Before taking leave of Cuzco, Peru, we went to see the very interesting collection of Inca relics in the private museum of a Peruvian doctor who has devoted many years of his life to Inca research. ## The Englishman Spoke.

In a second class rallway carriage, going from Lansanne to Paris, I once passed a night of conflict. On my side were, a Swiss who spoke English and an Englishman who didn't speak. Our opponents were two members of a Latin race. They wanted the windows shut. We wanted at least one window open. Our common cause drew the three of us together. At first the Englishman's expression had seemed to wonder whether the Swiss and the American were quite worthy to prefer fresh air. As the night wore on this expression waned, and I thought I detected a trace of sympathy in the glances he sparingly simed at us. In answer to my question the Swiss explained his mastery of the English innguage by saying he had learned without a teacher, just by sitting near an open window in a tub of cold water. At this the Englishman atmost spoke. Morning came, He filled his pipe and began to hunt through his pockets for matches. The Swiss offered him a box. "Thank you," he said gravely; "I prefer my own." and went on hunting .- New Republic,

Haiti's Old Citadel.

On the summit of a Haitian mountain over 4,000 feet high stand the wonderful ruins of the great citadel La Ferriere, built by the black king Christophe. Some of the walls are eighty feet high and sixteen feet thick, and heavy batteries of old fifty-six and thirty-two pound guns are still in position. They were laid to guard every approach of what was intended to be the last asylum of Haitian Independence. Springs of water still exist in the interior, and there were secret subterranean bassages and secret chambers for holding his hearded wealth, much of which is supposed to be still burled there. Although partly destroyed by the earthquake in 1842, which dem iolished nearly all of the important buildings in the country, the colossal ruins of the citadel still attest the gigantic work of Christophe, and the world still wonders how the work was done and how the material for the construction and armament was ever got to the top of the mountain. Cavalry on the march sends up a dust cloud that is much higher and thinner than that of infantry. The most distinctive of these dust clouds, however, is that made by wagons and heavy guns. The dust rises in little groups of clouds, quite different from the long clouds of cavalry and infantry. So even when unable to see the actual cause of the dust, a scout can tell many miles away what kind of force is passing along a road.-Ex-

Indifferent Librarians. The Bodlelan library has not always een fortunate in its custodians. When leorge III, presented a copy of the ewly published "Voyages of Captain Cook" to the library the then librarian -we mercifully omit his name-prompty sent it to a friend, with a note asking him to keep it for a twelvemonth or so, as otherwise if the university men knew the book was available he would be pestered to death by appliations for it.
