20 BUSHEL OF WHEAT BOUGHT EARLY HOME

From a little frame shack, 21x27 feet, the Cottage Farm of Mrs. Alma L. Howe has grown to its present proportions. A big country residence, its rooms fitted for guests, and numerous surrounding outbuildings, and cottages now rear themselves on the site of the former tiny one-room home. And Cottage Farm entertains guests from Portland, Ore., and Boston, Mass.

This original small building has an interesting history. It was Hood River's first school house, having been erected by the pioneer residents of the West Side of the Hood River valley on a plot of ground set aside by Dr. W. L. Adams for the valley's first burying ground. Mrs. Kate Henderson, mother of Prof. L. F. Henderson and John Leplance Henderson, the latter now a resident of Tillamook, was the community's first teacher.

As the center of population changed and the location became unsuited to school purposes, the building was abandoned. It was sold to D. J. Parmenter, Mrs. Howe's brother-in-law, for 20 bushels of wheat. The structure was moved to the 40 acre tract of land purchased by Mrs. Howe. It formed the nucleus around which have been erected the buildings of today. The walls within which Hood River's first children said lessons are still doing duty in Mrs. Howe's home, forming today her private dining room and kitchen.

EXCHANGE LETS CONTRACT FOR BUILDING

Last week the Fruit Growers Exchange awarded to the Palmer-Ellison Construction Co., of Portland, a contract for the construction of a three story storage warehouse, the construction to be of hollow tile. The building, located east of the National warehouse on the Mount Hood Railway tracks, will be 100 feet long, and the average width will be 62 feet. The first two floors will be used for storage rooms. The third floor, having an entrance from State street, will be used for receiving rooms and offices. The first spiral elevator of the Hood River valley will be installed to take the fruit from the receiving room to the storage floors below. Gravity roller conveyers will be used for taking the boxes of fruit from the elevator to any part of the building or to cars.

The total cost of the construction of the building, plans and specifications of which were made by W. W. Lucius, a consulting engineer, of Portland, will be about $9,000. The warehouse is so arranged that an air refrigeration system may be added later on.

"We have left out a number of conveniences at first contemplated," says Manager McKay, "on account of the short crop of this year. However, we have made provision for the addition of these improvements as they are needed and conditions warrant them."

Ground was broken for the new warehouse yesterday.

CLIMBERS GET FINE MOUNTAIN PICTURES

The wonderful stories that are told by members of the following party who climbed Mt. Hood, are so full of interest that they would make an excellent subject for a novel. The party, which included Mrs. J. F. Foltz, Mrs. J. F. Foltz's daughter, and a number of other climbers, spent several days on the mountain, and the views are such that one can never forget them.

Members of the party carried kodaks and the pictures they secured are as fine as have ever been taken on the mountain side.

Correction

Through an error last week, it was stated that from May 15-18, inclusive, the members of the Fruit Growers' Exchange were advised to market their strawberries with the local canner, receiving 50 cents per crate. Instead the Exchange handled berries through its own established channels to advantage for its members, receiving on those days the following respective prices: May 15, $1.34 per crate; May 17, $1.83, and May 18, $1.77.

Postponing Old Age

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys will often make a man or woman feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains in back, puffiness under eyes, stiff joints, and sore muscles, biliousness, headaches and various other symptoms give warning that the kidney needs help. Foley Kidney Pills bring a sound, healthy condition and help the kidneys eliminate uric acid and other poisons from the system, which, when permitted to remain, cause dangerous diseases. For sale by Chas. N. Clarke.
