HOOD RIVER OREGON

W. F. LARAWAY

HOOD RIVER OREGON

PACKING PLANT CONTINUES TO DEVELOP

The packing plant of the Consolidated Mercantile Co., conducted by J. B. Anderson, continues to develop new business. In addition to supplying local trade, Mr. Anderson, who makes frequent trips into eastern Oregon buying cattle, has offers of business from large dealers there. The Consolidated plant turns out an excellent product, and all who have tried their hams, bacon and lard here speak of the product in the highest praise.
In the packing plant the valley has an industry that should be supported. The Hood River valley does not yet raise enough hogs for its own use. It is probable that a larger portion of the bacon and pork needed here will be grown by valley ranchers and orchardists, however. If the packing industry by the support of all local people can be made to care for the raw material and turn it into the finished viands ready for table use, the valley as a whole is just that much wealthier. It creates a payroll, in addition to keeping money at home.

TALKING MACHINE MUSIC HEARD AGAIN

Local merchants are again handling talking machines, and the music of violas, graphonolas and the new Edison disc machines is heard on Oak street. The Kresse Drug Co. has secured the agency for the Victor and Columbia companies, while the Edison machines are being sold by Keir & Cass. Handsome machines of the different makes are on sale at the places of business of their respective agencies.

CLUB WOMEN WILL PAY FOR LUNCHEONS

The philanthropic committee of the Woman's club, after investigating the schools of the city, have found that some of the children who are unable to go home for hot lunches cannot afford the money for the hot lunches served at the high school building each noon. Acting on a report of the committee the club has decided to devote a portion of its charity funds and sums to be further raised, if necessary, in purchasing lunches for the little fellows. Mrs. J. P. Lucas is chairman of the philanthropic committee.
The Woman's club members have been the most active of Hood River's "goodfellows", and as a result of their efforts a box of clothing has been forwarded to Belgium, the poor of different parts of Oregon have been remembered, and local needy families have been cared for.
The next meeting of Woman's club will be held Wednesday, December 23, when the program will be in charge of the music committee, composed of Mrs. A. S. Keir, Mrs. E. D. Kanaga and Mrs. V. C. Brock.
The club has decided to form an auxiliary organization to be composed of the young business women of the city. Meetings will be held every two weeks at the homes of different members of the club. The first of these meetings will be at the home of Mrs. Lucas this week.

BATTEN WINS STATE RHODE ISLAND CUP

At the Poultry show last week E. F. Batten, of the East Side, was awarded the state cup of the Rhode Island Red Club, of America. The cup having been won on two former years, is now Mr. Batten's permanent possession. On last Thursday Mr. Batten delivered a lecture on proper feeding.
"The Portland show was one of the best I have ever seen," says Mr. Batten.
Chas. W. Green, who has charge of the poultry yards of Julian P. Scott, exhibited some very fine Buff Orpingtons, but entered his chickens after the judges had completed their work and of course, received no awards of premiums.

WHITE SALMON.

(From the Enterprise)
Mrs. C. C. Russell, who underwent an operation at a Hood River hospital recently is improving nicely.
S. H. Buddinghouse has left to spend the winter in Phoenix, Ariz., with his wife at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dorris.
The Swan-Hamann Lumber Co. saw mill started operations last week with 35 or 40 men on large orders of ties and timbers. The output is being flumed five miles from the mill to the railroad tracks, where cars are now being loaded.
A. H. "Jewett" was reelected mayor at the city election held Tuesday of last week. The two new councilmen are O. W. Everhart and J. P. Egan who take the places of J. W. Milsap and S. C. Ziegler. A. C. Keefhaver is the new treasurer. The vote was light, only 174.

ELECTRIC THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 21 and 22, the third episode of "The Master Key" will be given at the Electric Theatre.
Hounded by Wilkerson, Gallon is made to realize that his former partner is a real being and not an apparition. It is this knowledge which breaks the spirit of Gallon and prepares him for death. Wilkerson compels Gallon to employ him as superintendent of the mine. It is the last straw; Gallon sinks fast, and as his life is about to flicker out, his daughter, John Dore and the old cook are gathered in the death room. Supported in Ruth's arms Gallon writes his last will. It reads:
"I leave all my property to my daughter Ruth, to come into her full possession on her eighteenth birthday. I direct her never to let go of 'The Master Key', which will make my little girl happy. I direct that my daughter keep Harry Wilkerson as superintendent until she is 18. I appoint as executor of this, my last will and testament, John Dore. Thomas Gallon."
When Gallon dies Dore finds in the desk a sealed envelope, addressed to him, which she reads. "To be opened on Ruth's eighteenth birthday—sooner if her welfare is threatened."
It is hard for Dore and Ruth to appreciate all that has and is happening; much of it is a mystery to them. Vaguely they realize that Gallon had a dread of Wilkerson, that he had evidently wronged him, and that Wilkerson, in his turn, has a mission of vengeance.
At the "Master Key" mine matters come to a critical point when Wilkerson, now in full charge, posts a notice to the effect that "After this day all wages in this mine will be reduced 25 per cent." The man is after money—much of it as he can get. He also sees that Dore is a stumbling block to his schemes. Of an afternoon Dore interferes when Wilkerson knocks a miner down. It is the excuse for Wilkerson firing him as the mine engineer.
Following this move, the miners decide to strike. Wilkerson's domineering manner has earned the dislike of everyone of them. There is a fight in the office between Wilkerson and an old miner. The former draws a gun, and is only prevented from shooting the miner by the timely appearance of Dore. But the incident is sufficient excuse for the rough miners to seek Wilkerson's life. They secure a rope and prepare to lynch him.
Because of Ruth, because he cannot see murder done even in the heat of passion, Dore goes to the defense of the cornered rat. Standing on a box, he tells the miners in a few brief words the exact situation so far as he is concerned, begs them not to risk Ruth's property. For a time the men listen, and then they seem to get out of hand. Ruth climbs onto the box beside her sweetheart and joins her own appeal with his. And this proves successful, so far as the life of Wilkerson is concerned.
But the strike—it must be ended. Wilkerson realized this if he hoped to continue the mine operations and secure money; his life would be threatened at any moment so long as the strike lasted. It is a bitter draught to swallow, but Wilkerson announces to the men that the former scale of wages will be again put in force, and that John Dore will be appointed superintendent of the mine. He is ready to bide his time for vengeance.
