We have secured for distribution a publication entitled "Oregon Laws Made plain." Quoting from the preface of this book:

"This abridgment of the Laws of the State of Oregon is not designed for the use of lawyers, nor is it the aim of the author to make every man his own lawyer. The more general provisions of our statutes should be, and are, of interest to the great majority, if not all, of the people of the state, and it is with the idea of assisting them in gaining such information that this compilation was prepared.

"It cannot be supposed that in the brief space permitted in a work like this, all of the provisions of our laws can be set forth with exact detail, or that full and complete information can be given, yet, in so far as it purports to state the law, it can be relied upon. It is hoped that the statement of statutory rights, duties and obligations will prove of service to those for whom it is designed."

We will be pleased to present a copy to anyone calling at our office, or we will mail a copy to any address on receipt of four cents covering cost of postage.

COUNCIL HAS A WARM SESSION

TWELFTH STREET WORK VEXES

Payment of Bill Causes Tie Vote--Petition Calling for Tobacco Ordinance is Presented

The Monday night meeting of the city council was one of the most spirited of the year. Since it was first proposed, the Twelfth street improvement has been a thorn in the side of the city fathers. The residents owning abutting property recomputed against the payment of assessments, declaring that the new surfacing should be paid for out of the general fund. Their protests, however, were unavailing. The discussions of Monday night revealed an interesting situation among the members of the council, themselves, as to payment of a bill of $2,190 to the Transfer & Livery Co., who were awarded the contract of surfacing the street.

When the street work came up, the council faced one of two alternatives--either to hire a substitute for City Engineer Morse, who was busy at that time with work in the water department, and let the substitute take over the work, or to employ an engineer to supervise the street work. The latter course was chosen, and Murray Kay was employed to supervise the building of the street. However, when Mr. Kay was asked to take over the street work, he stated that he would not continue in charge of the task according to the specifications as given. The specifications as drawn provided for a surfacing in the center of the street, but that the street should be dressed tapering away to a feather edge at the curbs. It was advised that the dressing would be of no benefit, and the street was improved with the material being of a thickness of four inches at the curbs, the center remaining the same.

A delegation of Heights people were at the Monday night meeting of the council to protest against acceptance of the street. J. H. Gill addressed the body stating that the surface was peeling up in places.

It was then that the council decided to visit the street Friday morning and inspect. Murray Kay addressed the city fathers and stated that the street had been accepted, but that it had been provided that sufficient funds be held back to pay for the completion and to care for defects that had been reported.

Councilman Bell suggested that Councilman Stranahan, a liveryman, be made to furnish the city fathers with an automobile to take them to the scene of the inspection.

The street was visited until toward the final part of the session, when bills were being allowed. The bill for $2,190 was among the statements rendered the city. It lacked the o. k. of members of the finance committee.

Councilman Bell favored the immediate payment of the bill. He stated that the ordinance calling for the street provided that the specifications could be changed if the city engineer so desired. He pointed out that the work needed that the specifications as drawn up by Engineer Morse would have given but little real benefit.

Councilman Franz, ending his remarks by the unqualified statement that he would not vote for the bill, declared that the bill had been run up without authority of the council.

Councilman Stranahan took the floor and stated that the change had been made by authority. He said that City Engineer Morse had turned the work over entirely to Engineer Kay and that the council had given the street committee power to act in the matter.

During the informal discussion, Prof. J. O. McLaughlin, who was present at the western Fruit Exchange, was asked and asked if the council conducted all of its business in such a manner. His query drew the united fire of the body on himself. "I assure you," he said, "that the school board does not do business that way." They are always fighting," was the remark of a councilman.

The councilmen had taken Prof. McLaughlin's remark to mean that he was criticizing the inflexible attitude of the council. He, however, explained that his criticism was directed against the method of incurring the Twelfth street extra expense. "I make my criticism as a taxpayer," he said, "but I appreciate Twelfth street since its improvement; I travel it."

The matter of payment of the bill, deducting $300 to be held back until the defects were mended, finally came to a vote. Franz, Cannon and Bell voted against payment, while Bell, Stranahan and Culbertson favored it. The buck was passed to Mayor Reed, who questioned City Attorney Wilbur as to the legal status. Mr. Wilbur, who stated that he had not heard of the matter and would not render an opinion until he was fully conversant with all facts, suggested that the matter be tabled until it could be fully investigated. As he stated, there was some possibility of the contractor having overstepped his authority.

"While I believe the city is liable and will have to pay the bill at some time or other," said Mayor Reed, "after hearing Mr. Wilbur's remarks I will vote no."

Dr. C. H. Jenkins, of the city school board, and Prof. J. O. McLaughlin presented the council with petitions, signed by many citizens, declaring that the council draw an ordinance, supplementing the state laws governing the use of tobacco by minors and school children. The petitions were referred to the judicial committee, who were instructed to bring in the desired ordinance.

The fire and water committee recommended that C. F. Sumner be allowed to build a corrugated iron automobile shed on his property at the corner of State and Third streets. The recommendation was adopted.

The fire and water committee, through Councilman Culbertson, announced that the city was investigating the purchase of an electric siren to be used in giving fire alarms. This was announced after the discussion of a bill of $43.50, the expenses of last Sunday's fire on the Heights. Councilman Bell thought the bill was too heavy, but was satisfied by the statement of Fire Chief McGuire who stated that all of the firemen were present, although they were unable to render any effectual service. HOOD RIVER FOLK ENJOY LAND SHOW

On last Thursday morning 112 Hood River citizens were at the local O.W.R. & N. station to board the early morning Dalles local for Portland, where the day was spent in participating in the pleasant events attendant on Hood River day at the great Land and Manufacturers' show. The railway officials and those in charge of the trip had only planned on about 75, and it was necessary to hold the train for about 15 minutes while the amiable crowd secured tickets. The crowd was supplemented by local folk already in Portland, and Portland people who are interested in the Hood River valley. Two hundred sat down at the luncheon at the Hotel Benson.

W. L. Clark was toastmaster at the luncheon and responses were made by the following guests of honor:

S. Benson, good roads philanthropist; L. W. Buckley, manager of the Land and Manufacturers' show; O. L. Clark and Geo. M. Hyland, of the Oregon World Fair Commission, and Robert G. Dieck, members of the Portland Board of Commissioners. Mr. Dieck is a local orchard owner.

Thursday evening Mr. Buckley was host at a dinner at the Portland Hotel. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Root, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Henney, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Raylin, Mrs. E. D. Kanaga and A. P. Esteban, the latter, who was formerly a Hood River resident, being a member of the board of the land show.

At the regular weekly luncheon of the Progressive Businessmen's Association at the Hotel Multnomah, Hood River was represented by J. H. Heilbronner, president of the Commercial club, Truman Butler, J. A. Epping and Otto Wedemeyer. Mr. Epping and Mr. Wedemeyer captivated the Portland business men by their songs, and Truman Butler delivered a rousing Hood River speech.

At the Armory Theatre Thursday evening Hood River musicians, Mrs. Ralph Root, Mrs. C. H. Henney, J. A. Epping and Otto Wedemeyer, rendered one of the best programs during the show. Mrs. Root, Mrs. Henney and Messrs. Hoose, Emerson, Whipp and Bowman, the latter being the members of the Portland Ad Club Quartet, rendered the Sextette from "Lucia," which has always won so much praise at Hood River's musical fetes during the past two years.

Many of the local people remained in Portland till Friday, a number stopping at the Hotel Benson.

N. W. F. EXCHANGE HAS NEW REPRESENTATIVE

C. M. Furry, the Yakima valley representative of the Northwestern Fruit Exchange, and L. E. Schmitt, from the offices of the Exchange at Portland, are here looking over the Hood River valley and attending to some business pertaining to the Northwestern Fruit Exchange.

Mr. Schmitt will remain in the valley and will look after the Northwestern Fruit Exchange, taking the place of J. C. Skinner, who has severed his connection with the Exchange. Mr. Furry is sent here by the head offices of the Exchange at Portland to look after the transfer and to get Mr. Schmitt started in his work here.

Mr. Schmitt has for the past several years been engaged in the growing and packing of fruit in the Wenatchee valley, and is still interested there, having an interest in a bearing orchard. For the past several months he has been connected with the Exchange in their general offices at Portland.

Neither of the fruit men had ever visited the Hood River community. "We are well pleased," said Mr. Schmitt, "your district has always been a leader in pack, and our other districts have been kept on the dig to keep up. I was surprised to see Hood River so hilly, I was always under the impression that it was a flat, rolling country."

ODELL EVAPORATING PLANT IS BURNED

The new evaporating plant recently installed by Taylor Bros. at Odell was destroyed by fire Thursday night of last week, the flames, being discovered shortly before midnight. Odell citizens living near the two-story building in which the evaporator plant was operated, rallied to the scene and saved a part of the machinery. The building was a total loss. One end of the stone store building recently vacated by the Consolidated Mercantile Co., was badly damaged. But for the efforts of the citizen firemen, who were aided by a heavy downpour of rain, the latter building would in all probability have been a total loss also.

The fire started between the walls of the building, caused, as is thought, from a spontaneous combustion of dust. The structure was formerly used as a grain warehouse, and much of the wheat stored there contained smut, the very inflammable dust that has caused so many fires of harvest equipment in northwestern grain districts the past summer.

The evaporator may be rebuilt. A mass meeting will be held Saturday evening at the Odell schoolhouse. If it is found that the growers have a sufficient quantity of apples to justify the expense, the reconstruction work will begin at once.

BANKERS WILL MEET HERE

GROUP 1 CONVENTION SCHEDULED

Local Men of Financial Circles Will Entertain Visitors at Club--Industries To Be Visited

The bankers of Hood River are making preparations for the entertainment next Saturday of about 60 members of Group No. 1 of the State Bankers' Association, who will hold their annual group convention here on that day. Every effort will be made to make the stay of the bankers a profitable and pleasant one. Group No. 1 of the State Association is composed of Tillamook, Columbia, Clatsop, Yamhill, Washington, Clackamas, Multnomah and Hood River counties. Addresses will be delivered by prominent bankers of Portland.

The visiting bankers will be the guests of honor at the luncheon to be held at the rooms of the Commercial club. Leslie Butler is chairman of the local committee arranging for the convention. The most of the visitors will arrive on the O.W.R. & N. noon train. The session will occupy the afternoon, and a number of the visitors will return to their homes on the O.W.R. & N. train No. 17.

As much time as possible will be devoted to showing the visiting bankers the plants of local industries. The Apple Growers Association warehouses, the plant of the Hood River Apple Vinegar Co. and other places.

The principal addresses of the convention will be as follows: H. W. Hawkins, of the Portland Trust & Savings Co., a paper on the Central Reserve Act; Superintendent of State Banks Sargent, a paper on legislation pertaining to state matters; and Mr. Miles, clerk in the International Revenue offices in Portland, an address on the new war tax and the income tax.

BOYS' CONFERENCE WILL BE SUCCESS

From the interest already being shown, the ninth annual State Old Boys' conference to be held at McMinnville, Nov. 27-29, promises to be one of the largest and most profitable conferences ever held. Numerous inquiries and requests for programs and credential cards have already been received at headquarters.

Some 700 programs and credential cards were sent out Nov. 5 to last year's delegates, club and class leaders, Sunday school superintendents and high school principals. Anyone who should have received cards and programs and did not may obtain them by writing to Guy E. Needham, 305 Y. M. C. A. building, Portland, Ore.

The program this year is to be a strong one. Every effort has been made to form a program suited to the needs of all classes of delegates. During the conference there will be separate and distinct discussion periods for high school delegates, for Y. M. C. A. delegates and for Sunday school delegates each under the leadership of trained specialists in that line of boys' work.

A new feature of the program this year is a men's meeting to be held at the same time as the mass meeting for boys on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This men's meeting will be held in a local motion picture hall and will be addressed by C. C. Michener, of the Food Products Co., Hillsboro. Mr. Michener as at one time a student secretary on the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association and was a great force in the college work of his territory.

ENGLISH WEEKLY GIVES WAR NEWS

Mrs. J. M. Schmeltzer left at the Glacier office last week a copy of "The People," a weekly London newspaper. Naturally, the greater portion of the English paper was taken up with news of the war. The usual daily bulletins of the war were very different from those appearing in the American newspapers. The interesting columns of the paper dealt with items of a local interest to our readers. One page was devoted to a call for smoking tobacco, cigars and "plug chewing" for the boys at the front. "The People" has been devoting a publicity campaign for donations of tobacco for the soldiers.

Some of the advertisements of American product are interesting to American readers. Copy is displayed calling attention to the merits of an American made cereal, and there is "no increase in price" states the advertisement.

U. OF O.--O. A. C. GAME SATURDAY

College spirit will have full vent next Saturday afternoon, when the annual football struggle between the University of Oregon and the Oregon Agricultural College is to take place on the field of the Aggies at Corvallis. A new gridiron, filled in, arched and turfed this year, is being fended and having bleachers erected around it for this game. The University of Oregon will go almost en masse on special trains, and the entire student body of the agricultural college will be present; the gathering of students will probably be the greatest the state has yet beheld, since the attendance at both institutions is this year at its largest. Victory in the past has usually gone to Oregon, but last year the Aggies succeeded in holding the University to a tie.

A large number of the Hood River alumni of both institutions will be present at the game.

Firemen Thank Club

The fire boys of the Heights, members of Hee Company No. 3, wish to express their thanks to the Commercial club for the prize money won at the water fight on Cascade avenue on July 4. The money was received from the club by the boys Monday.
