When subscribers desire a change in address this office should be notified promptly, and a week before if possible. Always give old address as well as the new. Also, Hood River subscribers should notify this office at once when changing their address from one rural route to another, or from city delivery to country delivery, or vice versa. If you do not get your paper promptly, notify us by mail or telephone and the matter will be investigated.

TURN OUT FOR ELECTION

From interviews that we have recently had with representative growers of the valley, the trend of popular opinion has turned against the City of Utility. It is true that the initial and primary reason for the formation of a new municipality in the valley, the lowering of light and power rates, caught many, who were carried away on the popular tide, before a comprehensive view of the proposed plan was had. It may be, and no doubt is, a fact that lighting and power rates are too high, considering the possibilities for cheap development on the Hood river. Materialization of the plans of those promoting the City of Utility will not lessen them. Even though the new town were to furnish light free of charge, it would so burden itself with attendant expenses that the light and power secured would be a dear luxury.

But are we going to be electioneered by the result of the election on April 20 by the way people are at present talking? Are all of those who are opposing the City of Utility going to turn out and go to the polls? From the fact that the proposed plan will dig into their pocketbooks, we think that most of those who are interested in property in the bounds of the proposed new town and who are opposed to the scheme will vote against it.

The election of April 20 is going to be a heavy expense to the valley. The mere maintenance of an election board, of course, does not amount to much, but remember that the residents of the whole 36 square miles will be called on to spend a day away from their work in expressing their views. If the election carries, before the necessary machinery of a city can be put into motion other elections just as expensive must be held.

THE ROAD PETITION

The petition asking the county court to assist the citizens residing in the west end of the county along the Columbia river is meritorious and the court will be making no mistake in granting it. While it is true that the expenditure of money called for will be a small step toward securing a completion of the Columbia river highway through Hood River county, just for the moment forget that such a thing as the Columbia highway ever existed. While a comparatively few of the residents of Hood River county live at Wyeth and Cascade Locks, that few have no way of reaching the count seat by wagon road, and yet, as their petition shows during the six years' history of the count the two road districts west of the city have contributed $40,000 worth of tax money. An almost imperceptible amount of this money has been expended in the districts raising it. It is not just that these citizens of Cascade Locks and Wyeth receive the favor asked for at the hands of our county court? We shall watch with interest their decision in the matter.

GOOD ROADS DAY

Governor West has promised that April 25 will be set aside as Good Roads Day in the state. Men, women and children will be asked to devote their time and efforts on that day toward not only making better highways in the state, but toward arousing a spirit of good roads that will continue the work throughout the years to come. Earnest work on the part of the state's population will improve many stretches of bad road on April 25. Many dollars worth of work will be done. But perhaps the greatest good will result from the desire for better highways, which the day's work will inspire.

Local folk are already taking interest in the "Good Roads" day. Mrs. C. D. Hoyt, of the Oregon Mothers' Congress, had mailed letters to members of the Parent Teachers Association, who will be urged to assist the men on that day and to encourage them with expectations of good things to eat and words of cheer.

Will baldheaded men have to wear hats when the city council's new moral ordinance goes into effect? It would have been perfectly proper if the municipality election had been held yesterday.

One Sifted Humor. After the Council had gone Mrs. Mason said to her husband, "What on earth did you mean, John, by telling the Phlegmatics that my humor was positive but not negative?" "I meant," said Mr. Mason, "discreetly moving toward the door, 'that you could make a joke, but couldn't take one'."

That's What They All Say. "All men are alike. They're deceitful and selfish."

A HISTORIC BELL

From the Guerriere to the Constitution, Then to a Mill. One would hardly expect to find an object of historic interest in so prosaic a place as a New England mill—an object older than the oldest title of the English peerage, an object made before the English parliament was formed. Yet such an object is in daily use in a factory at Saylesville, R. I. It is a bell, whose history is a most interesting one. Around the bell, about four inches from the crown, is this inscription: "Peter Seest Amsterdam, Anno 1263, me fecit."

The date, together with other well authenticated facts, leads to the belief that the bell was long used in a convent in England and was taken therefrom for public use during the reformation. But the connecting link between its life in the old world and its advent to America is the famous naval battle between the Guerriere and the Constitution.

The Guerriere, a helpless wreck, was rolling in the trough of the sea, while her brave but defeated commander, Captain Decres of the royal navy, on the deck of the American frigate, the Constitution, was offering his sword to gallant Captain Hull.

The two officers had been friends in time of peace, having often exchanged hospitalities at the Mediterranean ports, and now Hull's magnanimity shone out. "I'll not take your sword, Decres," said he. "Keep it."

In the meanwhile the boats of the Constitution were busily engaged in transporting the crew of the defeated ship to the deck of the victor. A midshipman reported to the first lieutenant that the ship's bell had been carried away by a grapeshot from the Guerriere and that there was no way of announcing the time to the ship's company.

At that moment the Guerriere gave a succession of heavy plunges, and the clear tones of a fine bell rang over the water. "Go get the Englishman's bell," said the lieutenant to the midshipman. "There will be no further use for it on board that craft."

The Guerriere surrendered at 7 o'clock in the evening of Aug. 19, 1812, and at 8 o'clock the same evening Peter Seest's bell in sonorous tones rang out the hour on board "Old Ironsides."

With the lapse of time the bell, amid the confusion and debris common to a great war yard, became misplaced, lost its identity and was thrust carelessly to one side. It found its way to the scrap heap, was afterward sold by the United States and finally came to rest in its present quarters.—Boston Post.

AN ANIMAL IN PAIN.

It Suffers Less Than Man on Account of Its Low Intelligence. It is a platitude that "pain is a one feels it." But that statement fails a considerable way short of the truth. The measure of pain undoubtedly depends as much upon realization, comparison and constructive memory as upon sensation. In other words, the individual with the most highly developed imagination enjoys and suffers most intensely, though not perhaps most violently. Pain and death are terrible in proportion as one is capable of relating them to experiences. To children they are not terrible in this sense, because children have small experience and even smaller powers of imagining relations. In the case of animals the power of constructing a memory picture and relating the same to present conditions is probably exceedingly low, if not entirely absent. Pain to an animal represents an unpleasant experience beyond its mental grasp. It is unrelieved. It has no social or moral significance. It is not terrible in the wide sense. An animal lives from moment to moment. At any given moment its happiness is a question in the main of physical comfort. The caged sylvan, though it must not be supposed that this is any defense of an objectionable practice, experiences none of the misery of the caged man. It does not know that its liberty is hopelessly lost. It cannot relate its present position to past experiences in the way in which a prisoner can and must do. The cage is merely an accidental obstruction which may at any moment disappear. Should the bird stop struggling it does so because struggling is unpleasant, not because it is hopeless.—London Chronicle.

Highly Practical.

"Your business college for young ladies seems to be all right." "It is all right." "Do you give the girls a good practical business training?" "In reply to that question I can only say that 60 per cent of our graduates marry their employers the first year." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Plains of Argentina.

The roads of the plains of Argentina have deeper dust in summer and deep mud in winter than those of any other part of the world, consequently the wagons used on them have wheels that are from six to fifteen feet in diameter.

Chilly Text.

Mother—Tommy, what was the gold on text at Sunday school today? Tom (who lives in Alaska)—Let me see. Oh, yes. "Many are cold, but few are frozen."—Judge.

Unitarian Church

Your attention is called especially to the two evening services next Sunday. At 4 p. m. M. Morrison will open a discussion of the "Personalities of the Political Candidate." At 7:30 Mr. MacDonald will speak on "The Romance of Science." The program consists of a violin duet by Mr. Newman and Dr. Sharp, a piano solo by Ella Nichols and a vocal solo by Mrs. J. M. Schmelzer. All are invited.

But Light.

Cholly—I have something on my mind, Wobabit. Robert—Stop a minute! Sure enough, there is a cobweb on top of your head.—Baltimore American.

GROWERS MAKE SEED CONTRACTS

Growers all over the valley responded promptly to the announcement made in the Glacier last week that E. B. Cloud and J. R. Newton, of the new company, desired experimental plantings of peas and beans to determine just what varieties would be most suitable for canning. The canners are prepared to furnish seed for an acreage of 50 acres and will agree to buy the seed raised in the experiments at the rate of four cents a pound for beans and about three and one half cents for peas. A large part of this acreage was contracted for during the past week and the remaining portion should be taken up this week, as the planting season is about due and the distribution of seed will be made at once. Growers are also requested to furnish an estimate of what they will have in the fruit line for the canners. Phone the secretary of the Commercial club or address Messrs. Cloud and Newton, care of the Commercial club.

ONE BED FOR THE COURT.

It Was a Big One, Though, and Held All Its Numerous Members. The first courthouse of Henry county, Ill., was a frame structure, eight feet by fourteen, set in the midst of an uninhabited prairie. But as little villages began to spring up in the county a lively contention for the honor of being the county seat began. Cambridge finally won, for it was nearest the center of the county. This was in the forties of the last century. The first session of circuit court was at hand and Cambridge was on its mettle to entertain the court suitably. The difficulties to anything but plunger courage and resourcefulness would have seemed insuperable. The village consisted of eight or ten little dwellings, a tiny general store, a blacksmith shop and a carpenter shop. The new courthouse was unfinished, but would be used, as the session fortunately fell in the summer. Now the housewives laid their heads together to contrive how the court—officials, litigants and witnesses—should be lodged and fed. There was almost nothing that could be bought, except sugar, molasses, tea, coffee and flour. But they had an abundant supply of yellow-legged chickens, home-cured hams, milk, eggs, butter and cream, as well as their vegetable gardens to draw on. There was no fresh fruit, but they brought out their cherished stores of wild plum marmalade and wild crabapple preserves. Both were made with molasses and after they had sufficient time to season were really delicious. Besides, the hillsides were pink with the beautiful wild-wood sorrel, the leaves of which make delicious pies in skillful hands. The village boasted one group of forest trees, a small grove of sugar maples, half a mile away, and in their shade Mr. Atwater built a long table with sawhorses and boards. With the combined stock of table linen, crockery and cutlery possessed by the housewives the table was laid with sufficient elegance, according to pioneer standards. It was felt that the court would be properly feasted, but how about lodging? That was the real difficulty. The tiny houses and their beds were full to overflowing with their proper inmates. But there was the left of the carpenter shop. The store had a whole bolt of unbleached muslin. It was torn into lengths equal to the length of the left and sewed together by hand, of course. Then the left door was covered deep with clean shavings; the immense sheet laid over them and tacked to the walls all the way round. On this Brodwingman bed the court lay in two rows. From the extra supply required for winter enough quilts were mustered to cover the sleepers. As for pillows no one gave a thought to those offensive luxuries. The lawyers might lay their heads on their saddlebags or their rolled up coats and be thankful.

Reasons Why You Should Use Riches Piver & Co. Lead Arsenate

It is a high poison lead and will kill the larger leaf eating insects and codling moths. It will not burn the foliage nor matter how thickly put on it is practically free from water soluble arsenic oxide—the principle that causes burning. It is very finely divided and has the greatest covering and sticking power. It will readily mix with other sprays without impairing the efficiency of either. It is impossible to make a better or more efficient Lead Arsenate. It does not become hard if moisture evaporates. For sale by Hood River Apple Growers Association. 416

SMUDGING

With an early apple season coming on it is well to prepare for frosts. Straw is the cheapest medium to use and in case it is not needed it can be used for bedding and later turned under the soil for fertilizer. Accordingly the investment is small and not lost whether it is used for smudging or not. We have a good stock on hand but will early orders so that stock can be held. Kelly Bros. Phone 1401. 42041
