Don't Sit on the Fence

No worse place in the world than a position designated as "on the fence"; its merely a place to sit and watch the procession of active people go on.

It pays to get down off the fence and take an active part in affairs on one side or the other. Line up with the crowd that works, saves and invests. You will find the reward ample and worth while. We will help you all we can for we belong to that crowd. We have no use for the fellow who is always perched on the fence.

SMALLER APPLE CROP EXPECTED

PROFITABLE RETURNS LOOKED FOR

Yield of Entire Country will be Less than that of 1914—Packer Gives Concise Estimates

While it is still too early to make definite estimates and while the opinions of various experts differ slightly, market men and growers alike say that the Hood River apple crop will be far smaller than that of last year, when approximately 900,000 boxes of fruit were shipped. Present estimates place the season's crop at from 60 to 70 per cent of that of last year. But on account of the small crop here and the light yield over the entire nation those who are keeping in touch with market conditions are optimistic and are predicting that growers will get profitable returns on the year's business.

Sam C. Campbell, chief inspector of the Apple Growers Association, who makes daily tours of the orchards, says that the year's yield will be between 65 and 70 per cent of that of last year. "The fruit looks very much better than it did a month ago," says Mr. Campbell, "and it is of a particularly desirable quality. It is making a beautiful growth and the size will be attractive. The apples are larger than usual at this time of the year, the season being 10 days earlier than normal. Hood River growers are taking particularly good care of the orchards, spraying thoroughly and at the proper time in an endeavor to maintain the usual standard of excellence."

E. H. Shepard, editor of Better Fruit, one of the close students of apple market conditions in the northwest, says that he does not think the crop of this year will run over 60 per cent of that of last season. Mr. Shepard says that he has found that the Willow Flat district ordinarily one of the heaviest producing sections of the valley, will be very light. The Davidson Fruit Co., owner of one of the largest tracts in Hood River, marketed 24,000 boxes of apples from Willow Flat last year. They will not have over 8,000 boxes, according to estimates, this year. Considering the apple market in the northwestern as well as national standpoint, Mr. Shepard is optimistic. He says that the estimates for the total crop of the United States place the 1915 yield at about 50 per cent of that of 1914. This he says will give us about 22,500,000 barrels of apples to dispose of.

In past years, he states, growers of the northwest, when the crop has been heavier, have received very gratifying returns. "And I have every reason to expect that growers will not prices that will repay them a profit this year," says Mr. Shepard, "but the distribution will be such that the consumer will not be charged an excessive price. The entire apple crop of the United States is not so great but that it can be consumed at home, and even though there are no exports I think the home demand will be such that the crop will move satisfactorily to growers, shippers and wholesalers alike. And we may even look for some exports, if no circumstances of the war prevent. A fruit merchant from Holland has been in the valley, having made his first trip to the Pacific coast, and he says that he is preparing to buy apples this year as usual. Of course, high freight rates and excessive insurance may make such exports negligible.

Figures gathered by local crop statisticians show that the crop of southern Oregon will be light. Wenatchee's yield is placed at about 80 per cent and that of the Yakima districts at about 40 per cent.

Hood River's pear crop is very promising this year. The quantity will be greater than last season, and the quality is good, according to Inspector Campbell. Hood River Bartlett's will begin to reach this week.

Kenneth McKay, of the Fruit Growers' Exchange, sets the 1915 crop of apples at from 700 to 800 carloads.

"We have not yet got in all of our estimates," says Mr. McKay, "but they will be pretty well in by the end of the week. The fruit, from all reports, is making a good growth."

Last Saturday's edition of the Packer is devoted to an estimate of the apple crop of the United States, which is the fruit publication are filled with stories from experts from all sections of the country. Below are given excerpts from Packer reports:

The following is a concise statement as to the condition of the apple crop of New York, a fruit district known to the trade as "The King Pin" apple district:

"The western New York apple crop promises to be much smaller than last year. Estimates from the principal growing sections declare the crop will be from one-quarter to one-half smaller than it was a year ago. The shortage is chiefly in Baldwin apples, which were an enormous crop last year. The Packer man took a trip through a part of the up-state belt, and growers who were interviewed said their orchards would not produce from one-third to one-half as many apples as a year ago. They said their Baldwins were light, and as this variety is western New York's mainstay, it means that the apple crop will be under normal."

Commenting on the crop in the central or middlewestern states the Packer says:

"The apple crop this year in several of the central western states will be heavy, and this is especially true of the states of Illinois, Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas. The crop in Missouri, Arkansas, Michigan and several others will not be as large as 1914, but there will be a fairly plentiful supply of fruit, nevertheless."

The Packer estimates the Washington, Calif., crop, a great portion of which is composed of Newtowns, at 75 per cent of a full crop.

of the waters of the East Fork of Hood River, maintaining that the appropriation of more of the stream would hamper them in the operation of their electrically driven sawmill at Dees, the power being developed from the waters of the stream in question and from the Middle Fork of Hood river.

Judge Bradshaw's decision will permit the irrigation district to make use of as much as 7,000 inches of water, this amount having been tied on in 1894 by the promoters of the company out of which the district has evolved, although this amount of water up to the present time has never been taken from the river.

The case was brought up last year by an enlargement of the main canal of the district's irrigation system, farmers having called for an increased supply of water made necessary by the introduction of grains, clovers and other cover crops in the orchards and the inauguration of a general diversification among the apple growers. The litigation has been watched with interest by the owners of the 13,000 acres of orchard land under the irrigation system, and an announcement of Judge Bradshaw's decision has caused a general elation among the fruit growers of the district.

The irrigation district, however, faces other litigation, the Pacific Power & Light Co., which owns extensive undeveloped power sites as well as an electric plant now in operation, having filed a suit, in which demands similar to that in the lumber company case are involved. In order to secure accurate information as to the flow of the waters of the river and of the portion of the stream passing into irrigation systems, the power and light company installed five automatic gauges at different points on Hood river.

The original company was composed of V. W. Welch and other East Side farmers. The ditch was taken over from this company by C. R. Bone, who developed the property, later selling to the East Fork Irrigating Co., which disposed of its interests to the bonded district.

HOOD RIVER FOLK ON HOOD TODAY

They were off in a bunch yesterday afternoon, the special Hood train leaving for Parkdale at 8 o'clock, carrying the largest assemblage of people ever to make such an excursion, and today will be Hood River day on the summit of Mount Hood. When the prospective Mazamas gathered at the Hood line station, the men were handling with expectancy assorted kinds of improvised alpenstocks, while the women were custodians of the lunch to be eaten en route. The latter were garbed in walking skirts and bloomers, all ready for the hikes and strenuous climbs.

At Parkdale the party was met by rigs and automobiles, which carried them to the edge of the national forest. From this point they walked to the camp near Cloud Gap Inn, making their couches on boughs beneath the pine and hemlock trees. The baggage was assembled Tuesday, and had already been transported to the place of encampment.

The excursion has been promoted by the Mount Hood Railway Co., the officials of which are endeavoring to create a spirit of "See Hood River First" among local people. Ashley Wilson accompanied the climbers and he plans on making the ascent with them today.

The Glacier is represented on the mountain trip by Harry Clapp.

Those who will be at the top of the world today are:

SPORTSMEN WILL PROTEST S. P. CHARGE

Hood River sportsmen will make a strong protest against the proposed change to be made by the Southern Pacific Railway Co. for hauling the Oregon Fish and Game Commission's distributing car, "Rainbow."

"As soon as I received a letter from the Commission announcing the proposed change in the policy of the S. P. Co., which has been hauling the car free of charge, I broached the subject to a number of men, all of whom were prone to make a protest," says William Stewart, chairman of the fish and game committee of the Commercial club. "Our committee will draft a resolution deprecating such action."

"It is an outrage," says D. McDonald, president of the Hood River County Game Protective Association. "If the railroads take such a stand it will be impossible for us to stock the streams. The O-W. R. & N. Co. has certainly done its part in assisting us here. The latter company has often furnished special trains. It seems to me that the stocking of the streams will benefit the companies very much."

Officers Get Suspect

City Officers Carson and Smith and Sheriff Johnson last week took into custody a man who gave his name as Tom Clark, but who was believed to be Pete Clark wanted at Baker for the murder October of last year of a lumber camp foreman. Sheriff Anderson, of Baker county, was notified immediately after the arrest.

When a description of the man was given Sheriff Anderson of Baker county, however, he was ordered released, the eastern Oregon official feeling sure that the wrong man was being held.

E. F. DISTRICT WINS IN CIRCUIT COURT

Judge Bradshaw, of the Dalles, has rendered a decision in the case of the Oregon Lumber Co. vs. the East Fork Irrigation District favorable to the defendant district. The lumber company sought to restrain the district from making use of more than 1,100 inches

SIMON BENSON TO BE HONORED

MONSTER MASS MEETING PLANNED

Hood River People Will Join P. P. L. E. Management and Celebrate in Honor of First Citizen, August 17

Simultaneous with the Benson Day celebration in San Francisco at the Panama-Pacific international exposition on August 17, Hood River county will turn out en masse to honor Oregon's First Citizen. While the visitors at the fair are learning of the philanthropies of Simon Benson, Hood River people will gather at the open air theatre to attend a testimonial meeting.

Since the formal opening of the Columbia river highway and the public reception tendered Mr. Benson, Governor Withycombe and party of the state's distinguished citizen are their arrival here on the trip of dedication suggestions for some such form of honor to Mr. Benson have poured in from every part of the valley, and so spontaneous and simultaneous have been the presentations of the proposed celebration that it may be truthfully stated that no one man can be accredited with the idea.

The first definite action was taken last Thursday night, when a gathering of representative men from all parts of the valley assembled in the city and after a discussion decided to hold the local celebration on the date of the Panama-Pacific exposition Benson Day.

The following Hood River county Benson Day proclamation has been issued: "Tuesday, August 1, has been officially designated by the directors of the Panama-Pacific international exposition as the day on which to render honor to the man who has been proclaimed by our governor as Oregon's First Citizen—Simon Benson. Concurrent with the celebration at the Panama-Pacific international exposition on the above date Hood River county will join in paying tribute to Mr. Benson by holding a monster mass meeting at the open air theatre at 8 o'clock sharp. Remembering the enthusiasm created on the occasion of the formal opening of the Columbia river highway by the visit of Governor Withycombe, Mr. Benson and other prominent men, it is deemed that the celebration at the open air theatre will be one long to be remembered. How fortunate Hood River has been to have had at this most momentous time a man so public spirited and interested in the high ways of the state, and who was willing to step forth and render not only his time and interest, but his financial assistance as well, all of which is to inure now to our benefit!

"The Columbia river highway, which has long been an anticipation, is now a realization, and we who are to reap the benefits in many ways are afforded an opportunity to publicly express our appreciation of Mr. Benson's interest and energy in our behalf. The great gathering of the citizens of Hood River county, joined together to honor the man whose name is symbolical of public spirited generosity will appeal to every man, woman and child, and the occasion will be one long to be remembered. A committee, consisting of every citizen of Hood River county, is delegated to make Benson Day the greatest day in the history of Hood River. The idea of such a celebration occurred simultaneously to so many minds that no one can claim the distinction of being the originator.

"Hood River is on the map. The greatest amount of the right kind of publicity is being given the community by the newspapers and prominent publications of the country at this time. The world will learn of the Columbia river highway and of Hood River so closely linked with it because of the scenic beauty of the mid-Columbia river, and we who are afforded the pleasure and benefits of the highway should not fail to show how heartfelt is our appreciation of the man who has been the prime factor in its creation.

The full details of the great mass meeting have not been worked out, but committees on arrangements will have the program prepared for issues of next week's papers.

FINANCE LINES UP AGAINST RELIGION

Some wag has said that the sheep and the goats will be present at Columbia Park tomorrow afternoon. He did not elucidate, and it would not be good form to attempt any explanation of the remark; for it is policy to be on good terms with bankers as well as ministers—the wise man looks after his material welfare along with that of the spirit.

But the Hood River bankers will be after the goat of the Hood River ministers tomorrow afternoon, and vice versa. These professionals of the pulp and pillars of finance, but amateurs at baseball, will play a game for the benefit of the swimming pool fund—every cent will go for sweet charity.

The above statement contains one error—errors, however, will be plentiful and ludicrous tomorrow—Billy Sunday, than whom no minister now living is better known, was once a professional baseball player. The noted tasser of redhot words at the time of his conversion was center fielder for the Chicago White Sox. His old manager, when he heard that Billy had given up baseball and was taking up the pulpit, expressed himself as follows: "A good baseball player gone wrong." But Billy is still going, and he doesn't give a whoop what people say about him. He is still after the sinners. He will be as hot on the trail of the horsehead sphere tomorrow as he ever was on the trail of the Devil.

The bankers' line up follows: K. W. Sinclair, p.; Lawrence Hersher, c.; Harvey Jones, 1st b.; Harold Hersher, 2d b.; J. Rimmer, 3d b.; Ed Winter, ss.; P. G. Schreuders, rf.; Ray Acheson, lf.; Cop Hinrichs, cf.

The ministers' line up follows: W. P. Kirk, p.; M. Goodrich, c.; Billy Sunday, 1b.; P. O. Bonebrake, 2d b.; J. B. Lister, 3d b.; W. B. Young, ss.; A. S. Donat, rf.; G. E. Heineke, lf.; John Samuel, cf.

The Hood River members of the Transfer & Livery camp, now engaged in building a state road in Klickitat county, will play the Goldendale team at that city Sunday. Tapp Osborne will be in the box.
