APPLE NOTES

The apple deal is winding up better than was expected, according to Wilmer Sieg, who is in New York representing the North Pacific Fruit Distributors. "The demand has continued exceptionally good," Mr. Sieg is quoted as saying in the New York Produce News. "Aside from the local demand the Environment trade has taken the fruit WIIIV N European trade has taken the fruit much faster than anticipated. There is all probability that the boxed apple deal will wind up much better than believed. The cheap prices seem finally to have stiumlated consumption to a point where the fruit is moving rapid-

It is still conceded that lasting benefits will accrue; but time, patience and perseverance will be required. When the war ends and normal navigation conditions are resumed, it seems probable that steamship companies will be more aggressive to provide requisite facilities for handling large tonnage from Pacific coast fruit and vegetable shippers. The citrus industry of California is pushing this matter more actively than any other factor, and northwestern fruit shippers will share the results of their efforts.
