman homeward plods his weary way." Now, that line is such a supreme verse that you may recite it this way and that and it is still as good as ever:

The weary plowman homeward plods his way.
Homeward the weary plowman plods his way.
Weary, the plowman homeward plods his way.
The plowman, weary, plods his homeward way.
Homeward the plowman plods his weary way.
The plowman plods his weary homeward way.

And so on. But if it is not poetry it is the supremacy of verse.—London Chronicle.

Trick of a Flash of Lightning.
Lightning plays some peculiar tricks at times, but we have never heard anything to come up to the following which the Melbourne Age property is bels "Extraordinary Incident":

"A young man, while riding through the timber country at Willing during a recent storm, had a remarkable escape from death in peculiar circumstances. A large tree directly in front of him was struck by lightning and split in halves. The horse he was riding, becoming terrified, started to plunge and jumped through the gap between the halves of the tree. At that moment the halves came together and crushed off a length of the horse's tail, which was still seen protruding from the tree. The young man received a severe shaking, but otherwise came through the ordeal safely."

His Special Treat.
The vicar of an east end parish is telling a queer little story that illustrates the relations between husband and wife in that quarter of London. He was returning home late one night when he overtook a man who was violently abusing and ill using a woman. The poor woman was coming off very badly and she had already got a damaged eye when the clergyman went up and remonstrated with the man on his behavior. For a moment the blows and abuses were stayed, the man being too surprised at the interruption to continue. Then, to the astonishment of the peacemaker, the ill used woman signed to him to go away. Wiping her eyes with her shawl, she informed him soothingly:

"It's all right, sir. Let 'im be. I'm 'is wife, and it's 'is birthday"—London Answers.

Didn't Half Try.
Father—How's this, Harold? I hear you have been as bad as you could be today. What have you got to say for yourself? Small Harold—Please don't believe all you hear, papa. I could have been a whole lot worse.—Chicago News.

SPIRITISM SAID TO BE DEMONISM.

A most interesting little brochure has recently come off the press setting forth with Bible proofs that the communications received by and through Spiritist Mediums is of Demon origin. The writer traces his subject through the Scriptures from the time when certain of the holy angels became disobedient. He proves from the Scriptures that these fallen spirits personate the human dead, with whose past history, spirits, though invisible, are thoroughly acquainted. He shows that they also frequently personate the Creator and the Redeemer, commanding their deceived ones to pray, do penance, etc. This, however, is merely to lead them on and to bring them more thoroughly under demonic control. Sometimes by breaking down the natural barrier, the human will, they possess their victim, and rule him more or less to his ruin—frequently sending such to the mad-house. Numerous illustrations, Scriptural and otherwise, are given. The price of the little book is but five cents; it should be in the hands of all interested in Spiritism or who have friends interested therein. Enclose stamps to the Bible and Tract Society, 17 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Holy Wars by Moslems.
There has been no universal war by Moslems on unbelievers since the early days of Mohammedanism. It has been supposed that not only the Sultan, an office now claimed by the sultans of Turkey, can order a general war or jihad, but as the Persians and the Moors, who are Mohammedans, do not acknowledge the spiritual authority of the Ottoman sultan and look to their own rulers for their cue in such cases, it is not at all likely that there will ever again be a jihad. Holy wars have been proclaimed by the mahdists, as was the case in the Sudan in 1882, when "Chinthee" Gordon was murdered at Khartoum, but there has been no real war between the followers of the prophet and the infidel dogs since the early times when Mohammed was establishing his power.—Argonaut.

Verbosity, Ocity and Ocity.
She was a young woman, famous for her command of the English language, also equally well known for having people follow her wishes. She visited a friend and described her plans. The friend, made garrulous by embarrassment, declined to fall in with the proposition and floundered around for half an hour in a sea of oocytes and explanations. This was very much for the girl with the command of language. She ended the interview with this stinging denunciation:

"Verbosity, Ocity, aldehydity!"—Popular Magazine.

The Surest Way.
"Is there any way you can suggest by which we can cure her of her infatuation for him?"
"Oh, yes; that's easy. Just—"
"I mean without letting her marry him?"
"Not that I know of."—Houston Post.

Much in Little.
"Pop, what does autum in parvo mean?" "Autum in parvo, my son, is Latin and means—er—well, haven't you ever seen a fat woman in a bathing suit?"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Effective.
"I've got a new attachment for the family piano," said Mr. Grumbler, "and it's wonderfuf!"
"What is it?"
"A lock and key."

Sensible Advice.
Bill—What are you carrying a cane for? Jim—I'm having a dance of a time for water on the knee. Bill—Why don't you try wearing pumps?—Lippincott's.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK GROWS IN COUNTY

"This has been our most successful convention," said Mrs. J. E. Ferguson, who was re-elected to the presidency of the County Sunday School Association, Saturday afternoon. "The number of students attending Sunday schools has increased very rapidly in the past two years. We now have 26 schools in the county, and in addition to our regular annual convention, which closed this afternoon, we have held three district conventions at the following centers: Cascade Locks, Odell and one in this city. We had a special Sunday school rally at the Horticultural Chautauque this summer, and all in all we are very gratified at the increased interest on the part of the young people and parents."

Mrs. Ferguson has been interested in Sunday school work in the state for many years. She served for seven years as president of the Clatsop county board and has been president of Hood River county's board for the past two years.

Delegates have been present from all of the Sunday schools of the county. A luncheon was served them Saturday. One of the chief addresses of the day was delivered by A. A. Morse, of Portland, president of the Multnomah county association, who has been one of the state's most ardent Sunday school workers for the past 20 years. His son, F. M. Morse, city engineer here, is vice president of the local county organization.

"Mr. Morse started me on my work," said Mrs. Ferguson. "It was he who proposed me for the state board. There were eight men, all residents of Portland, and myself on the board at the time."

C. A. Phipps, secretary of the State Sunday School Association, delivered an interesting address, telling of his visit to Zurich, Switzerland, where he attended the World's Sunday School Convention last spring.

"The Sunday schools of Oregon have made rapid strides in the past seven years," said Mr. Phipps. "Today every county has a well organized association, and all of them are conducting efficient work in Bible study."

Mrs. S. W. Ormsby, of Portland, delivered an address telling of the increasing interest she found in all parts of the state in her work as assistant secretary of the state association.

Other officers elected for the ensuing year were: P. M. Morse, vice president; Earl K. Bartness, secretary; A. B. Cash, superintendent of teachers' department; Miss Grace Torrey, superintendent of secondary department; Mrs. Anna Edgington, superintendent of primary department; Mrs. C. L. Morse, superintendent of the home department; and Rev. J. B. Parsons, superintendent of temperance department.

Beautiful selections were rendered during the convention by the newly formed Philharmonic orchestra. Mrs. Ralph Root sang a number of solos.

For Children there is Nothing Better
A cough medicine for children must help their cough and colds without bad effects on their little stomachs and bowels. Foley's Honey and Tar exactly fills this need. No opiates, no sour stomach, no constipation follows its use. Stuffy colds, wheezy breathing, coughs and croup are all quickly helped, and sweet refreshing slumber instead of feverish tossing at nights. It is easy therefore to understand why an increasing number of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is sold yearly. For sale by Chat. N. Clarke.

O. A. C. HEN C-521 LAYS MOST EGGS

(From the O. A. C. Barometer)
Hen C-521 has thrown the 291 egg-champion that was into the ex-champion class. Hen C-521 on Wednesday completed her first year's work. In that time she had laid exactly 293 eggs, each being perfect in size and shape, a truly remarkable record.

This hen comes from the same flock to which C-543 belonged. There are 40 hens in all in this flock, every one of which has produced well over the 200 mark, five of best, including the two champions, averaging over 280 eggs.

In an interview, Prof. Dryden, chief of the poultry department of the college, said, "We set out six years ago on the theory that the big problem in the poultry business was to increase the egg laying capacity of the fowls. In other words, how must we breed chickens in order to get a higher egg yield from them?"

In his work Prof. Dryden wandered from the well formed line of procedure in breeding for fancy points, and bred for egg laying ability. He chose for breeding purpose only the best layers and from them built up a new race of birds, breeding and inter-breeding. In time he arrived at the point where he could mate birds, both of whom had an ancestry of high egg layers.

In order to make his new breed or race of birds of highest practical value, Prof. Dryden has not surrounded them by extraordinary conditions, but has only given them the care and attention that any commercial poultry raiser would give. His production is therefore, entirely a matter of breeding for a definite purpose.

Prof. Dryden has been requested to place the new champion on exhibition, but refused to do so, as he fears some injury to the hen. It is his desire to build up a permanent race of birds from these high record hens that will be of distinct value to the egg producers of the state.

In the comparatively short time Prof. Dryden has been at the head of the O. A. C. poultry department, he has by this work of breeding up a new race of heavy layers done more for the state than the state can repay. The census report for 1910 showed that the egg production of Oregon more than equaled its entire apple production in value. And when it is taken into consideration that most of these eggs were produced at a loss because of the low efficiency of the average hen, the value of Prof. Dryden's patient and systematic work can be understood.

Would Make Them Better if They Could
The makers of Foley Kidney Pills know that they absolutely the best combination of curative and healing medicines for kidney and bladder ailments and urinary irregularities that it is possible to cure. Mrs. O. Palmer, 635 Willow St., Green Bay, Wis. was seriously ill with kidney and bladder trouble. Mr. Palmer writes: "My wife is rapidly recovering her health and strength due solely to the use of Foley Kidney Pills." You cannot take them into your system without good results. For sale by Chat. N. Clarke.

Three Varieties in One
Of all the peculiar specimens of fruit that have been reported in different northwestern districts this fall no more unique apple has been seen than that exhibited at the store of W. F. Laraway and grown on the ranch of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Dumble. It is "three in one." The Spitzenburg, it having grown on a Spitzenburg tree, predominates. However, there are two segments that are respectively of the Arkansas Black and Orley variety. The coloring of these varieties is perfect, and the dividing line is clearly drawn. Experts say that the time may come when such an apple will be produced as a novelty for the fancy trade.

Saved His Foot
H. P. Ely of Bantam, O., suffered from horrible ulcer on his foot for four years. Doctors advised amputation, but he refused and reluctantly tried Bucklen's Arnica Ointment as a last resort. He then wrote: "I used your ointment and my foot was soon completely cured." Best remedy for burns, cuts, bruises and eczema. Get a box today. Only 25c. All druggists or by mail, H. E. Bucklen & Co., Philadelphia or St. Louis.

Frankton Defeats Barrett
In the first of the series of six basket ball games that will be played between the Barrett and Frankton schools this winter, the team of the latter was victorious by a score of 17 to 9. A keen rivalry exists between these two neighboring institutions, and large crowds attend the games. The first game was played at Barrett. The Frankton line up was as follows: Carl Copper, Capt., and Neil Nonemaker, guards; Harry Hoskins, center; Claude Stahr and Elmer Anderson, forwards; and Clarence Stahr, sub.

The Barrett lineup was: Walter Reginald, Nat Scroggins, forwards, Wade Robbins, center, Clarence Hale, Harry Sonneckson, guards.

Stops Falling Hair
Hall's Hair Renewer certainly stops falling hair. No doubt about it whatever. You will surely be satisfied.
