THERE IS CHEER FOR THE FAITHFUL.

"When Fruit Men Get Scared," is the title of an article written by James H. Collins, who spent several weeks here last summer, appearing in "The Country Gentleman," of January 1.

Mr. Collins visited the most of the apple districts as well as the citrus belts last year. His opening paragraph shows that he observed conditions pretty closely. He says:

The big crop last year in famous winter-fruit sections seemed to be, not apples or oranges but meetings! Long before blossoming time the clans began gathering.

In another paragraph he says: So growers everywhere began holding meetings, criticizing officers, managers and market methods, withdrawing from old organizations and forming new ones, listening to explanations, plans, dreams.

But—and it seems to us rather an important but—are pre-campaign promises going to fall into the disrepute of the cries of the irresponsible shepherd boy?

It may be that for lack of funds the State Highway Commission cannot at the present time take over the road as a state highway, although such action may be taken later.

If this be so, the public should be taken into the confidence of the officials, that there may be no suspicion of the campaign promises mentioned.

SPORTS OF WINTER

Never has Hood River people derived so much pleasure from a snowfall as during the past week.

Nine growers in ten believe that low prices are due to glutting of markets. Real market gluts of fruit like winter apples, which can be stored and held for months, are much rarer than is commonly supposed.

Seventy-five per cent of all the so-called market gluts of winter fruit, with falling prices, are probably oranges.

One of the big northwestern growers' organizations sent a representative through the middle west selling apples.

The association had plenty of fine fruit in its own cold storage to supply demand through these new outlets.

While fire insurance companies have raised the rates of rural property in all northwestern districts, the Hood River valley included, the reason being given that rural fires have increased to such a degree in the past year that the increase in rates is necessary.

Hood River is well protected by one of the best water systems in the state of Oregon.

Secondly, the local owners of property have displayed a great care in guarding against possible fires.

Last, but not least, no town of the size in the country has a more efficient volunteer fire department.

A COUNTY OF PEACE

Hood River county holds a record for the peacefulness of its population. Since June 23, 1908, when the county was established, but one man has been before the courts to answer to a charge of shedding human blood.

The unorganized grower brings panic into the market in this way again and again, pulling prices down to a ruinous level, causing loss to all growers and dealers.

In the produce trade there is also the small, fly-by-night buyer who picks up a few cars of stuff in growing districts, ships them to a good market, and sells a nickel or dime below the true value in the same way.

Together, these two pests cause enormous losses every year to growers who have organized for orderly marketing of crops, and to produce firms which would invest heavily in fruit and truck if they could count upon stability. The entire article contains much meat. In the story Mr. Collins, while the name is not mentioned, pays a tribute to the action of the local Apple Growers Association in the campaign of selling 30 carloads of Newtown Pippins in Portland last year.

We say again such a story should be especially gratifying to Hood River apple growers, who will demonstrate this season the efficiency of close cooperation among themselves, and their businesslike relations through their association with the marketing centers of the country.

THE HIGHWAY, STATE OR COUNTY?

An old folk tells of a shepherd, a youth of little responsibility, who, to relieve the tedium of his daily task, decided to play a joke on the villagers who resided near by.

Watch your cider and do not allow it to become "hard." Fermented beverages are taboo in Oregon.

Stanton Offers Library Aid

"If the Hood River county library is closed this year," says County Judge Stanton, "it will be for no lack of an offer of funds by the county court."

Citizens of the city and members of the county have expressed dissatisfaction with the county court for failure, as is alleged, to levy a tax for library maintenance in proportion with that of the city.

Perhaps the burden should be legally and justly ours. At least we have the solace that we will be benefited by the open road.

But—and it seems to us rather an important but—are pre-campaign promises going to fall into the disrepute of the cries of the irresponsible shepherd boy?

It may be that for lack of funds the State Highway Commission cannot at the present time take over the road as a state highway, although such action may be taken later.

If this be so, the public should be taken into the confidence of the officials, that there may be no suspicion of the campaign promises mentioned.

FARMERS ADVISED TO USE PRINTING

The Oregon farmer can swell his annual receipts by using good printing and by occasional advertising in the weeklies of his county.

A farm letterhead should carry the name of the farm, the name of the owner, the location of the farm, and perhaps a small picture of some feature of the farm.

"It gives a farmer a certain business standing if he has a neat letterhead of good stock, and it improves the value of his farm to have a name and something of an individuality," he said.

"Advertising rates are very low in Oregon country papers, and a farmer may at a cost of from 10 to 50 cents per line, place an advertisement in a newspaper which will be read by thousands of people."

A farmer's advertising should conform to the best advertising standards: It should be very definite and absolutely truthful."

VALLEY IS IN THE GRIP OF WINTER

The Hood River valley is in the grip of winter, the temperature having registered lower Tuesday night than at any time since 1912, when a snow fall of three feet prevailed.

On Tuesday afternoon, at the suggestion of J. A. Epping, a crew of men and boys endeavored to flood the Columbia slough, the surface of which was covered with a blanket of snow.

The water, however, froze in the improvised flume and made the task an impossible one.

A shipment of ducks and chickens, shipped from the Oak Grove ranch of H. C. Hitz to Portland last week, weighed over a ton.

This is the largest shipment of fowl ever made from Hood River.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; hence, deafness is not a local but a constitutional condition, and unless the cause is removed, it is entirely closed.
