MISS DEGRAFF TALKS TO LOCAL PEOPLE

Miss Grace DeGraff, Portland teacher, who was returning home from the Henry Ford Peace Mission, was aboard one of the delayed trains here last Friday evening. Mrs. Chas. H. Castner having learned that she was in the city persuaded her to deliver a lecture to local people at the Mount Hood hotel, where a crowd was hastily assembled. Miss DeGraff declares that she is returning more than ever a disciple of Jane Addams and a believer in the plans of that noted thinker to end world wars.

Miss DeGraff says that Henry Ford has succeeded in what he set about to do in that a conference is already in session at the Hague, acting on the plans of a book by Miss Addams, setting in motion machinery that may lead to constant mediation brought about by simultaneous negotiations from all warring nations.

The returned peace delegate quoted from Miss Addams' book profusely. She declares that the schools of the country have been wrong in that they have taught the young to worship heroes of war, all the while keeping from their minds the real horrors of terrible conflicts. In the future, she declared, women must have an equal place in the deliberations of nations along with men.

Before Miss DeGraff had finished her address and just when she was beginning to explain that the alleged strife on board the Peace Ship was very much misrepresented, all passengers were called aboard the waiting train. Miss DeGraff says that all who accepted Henry Ford's invitation to join the party signified their belief in the plan of neutralization, disarmament and no greater degree of preparedness in their own country than at present existing.

"Some of the newspaper representatives, however," she said, "failed to do the expected sensation. That they were a serious party and there were no thrills of the kind newspaper people are after. So those few immediately started something to furnish them with material for their papers."

Miss DeGraff said that the newspapers of northern Europe, while at first they were rather indifferent in their expression, soon became friendly toward the peace mission which was characterized as "a serious party on a serious mission."

"It was privately expressed to us," she said, "that they were unable to make known their friendliness as freely as they desired for fear of incensing neighboring warring nations and thus jeopardizing their neutrality."

GRIFFITH-TRIANGLE BIOGRAPHIES

The following are short biographies of Griffith-Triangle players, who will be seen in shows of the new programs that will begin at the Electric Sunday, February 20:

Charles Murray, taken from the vaudeville team of Murray and Mack, by Mack Sennett, and developed into one of the principal far makers at Keystone, was born in Laurel, Indiana. His family lived in Cincinnati when Murray at the age of 10 began his stage career. As he grew older he developed into one of the country's comedy stars. His work in "Linnegan's Ball," "A Night on Broadway" and "Alma, Where Do You Live?" is well remembered. Later he and Ollie Mack entered the Varieties and for many seasons were headliners in the leading houses from coast to coast. About three years ago Mr. Murray joined D. W. Griffith, with whom he remained until Sennett drafted him into Keystone comedy. He has had many prominent parts during his service in this studio and is now the star in "A Game Old Knight," an extravaganza-burlesque in Sennett's best style.

Dustin Farnum, the star of "The Iron Strain" in the Triangle program, is the son of a well known Shakespearean actor who was born in England. Three sons have attained distinction on the stage, Dustin and William as romantic actors, and Marshall as a stage director and present director of motion pictures. William Farnum's great success was won in the title role of "Ben Hur." Dustin came before the public as a star of "The Virginian," an adaptation of Owen Wister's novel, in which he proved enormously popular and toured the country for several seasons. Subsequently Dustin and William Farnum starred together in "The Little Rebel." Of recent years both have been in great demand as picture stars, William having scored heavily in "The Spoilers" and Dustin duplicating the success in Ince's Alaskan story of a primitive cave man and his lady love, entitled "The Iron Strain."

Doing Their Duty

Scores of Hood River Readers Are Learning the Duty of the Kidneys To filter the blood is the kidney duty. When they fail to do this the kidneys are weak.

Backache and other kidney ills follow; Help the kidneys to their work. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—the tested kidney remedy.

Hood River people endorse their worth. Mrs. J. W. Gatchell of 1110 Seventh St., Hood River, suffered greatly from lumbago, nagging pains across the small of my back and the action of my kidneys was irregular. I tried several well-known kidney remedies, but I had no relief until I took Doan's Kidney Pills. They relieved me at once and the backache soon left me. My kidneys were strengthened and my system was toned up. Another of my family had good results from Doan's Kidney Pills.

Over two years later Mrs. Gatchell said: "I still think highly of Doan's Kidney Pills for I have never found their equal as a kidney medicine."

MOSIER INSTITUTE IS BIG SUCCESS

From the Mosier Bulletin

For the valuable information received and the interchange of ideas pertinent to pedagogy, the local teachers' institute held here last Saturday was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The morning and afternoon sessions were held in the high school room, while the evening session took place in the Immanuel church.

Rev. Dan Thurston, of the Baptist church, of The Dalles, opened the institute. He was followed by Irvin H. Warner, superintendent of schools in The Dalles, who spoke on the subject, "Technical Grammar in the Grades." Mr. Warner explained to the audience that too much of the formal grammar was taught as prescribed by the course of study and that the less used, the more thorough and comprehensive would be the student's grasp of the subject.

Miss Lucy Crawford, of the domestic science department of The Dalles high school, spoke on "The Hot Lunch." She explained that all the utensils needed were a small receptacle, with handles that folded back, a folding stand, underneath which could be placed a sterno can, which when the contents were lighted would burn for two hours. Prof. E. E. Amsden, superintendent of the local high school, gave as his subject, "Fundamentals in Arithmetic," and explained by illustrations on the blackboard how, by use of a complete analytical method in stating the problem the student could easily understand the meaning and soon find the solution. His statements were commended by Clyde T. Boney county school superintendent and Supt. Warner.

A. R. Chase, recently appointed county agent, and who is in the employ of the state and government as well, stated that he wanted to get in touch with all the farmers and learn their many needs. He stated that he wanted everyone's co-operation in helping to solve the horticultural and agricultural problems.

Dr. David Robinson, talked about the industrial fair and the club work in this community, and stated that the local fair next year is already receiving much interest from the students.

A question box was inaugurated and answers were given by Supts. Amsden and Warner. One of the questions asked was whether Scott's "Lady of the Lake" should be read in the Eighth grade. The affirmative side was championed by Miss Corine Metz, county librarian, and John M. Ross, principal of the local school, while Messrs. Boney, Amsden and Warner believed that the classic could not be appreciated fully by the student until in his second or third year of high school. However, the matter was finally settled by all agreeing that it depended on the natural bent of the child, some having a liking for the classics at an early age and others not acquiring it until two or three years later, if they ever do.

Miss Osburn, of the household arts department, showed some of the work that her students in sewing and household duties were doing. She had several designs of residence interiors that were planned by the students, showing the color schemes of the walls, building and interior decorations. Each student is allowed $600 with which to completely furnish a house, the effort being to impress on her the need of simplicity and harmony.

In the evening Supt. Warner talked on "Moral Courage," using present day characters. He lauded the Boy Scout movement, as did Rev. Thurston who followed, in his talk on this subject. Mr. Warner contrasted the difference between two of his boy friends. The one obtaining political power only to fall a victim to the politicians. The other, a cripple, slowly rising until he finally became forest supervisor of the state of Indiana. He refused to be drawn into a big political net, is refusing a large sum of money to allow the disposition of government lands, until today he is one of the most respected men in the state.

During the afternoon after the session was over, some of the visiting teachers secured a bob sleet and enjoyed the thrills of their boyhood and girlhood days. Supt. Boney guided the bob safely, sometimes. All stated that they had had a very enjoyable and profitable stay in our city.

PARCEL POST PACKAGES COMMANDEERED

E. R. Pooley and O. T. Wedemeyer, passengers on the O.-W. R. & N. train delayed at Bonneville for four days returned to their homes here Saturday morning with unstinted praise for the train crews.

"While we were limited to two meals a day," said Mr. Pooley, "we did not go hungry. As soon as the provisions in the dining car ran low the packages of food on the express car and in the parcel post mail were commandeered." Mr. Pooley says that the snow was packed in some of the cuts as much as 30 feet deep, and was taken out by hand.

AUDITORS PRAISE COUNTY CLERK

Mr. Shoemaker has collected all fees outstanding.
