According to present plans the local Woodrow Wilson club will be organized at some date about the middle of the month. Judge A. S. Bennett, a member of the Oregon delegation at the St. Louis convention, will come down from The Dalles and deliver an address. Mrs. Alexander Thompson, of The Dalles, who is a candidate for the joint representation for Hood River and Wasco counties, is also expected to be present.

James H. Hazlett, chairman of the Hood River County Democratic central committee, has announced the appointment of the following precinct committees:

East Hood River, J. H. Koberg; West Hood River, J. E. Robertson; Waucoma, J. M. Culbertson; Heights, J. O. McLaughlin; Park, Hubbard Taylor; Center, A. D. Ramsey; Barrett, Ralph Hinrichs; Oak Grove, B. F. Edelman; Pine Grove, V. Winchell; Odell, Harry Kemp; Dea, A. B. Billings; Parkdale, H. S. Crouse; Baldwin, J. B. Doggett Falls, John R. Cates.

TROUT LAKE.

Trout Lake Grange held their picnic in Exon's grove on Thursday, Aug. 17. Although the day was not all that had been hoped for there was a big crowd. About 30 came from Glenwood alone, some from Goldendale, White Salmon, Centerville and other granges.

The forenoon was given to visiting and getting better acquainted. At noon lunch was served cafeteria style. About one o'clock speaking commenced. Wm. Coate, Master of Trout Lake Grange, giving the address of welcome. Henry McCormick, of North Yakima, State Organizer, was with us, as State Master Gogley was unable to be present. Mr. McCormick explained that he had no set speech, having received a telegram to come just in time to catch the train, and was able to reach here in time only by traveling all night. He gave a very interesting talk along general grange lines, referring to laws the grange had helped enact, and new laws the grange was helping support. He referred to the new farmers' loan law and the great advantage it will be to the farmer. He urged the farmers to instruct their representatives to support a bill whereby the state would manufacture powder and sell to the farmer at cost.

Reference was made to the registration law, regarding our representative voted for that bill. If so, whom was he representing when he voted for it? It is claimed this bill was passed not because the people wanted it, or made any demand for it, but for the purpose of crippling the initiative and referendum.

Mr. McCormick left a good impression. Although a young man he is recognized as a leader. He is president of the Washington Non-Partisan League. He is the present time a candidate for commissioner in his county, having the support of the people there who were behind the recall not long ago, of a commissioner who forgot he was elected to serve the people.

Mr. McCormick is the author of a book "An X-Ray on the Natchez Valley." A book that suggests he combines the qualities of poet, artist and writer.

Miss Mary A. Scott, of Oregon City, has been visiting friends here.

WHITE SALMON.

The White Salmon Commercial club has received word from North Yakima that Chas. I. Siger, chief location engineer of the state highway department, and crops of six surveyors, have started for the Simcoe mountains to run the survey for the proposed Yakima-Columbia highway.

George Canavan and wife, of Portland, were guests of J. E. White and family recently. Mr. White and daughter made the trip over the Columbia highway with the Canavans, who own a large Packard automobile, and when the Canavans returned Saturday, Bob White returned with them for a ride over the highway. Mr. Canavan is a sister of Mrs. White.

A big time is in store for the Masons and people of this county, as it is understood that the Trout Lake Masons are planning to confer degrees in 1917 on candidates in the most primitive fashion ever heard of. The big lava caves of the Trout Lake section are to be used and if the lodge is permitted by the state to carry on its plans, this affair will draw hundreds and perhaps thousands of people.

The 15 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. David N. Murray, of Portland, was killed Sunday, August 27, when Mrs. Murray was driving near Laurel. It happened when Mrs. Murray tried to turn around, making the turn too sharp causing the wagon to tip over and throwing the child out. Mrs. Murray was also thrown out but was not injured. It was then that the moles became frightened and ran for nearly a mile and a half. During the runaway another child was thrown out of the wagon, but received no injuries.

Mrs. Murray is the daughter of Mrs. J. C. Warner, of Trout Lake. The Murrays had been out for hazel nuts and it was on the homeward trip that the accident occurred.

College Dance is Successful

The second college dance given here last Friday night for the benefit of the building fund of the new woman's building to rise on the University of Oregon campus, was successful and as a result the sum of $25 will be added to the fund. Patronesses of the Friday evening hop, instigated by Miss Adrienne Epping, a U. of O. student home for the summer vacation, were Mrs. P. S. Davidson, Mrs. R. H. Wallace, Mrs. E. R. Moller, Mrs. Emma E. Epping, Mrs. P. H. Carroll, Mrs. C. N. Ravin, Mrs. A. W. Peters and Mrs. Chas. H. Castner. The first woman's building benefit ball given here last winter netted the fund the sum of $50.

Autos Do "Twinkle Dance"

The Saturday afternoon crowd on Hood River's streets thought that the auto delivery wagon of E. Samuels and the touring car of J. H. Gerdes were engaged at a street crossing in the new "twinkle dance." To avoid a head-on collision the two machines scattered pedestrians as they described a circle on the corner.

The machine of Mr. Samuels smashed into a corner curbing and climbed part way up a telephone pole before it was brought to a stop.

Mrs. Sarah Kiser Dead

Mrs. Kiser leaves three children to mourn her loss.

SKAMANIA MAN HAS UNIQUE FARM

"One of the most unique places I have seen in the Northwest," says S. A. Mitchell, who with his son, Arnold, spent the first of the week mowing in Klickitat and Skamania counties, "is that of Emil Walther, who resides on the Little White Salmon river in Skamania county. Mr. Walther, a native of Switzerland, is a born horticulturist. He has taken a number of semi-tropical fruits and is apparently acclimating them to his White Salmon valley farm. He showed me lemon trees full of fruit at most ready to ripen. He has large juicy figs a plenty. Mr. Walther has brought from his native country some of those peculiar pear trees that grow on trellises.

"It is worth the while of anyone to visit the Walther place. In addition to the trees, he has patches of all varieties of berries, and he has demonstrated that a number of grain crops grown so successfully in European countries, can be brought to successful harvest here."

While away Mr. Mitchell and son visited Cooks, Trout Lake and Glenwood.

FINS, FURS AND FEATHERS

Judge Derby's oldest daughter, Jessica, called by her father and close friends, "Pete," while recently en route home from an eastern visit with her grandfather put a poser to the conductor of a dining car. Little Miss Derby was giving a breakfast table lecture to the colored waiter, telling him that he didn't have any food worth serving.

"You haven't a thing that I can get at home," she told him.

And just then the conductor happened by.

"Now, my little lady," he said, "you just tell me what you want, and I will see that you get it."

As the conductor took up pencil and one of those little checks peculiar to railway dining cars ready to take the order, it did not take Miss Derby long to make up her mind.

"I'll take a grouse on toast," she said.

The conductor admitted himself beaten.

"I see you know how to eat," he said offering a substitute of chicken.

Various and numerous methods are used by mid-Columbia sportsmen in hunting grouse. H. L. Hasbrouck the jeweler, however, tells of the most unique means of finding the elusive birds. Mr. Hasbrouck says that the best way to hunt grouse is with binoculars.

The grouse, according to Mr. Hasbrouck, will rarely alight on tall fir or pine trees. With the glasses the fowls may be easily detected in their high perches, and then it is an easy matter to bring them down.

In New York state the Conservation Commission is considering a proposal that each holder of a hunting and angling license wear upon his clothing, at all times when hunting or fishing, a button bearing the number of his license. The button is to be supplied by the state at the time the license is purchased.

Under the system in Oregon, provided by law, for the sale of hunting and angling licenses, a button of this kind could be supplied at small cost and leave a means of protection to be added to the fund for the protection and propagation of game and fish.

It occurs to the Sportsman that the advantages to be derived from wearing a button by Oregon hunters and fishermen are many. We would like to see the proposition to adopt the button system in connection with the sale of hunting and angling licenses taken up by the sportsmen of the state and discussed in the columns of the October Sportsman.—The Oregon Sportsman.

J. B. Hunt has entered the lists of literary geniuses. In the current issue of the Oregon Sportsman appears an article, entitled "A Bear Hunt in the Columbia River Country." The story is written by Mr. Hunt, as narrated by Cecil Holman.

Thirty thousand steelhead fingerlings from the state rearing ponds at Bull Run, Ore., have just been placed in five different lakes in the Mount Hood and Mount Jefferson regions, on the Oregon national forest. This difficult work was done by the state of Oregon, the forest service and the Portland Railway-Light & Power Company in cooperation, and required seven days to complete.

Local hunters since the bird season opened on August 15 have been finding few grouse or native pheasants. It is thought by sportsmen that the extreme cold weather of last winter caused the death of the larger percentage of the game birds.

While China pheasants, more or less domesticated, were protected at valley barnyards, where they were fed by ranchers and members of the Hood River County Game Protective Association, large numbers of these birds perished in the winter's snowstorms.

John R. Nickelsen and son, Donald, visited the Parkertown district Sunday, where they bagged a fine buck. The hunters journeyed to the hunting grounds by automobile. The deer was shot, taken to the car and Mr. Nickelsen and son were soon en route home. Cuts of the buck were given to friends.

The following party of Hood River men will leave the latter part of this week by automobile for Yoncalla, where they expect to bag several fine bucks: L. Kresse and son, Hermann O. Kresse, L. C. Heizer, H. D. Emery and Harry Brown.

The annual run of salmon up the Columbia river has begun at mid-Columbia points. Local fishermen are reporting handsome catches. A number of large silversides have been landed at the mouth of the White Salmon river. Fishermen in the Hood river here have in the past few days caught a large number of salmon trout, which always accompany the run of chinook when they leave the Columbia for the smaller streams for spawning.

Judge Derby spent Sunday hunting grouse in the Summit region. He bagged a single bird.

MYRTLE GONZALEZ THE SECRET OF THE SWAMP

MUNICIPALITIES MAY EXCLUDE TERRITORY

The recent decision of the supreme court in the case of the Flavel Land Co. vs. Warrenton, wherein the court handed down the opinion that the residents of an incorporated town by direct vote might exclude territory from the corporate limits of the city has aroused a keen interest here and may lead to an election in this municipality to vote out of the town the steel bridge across Hood river, connecting the city with the East Side orchard district.

Futile informal negotiations between city and county officials over the question of the bridge have been conducted for several years. The limits of the city not only include the bridge but a half mile stretch of road leading up the East Side grade. The upkeep of both bridge and road burden the city with expensive maintenance and it has long been argued by many citizens that the river structure and highway are properly county thoroughfares.

A similar case is involved at the city of Mosier, where several years ago shortly after the citizens voted for incorporation and adopted a charter the question of excluding a bridge across Mosier creek arose. Judge Derby, of this city, who was attorney for the city, advised that the territory might be excluded by vote of the citizens, and an election for the settlement of the matter was at one time imminent. Fearing the expense of litigation over the matter, the Mosier people, however, dropped the case.

The decision of the supreme court, parallel with the opinion of Judge Derby, advanced at the time of the Mosier question, is to the effect that since the power to make amendments to a charter providing for the exclusion of territory was formerly within the jurisdiction of the state legislature, the same power rests with the people, since they have been empowered by direct vote to make charter amendments.

Oregon Lumber Co. Mill Burns

With a loss estimated at $45,000 to $50,000 the sawmill of the Baker Oregon Lumber Co. was completely destroyed by fire Monday afternoon, the blaze originating in the boiler room. Strenuous efforts by firemen and mill employees saved the planing mill, the dry kilns and the Sumpter Valley railroad buildings.

The only loss in addition to the saw mill was a small amount of lumber and some sheds. The fire throws 50 men out of work for a few days, but will not force the planing mill to close. The company is planning to run day and night crews at the Whitney and Austin sawmills until the local mill can be rebuilt.
