D. A. KILE IS SUICIDE VICTIM

David A. Kile, whose tragic death was reported last week, a telephone message from Trout Lake, Wash., where the man had been employed since August at the Skelley saw mill, having brought the meager facts that he had been shot to death in a quarrel, was, according to later authentic information, the victim of his own hands. Mr. Kile had recently lost a sum of money in business transactions, and worry over this, his friends say, caused him to commit suicide.

Mr. Kile's funeral was held here last Friday afternoon from the Bartmess Undertaking chapel, interment following at the Idlewilde cemetery. The services were conducted by the Odd Fellows of the city and valley. He was a native of Tennessee and 42 years of age. His wife and seven children survive. Mr. Kile was for five years located in the Upper Valley. He had had charge of the place of William Rodenheiser, who so mysteriously disappeared a little more than a year ago. He was an industrious man and was respected by his neighbors, who were shocked at the news of his tragic death.

The following letter, to his wife and sons, was found on his person:

"Oct. Thursday, 21—1914.

"Dear Darling: This act is not for anything you have done. I think you and the boys can get along better without me, so don't worry. I have not done anything disgraceful, but there is too much in me I can't stand it any longer. To the boys:—Be good to your mother. There is a little money in the bank. Edgar you take charge of everything. You are the best boy I ever saw. Lloyd, you and Felix be good boys and don't none of you grieve after me. I can't help what I am about to do. Do what you think best about that land at Parkdale.

"D. A. Kile.

"Them teams is all paid for."

There is an error in the date line of the letter. Instead of Thursday, Wednesday, the day of the tragic death, was the 21st.

FIRE DESTROYS EAST SIDE APPLE HOUSE

Catching from some unknown source the apple house of Phil D. Atwater, of the East Side, was destroyed by fire Wednesday night of last week. In addition to packing apparatus about 1,000 boxes of fruit were destroyed. However, Mr. Atwater fortunately had the lot covered by insurance.

The apple house was near Mr. Atwater's barn, and it was only by the hardest work that the latter building was saved from destruction.

Just Little Stories

A visitor with an aptitude for conversation and yet a man who likes his ease recently dropped into the blacksmith shop of W. G. Snow. He chatted with the smithies, as he gradually worked his way toward the base of a big triphammer. Several pieces of waste were scattered on the floor beside the hammer foundation, and pretty soon with a grunt of satisfaction, the chattering man was seating himself. He settled into position, not knowing he was placing his whole weight on the foot lever that operates the trip hammer. With a final grunt he settled down, leaning his head back against the hammer's anvil. As soon as the lever, on which he was sitting, was pressed downward, the trip hammer was started to work. Boom! Boom! Boom! sounded the thump of the enormous hammer. The conversationalist was just dwelling on topics concerning the European war. His imagination must have worked wonders; for, from the leap he made getting out of the shop he must have thought one of the big German siege guns was in action.

The man never takes a seat around a blacksmith shop any more.

Bee Business Buzzing

Oregon bee keepers have just completed gathering the 1914 honey crop. According to the Bureau of Crop Estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture, the yield per colony of bees was 45 pounds. In 1913 the production per hive was 40 pounds.

The increase in production is said to be due to the enormous crop of wild flowers this season.

The latest census figures of the bee and honey industry of this state relate to 1910. That year there were 8,861 farms in Oregon that kept bees and the total number of colonies was 47,285.

Why Not Publish It?

When you want a fact to become generally known, the right way is to publish it. Mrs. Joseph Kallans, Peru, Ind., was troubled with sour stomach and frequent headaches. She writes, "I feel it my duty to tell others what Chamberlain's Tablet's have done for me. They have helped my digestion and regulated my bowels. Since using them I have been entirely well." For sale by all dealers.

Laraway Quick With Harvest

Percy B. Laraway, manager of the East Side place of Laraway & Son, made a record harvest of his apple crop this year. Mr. Laraway last week finished his picking and had all of his fruit hauled to the big new community packing house on the Guttery place.

Toned Up Whole System.

"Chamberlain's Tablets have done more for me than I ever dared hope for," writes Mrs. Esther Mae Baker, Spencerport, N. Y. "I used several bottles of these tablets a few months ago. They not only cured me of billious attacks, sick headaches, and that tired out feeling, but toned up my whole system." For sale by all dealers.

BEAUMONT ELOQUENT IN DESCRIBING VALLEY

(From the Portland Spectator)

"When the Great Architect conceived this universe he might have created a more beautiful spot than the Hood River valley—but didn't," said Dr. John F. Beaumont, owner of a fine orchard tract in the famous Hood River district.

"The Cascade mountains divide into two ranges at Mount Adams, each finding its rugged way farther and farther from the other, until they embrace the fertile and beautiful valley of Hood River. Then they gradually come together in a binding clasp at Mount Hood, with that majestic peak barring solidly the southern union of the ranges. The snow peaks at either end stand sentinel over the valley. On that comparatively small spot you will find a more perfect combination of soil, sunlight and shades, air drafts and gentle breezes, than can be found in any other part of the world. There isn't a like area on the two hemispheres that is so well known, and it is because of the apple that the valley is so far famed. Go anywhere—you will hear of the Hood River valley and its great apples.

"The inhabitants of Hood River valley are a thrifty lot of retired merchants, bankers, and professional men from all parts of the world. They make a huge success of fruit growing by applying the same business principles to their work that brought about success in their former fields of endeavor. They comprise a community of highly educated, happy, and prosperous horticulturists, getting from the Hood River valley the pure joy of life, returning to it energy unbounded, and again taking from it bountiful crops of fruit and a livelihood.

"The culture of apples by these men is an extensive scientific study. The daily care of the orchard trees is carried out with as much tenderness and as much enthusiasm as a nurse would use with a patient. These facts account for the production of Hood River apples. If you will put the same amount of energy, and a reasonable amount of money, into apple growing that you put into any other class of business, give it your time and are steadfast in your purpose, your result will be certain. Combine this with your financial success, and you will find life in the Hood River valley worth living.

"The entire valley is one large intellectual community. A percentage of college graduates predominates in the social and intellectual life. In Hood River we have a University club of more than 150 members; alumni of practically every large school in the United States and Europe. We have a large Musical club. The eligibility rule is that one must have been a professional musician. And noted musicians are not lacking in Hood River. Franz X. Arens, conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra, spends the summers on his Hood River orchard.

"Now that the Columbia highway is nearing completion, Hood River's fame will be enhanced beyond conception with the traveling public. Motorists from Portland are sure to find the trip to Hood River a most delightful way of spending the week end."

Your Fall Cold Needs Attention.

No use to fuss and try to wear it out, it will wear you out instead. Take Dr. King's New Discovery, relief follows quickly. It checks your cold and sooths your cough away. Pleasant, antiseptic and healing. Children like it. Get 50c bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and keep it in the house. "Our family cough and cold doctor" writes Louis Chamberlain, Manchester, Ohio. Money back if not satisfied, but it nearly always helps.

Gift Car Passes Through City

The baggage car of the O.-W. R. & N. Co., carrying the gifts of Oregon people to New York, where they will be placed on board the Christmas ship, which will carry them to the children orphaned by the European war, passed through the city Tuesday night. The railroad company is carrying the gifts free of charge.

Many Hood River children have contributed gifts to gladden the poor European boys and girls on Christmas morning. The Christmas ship campaign was first promoted by the Chicago Herald. The Portland Journal has waged a campaign for it in this state.

What Would You Do?

There are many times when one man questions another's actions and motives. Men act differently under different circumstances. The question is what would you do right now if you had a severe cold? Could you do better than take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy? It is highly recommended by people who have used it for years and know it's value. Mrs. O. E. Sargent, Peru, Ind., says, "Chamberlin's Cough Remedy is worth its weight in gold and I take pleasure in recommending it." For sale by all dealers.
