

"For its work and its policies"

The Standard Oil Company (California) has been awarded many honors for its high grade products exhibited at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, but the one it prizes most—the one in which it feels the deepest sense of gratification—is the special award—"for its work and its policies."

Gold Medal of Honor

This means that its treatment of its employees, its dealings with the public, its attitude toward competitors, its service to its patrons, its methods of producing, transporting, and refining petroleum—in short, the company's business morals and practices—have been found worthy of the special praise of a great national jury of awards.

The company is justly proud of this signal honor as a recognition of the fundamental policies under which it has operated from the beginning.

PACKER PAYS TRIBUTE TO DAVIDSON

(From the Packer)
Few men have been more prominently identified with the fruit business in the northwest than H. F. Davidson. Because of his long association with the industry, and the many important civic positions he has occupied, Mr. Davidson is almost as well known in the east as he is in the northwest. Hundreds of fruit dealers throughout the country know him personally and a great many have known of him so many years, by having had business dealings with him, that they feel almost as well acquainted with him as if they had actually met him in person.

Mr. Davidson went to Oregon in 1890 and located in Hood River as a fruit grower. He soon took a prominent part in the industrial affairs of his section and in 1893 was one of the incorporators of the Fruit Union, which was one of the pioneer cooperative growers' organizations of the northwest. In 1897 Mr. Davidson organized the Davidson Fruit Co., at Hood River, which was an extensive shipper of Hood River fruits. This company likewise developed an orchard of 300 acres. The shipping business was taken over in 1913 by the Apple Growers Association, which has since controlled more than 80 per cent of the fruit produced in the Hood River district.

Mr. Davidson was one of the leaders in the organization of the North Pacific Fruit Distributors with headquarters at Spokane, Wash. This was in December, 1912. He was one of the original incorporators of the Distributors and represented the Hood River organization on the central board of the Distributors during the first two years of its existence during which time the big northwest selling organization handled approximately 10,000 cars of fruit, mostly apples. He also served the Distributors as president for two years and represented that organization in New York, where he had charge of its export business to Europe, South America and South Africa. When the Hood River district recently withdrew from the Distributors, an account of which appeared in a recent issue of The Packer, Mr. Davidson resigned as president of the big association and is now identified with the Apple Growers Association, handling the strawberry crops of Hood River and White Salmon.

Mr. Davidson always has found time to devote his attention and usual constructive talents to the interests of the fruit growers, and his interest is shown in the work which he has done in assisting to organize the Northwest Fruit Shippers' Council. He was chosen its first president. As one of the most extensive growers of the northwest he was also interested in and took an active part, organizing the Growers Council. This is an organization of growers for the purpose of assisting the shippers of the northwest in properly distributing the big fruit crops of the section.

FISS, FURS AND FEATHERS

During the course of the season local people and their visitors, while on fishing excursions and when hunting in the mountains, have many interesting experiences. The Glacier will be very glad to have fishermen and hunters give an account of their experiences to this column of the paper. If you hear a story or a good joke, report it.

"The Oregon Game Commission will find it a profitable investment to spend one thousand dollars a year in advertising Oregon's fishing and hunting advantages," said Joseph W. C. Rader, of Reading, Penn., who has just returned to his eastern home, according to the Oregon Sportman.

Mr. Rader said that he was attracted to Oregon by letters given by the woman commissioner from Oregon at the Buffalo exposition in 1901, and that he knows of five permanent settlers in Oregon as the result of the same woman's work. These five families brought to Oregon for investment about $462,000.

Mr. Rader has been visiting the expositions in California and stopped in Oregon for an outing. He came to Hood River valley to make a visit to Lost Lake. He made the trip to the lake on foot, carrying a Klondike pack. This is Mr. Rader's third visit to Oregon, but his first to Lost Lake. He said he had excellent fishing.

According to Mr. Rader, the sportsmen who are organized throughout the state of Oregon are doing splendid work in protecting game birds and animals and in helping to get more fish into the streams. And this work will be the means of bringing a great deal of money into Oregon, for there are many people all through the eastern states who are willing to cross the continent for good fishing and hunting.

Toads used to cause the members of the family of S. E. Bartness to have sleepless nights. Finally Mr. Bartness, armed with an electric flashlight, combed his lawn and streetsides adjoining his property. He carried a burp bag, and as fast he would catch a toad, the amphibian would be dropped in the bag.

The next day Mr. Bartness might have been seen at an early hour carrying his catch to the sloughs of the Columbia north of the city.

"My family would not allow me to kill the toads," he says, "so to get rid of them I had to deport them."

Some fishermen are saying that the bird would never have caused Job to be afflicted with boils if he had not had been grown in the land of the patient one.

One day last week the little daughter of S. C. Ziegler, while playing in the hay field, discovered the prettiest black and white cat and three of the cunningest little kittens she had ever seen. She ran to her father with the good news, and Mr. Ziegler, upon investigating, found that they were "Mountain Kittens," a variety best handled with a clothes pin on the nose. Finding a 20-foot pole, he got to windward of them and killed them, much to the disappointment of the little girl.

A Jap woman, unused to the ways and customs of this country, was working nearby, and while she was unable to see what was going on, was aware, nevertheless, that it was something unusual, and concluding that Mr. Ziegler was performing some religious rite peculiar to "foreign devils," came over to protest against the brand of incense being used. Being informed that a sacrifice had just been made to promote the safety of the neighbors' chickens she left, but apparently thought that such sacrifices should be made further away.—White Salmon Enterprise.

E. J. Middleswart was in the Devil's Punch Bowl vicinity last week camping with W. E. Snell, the latter of the Upper Valley. They had fine fishing. Mr. Middleswart says the big salmon continue their efforts to get over the falls at the Punch Bowl.

President McDonald and Secretary Day, of the Hood River County Game Protective Association, are urging the sportmen of the county to be prepared for the distribution of a carload of fish that will be brought up from Bonneville Wednesday, July 14. A second car of the little fish will be planted in local streams later in the year.

The fish planted here last year, the year before and on former seasons are beginning to show very conclusively the value of keeping the streams well stocked. The game association holds monthly meetings every first Wednesday night of the month at the library building.

Summer Aches and Pains.

That backache or stiff muscle that cannot be explained on account of having "sat in a draft and caught cold" is more than likely the result of weakened or disordered kidneys. Foley Kidney Pills promptly relieves backache, sore, swollen or stiff muscles and joints, rheumatism and sleep disturbing bladder ailments. They put the kidneys in sound, healthy condition, and help them eliminate uric acid and other poisons from the system. For sale by Chas. N. Clarke.

Court Dress of Tennyson.

Tennyson's court dress when he received the laureateship did not cost him much, for it was the same court dress worn by Wordsworth, who in turn had it from the old poet Rogers, and it is still in the Wordsworth family. It is a wonder how Tennyson and Wordsworth got into it, for Rogers was a little fellow. Tennyson had no passion for courts, and so he went in second hand to save cost.—New York Press.

Siam's Peculiar Order.

Some years ago his majesty of Siam gave an Italian, for painting one of his wives from a photograph, "the grand cross of the Siamese crown." It is a rather large order. "This cross," said his majesty graciously, "will entitle you to marry twelve wives. It is a distinction I seldom confer, so I hope you will make good use of it."

THE OLD TAR EXPLAINS TO THE GOOD JUDGE

IT'S just as natural for a man to sing the praises of the Real Tobacco Chew as it is to look at a beautiful woman.

"Right-Cut" is made from the finest mellow, rich leaf tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough.

New cut, short shred, so that you can get all the good of it.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary cased tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and licorice. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.
