

WOMEN'S NERVES

Women, more than men, have excitable nerves, because tiring work and physical strain tax their more delicate nervous systems and bring premature age and chronic weakness—unless treated intelligently.

Drug-laden pills and alcoholic concoctions cannot build up a woman's strength, but the concentrated medicinal food properties in build strength from its very source and are helping thousands of women to gain control of their nerve power—overcome tiredness, nervousness, impatience and irritability.

SCOTT'S is a liquid-food—free from alcohol.

An Orchard NecessityThe Hood River Box Nailing Press

Do you know that no time saving contrivance for orchardists has ever become so universally popular as this box nailing press? These presses have been shipped to Siberian orchardists, all over the United States and to the far away fruit districts of Australia. The reasons are simple. The cost of the box is but normal when compared with the saving made by the efficient service it renders.

HUNTING WILD COWS IN THE CASCADES

The Glacier feels fortunate in securing C. B. Compton as correspondent from the De F. Flat community. Mr. Compton is a veteran newspaper man, having served on the staffs of Pacific newspapers for a number of years. While he is capable of handling the more serious side of newspaper work, he also has a well developed nose for news, and readers of the De F. Flat in the Glacier have recently been rapidly increasing because of the interesting news stories contained therein.

The following, written by Mr. Compton, is a true story of a little hunt in recent days in the Cascades of Hood River county.

Thrills aplenty and a spectacular finish attended the capture last Sunday of two renegade yearling calves from the Collins herd at Dee, which, lured away from the herd by deer and then deserted when winter came, were brought in Sunday evening. One with a bullet through its heart was lashed to the back of a pack horse; the other ignominiously led home with a rope about its neck.

These yearling calves—one heifer and one bull—were the property of the herd of R. A. Collins, which was pastured last summer on the north side of the West Fork. When the herd was rounded up this fall and brought to the dairy ranch two yearlings were missing. Later on, when the hunters fled through the foothills of Green Point with a herd of fleet-footed deer, defying all attempts to capture them. Unwilling that these animals should remain in the woods all winter, the first fall of snow in late November Collins organized an expedition of neighbors, who, armed with rifles, set out in quest of the vagabond pair. Tracks were found and trailed, but upon sight of the hunters the yearlings fled wildly through brush and over fallen logs to higher ground. Falling rain melted the snow and the trail was lost.

Five separate expeditions were made by Rancher Collins before success attended his efforts, and it is due largely to his pluck and determination to capture them—dead or alive—that the brutes are now accounted for. So difficult was the task of traveling along the precipitous slopes of mountainside that, with exception of Collins, the personnel of the various expeditions was different on each trip and only those members who accompanied him can appreciate the high night insurmountable task of trailing wild calves in the Cascades this season of the year. Accompanied by a neighboring rancher and equipped with a 25-20 caliber rifle Collins set out last Saturday for the fourth time in quest of the calves. Late in the evening they were located and after careful maneuvering Collins got close enough to try a shot at the steer. Aiming at the heart he let drive—the animal fell, but in an instant was up and away, crashing through the undergrowth. He was a trail of blood. Convinced that the 25-20 was not powerful enough, he returned home, resolved to procure a higher powered gun and make one more trip.

Enlisting the aid of Audubon Winans, an experienced hunter and crack shot, Collins and Winans set out Sunday morning with Winans' Scotch collie for a final round up, resolved to "bring in the bacon," or stay in the woods, each carrying 30-30 rifles. At high noon the yearling Jerseys were sighted at their usual feeding grounds. A careful reconnoiter was made, the hunters circling stealthily. Startled by the breaking of a twig under Collins' foot, the steer started full tilt up the hill towards Winans, the heifer running back in the opposite direction. Suddenly sighting Winans standing off to the right of its headlong course, the maddened steer, infuriated by the recollection of the painful bullet of the preceding day with lowered head and increased speed, veered toward the hunter in full charge. At a distance of 15 feet Winans let go a 30-30 bullet aimed at the animal's heart. The galloping steer fell with a crash, but in an instant was up again and lunging forward. Winans realized that his aim had been true and that the quarry was fatally wounded. A second later the outlaw steer fell dead within a few feet of his slayer.

Attracted by the barking of the Scotch collie a few hundred yards distant, the two hunters turned their steps in that direction. Then followed the following of a distressed cow and the two men rushed forward waist deep in snow to respond to the dog's call. Braced against a fallen tree the trained collie had the recalcitrant heifer by the tail. Struggling and unable to move forward, the heifer fell. Instantly the dog rushed forward and grabbed the apostate calf by the nose and held it securely until the two men arrived and placed a strong rope about its neck.

Mr. Collins is a veteran of the Rugby field, having been at one time a member of the crack team of Santa Clara College. When he thought his collie dog was not going to be able to hold the wild cow, which was trying to regain her feet, he leaped through the air and tackled her around the forelegs. The impact of his jump brought the cow to the snow covered earth again.

With a diamond hitch the steer was strapped to the back of a horse; the heifer meekly surrendered and followed the triumphant procession back to the Collins ranch. After an absence of three months from the herd, the heifer soon renewed acquaintances, and although furry coated and fat, seemed overjoyed to be back with the bunch and jostled a calf away from a bucket of milk placed before it.

Danger Signal

If the fire bell should ring would you run and stop it or go and help to put out the fire? It is much the same way with a cough. A cough is a danger signal as a fire bell. You should no more try to suppress it than to stifle a fire bell when it is ringing, but should cure the disease that causes the coughing. This can nearly always be done by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many have used it with the most beneficial results. It is especially valuable for the persistent cough that so often follows a bad cold or an attack of grip. Mrs. Thomas Beeching, Andrews, Ind., writes: "During the winter my husband takes cold easily and coughs. I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine for breaking up these attacks and you cannot get him to take any other," obtainable everywhere.

OVERLAND DEALERS' CONVENTION SUCCESS

The Willys-Overland Co., of Toledo, pulled off the greatest advertising stunt ever attempted when they conceived the idea of entertaining their agents from all over the United States, during the month of December. Invitations were issued for a two days' visit at the big Toledo plant. The invitations were extended to the Overland dealers, their bankers and various newspaper men.

Both C. F. Gilbert and H. T. DeWitt, Overland dealers for Hood River county, took advantage of this invitation, and are enthusiastic in declaring there never was and never will be another trip like it. The fun began when the train of solid Pullman cars left Toledo for the Hood River country, and pleasure until the train arrived on the Pacific again.

John N. Willys, president of the Overland Co., had arranged the entire trip, and the two days at the factory, according to Gilbert & DeWitt, were the most profitable days ever spent by them.

The entire party was divided into groups of eight or ten, and a guide conducted each group through the factory, explaining each operation in automobile manufacturing. Space does not permit us to give a detailed description of the factory wonders as Gilbert & DeWitt describe them, but they are both full of enthusiasm about the Overland cars as a result of the trip.

Mr. Willys himself presided at the two banquets given in honor of the Pacific coast dealers. He outlined the sales policies and service plans of the Overland Co. for the coming year, besides giving advance information about new models to be brought out by the Overland Company.

Hood River received her share of advertising on this trip. When the special train pulled into the depot here, it was greeted by a delegation of Hood River business men, and all members of the party received Hood River apples, presented by several of our most charming young ladies.

The editor of the Roseburg Evening News was a member of the party on board the special, and evidently Hood River made an impression on the party, as the Evening News in writing up a story of the trip makes the following comments: "On arriving at Hood River a demonstration of community boosting was given that had no equal or rival along the whole route, enthusiastic and able as many of them were. A great crowd had assembled at the station and among them were over a score of rosy cheeked lassies each with a large basket of the famous apples of Hood River in sufficient quantity that every member of the excursion had his hands and pockets filled with the splendid fruit. Each of the apples was separately wrapped, the wrappers being labeled so there could be no mistake that they came from Hood River. When the train started again, it was found that at least ten full boxes were on board with the compliments of Gilbert & DeWitt. It certainly was a splendid advertisement of the product that has made Hood River famous."

SYLVESTER TO WED TENNESSEE GIRL

The following item appeared in Knoxville, Tenn., papers of Sunday, December 10: "Mr. and Mrs. Augustus W. Swindoll announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Annie Belle, to William Merriek Sylvester, of Hood River, Ore."

"Owing to the wide popularity of the bride-to-be the above announcement will prove of unusual interest. Miss Swindoll is the talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Swindoll, of this city, and on account of her sincere manner and charming personality, there are hosts of friends to regret her marriage will take her to a distance state. Mr. Sylvester was formerly of Boston, Mass., but for the past ten years he and his mother have made their home in the west. He is a member of the Multnomah club, of Portland, Oregon, and is connected with the Apple Growers Association, located in Hood River, Ore., one of the largest shipping interests of the Northwest. "The wedding will occur early in the new year at the home of the bride-to-be's aunt, Mrs. Samuel C. Lancaster, in Portland, Ore., with whom Miss Swindoll has spent considerable time in recent years."

UPPER VALLEY SNOW TWO FEET DEEP

Three feet of snow have already fallen at points of high altitude in the Upper Valley, according to Homer A. Rogers, of Mount Hood Lodge, who passed through Hood River last week en route to Portland.

"The snow has settled down now to a depth of about two feet," says Mr. Rogers, "and the snowshoeing and skiing are as fine as one would wish." Mr. Rogers was visiting Portland to make preparations for a number of holiday parties expected to participate in the winter sports on Mount Hood's side. The snowfields of Mount Hood bid fair to become as popular in the winter months as in summertime, and the Mount Hood Railroad Co. is preparing to inaugurate a special service for the accommodation of Portland people who wish to participate in skiing and snowshoeing.

Waucomie and George Disagree

(From Skamania County, Wash., Pioneer)

When Waucomie was shown the weather prognostications of that Hood River savage who predicted the snow would be "two squaws deep by Christmas," he laughed and said "waka cumtux," and predicted there would not be much snow this year. "Mebbe half a squaw in January, mebbe not so much." Waucomie is our aborigine weather prophet for this part of the country. There seems to be either a decided difference of opinion in our Indian weather forecasters or a decided difference in the snowfall between Hood River and this place, only 20 miles apart and both on a level with the Columbia river. We never cared much before about the size of a squaw, whether she was long or short, fat or lean, but now we are glad that a large majority of them are decidedly short and stubby, for it makes a difference of several inches in our snowfall.

FRUIT EXCHANGE AN-NOUNCES NEW RECORD

The Northwestern Fruit Exchange is out with an interesting report showing that out of a total of 2057 cars handled by the Exchange this season, up to November 30, the Exchange had remitted in full to the growers on 1552 cars, or 75 1/2 per cent. The average time between date of shipment and date of full remittance on the entire 1552 cars is given as 27 days. Commenting on these figures H. H. White, treasurer of the Exchange, says: "The Exchange's previous records for prompt f. o. b. sales and quick cash returns have all been shattered this year, and we have set up a new record which will not be easy for even ourselves to beat. The record of 27 days' average between the shipment and the cash is possible only because of the f. o. b. sales system employed by the Exchange. It would be impossible under any form of consignment. All but a negligible percentage of the cars were sold before shipment (a large percentage before harvest) at firm prices fully known to and approved by the growers and left shipping point billed direct to the buyers in 201 different domestic and foreign markets, on terms cash against the documents on arrival. The 27 day average includes the foreign shipments also. We would even have lowered this 27 day record had the railroads made their customary time. As it was, cars have taken an unusually long time this year to reach destination, due, no doubt, to congested terminals, shortage of motive power, etc."

"The Exchange machinery this year, while carrying the heaviest load in its history, has run more smoothly than ever before and the Exchange could easily have cleared several thousand more cars without embarrassing the organization in the slightest. Had it not been for the car shortage, the Exchange could have cleared its entire tonnage and closed its accounts with the growers by or before January 1st."

HOOD RIVER MAY GET RECRUITING STATION

Members of the Commercial club and local business men have petitioned Oregon recruiting headquarters, of Portland, to establish the proposed new recruiting office planned for some point between Pendleton and Portland at this city. Activity on the part of the local men was stimulated by suggestions from Sergeants Leland S. Beveridge, Wallace Fore and W. A. Kinney, who have been here the past several days seeking new material for the Regular army. While The Dalles is making a strong appeal for the new recruiting office, the visiting recruiting men declare that Hood River, despite the fact that its population is materially smaller than that of The Dalles, is more favorably located for a canvassing of numerous small points on both sides of the stream in the mid-Columbia river district. The fact that Hood River has a military organization, the Twelfth Company, Coast Artillery Corps, Oregon National Guard, it is stated, also causes army men to look more favorably on the location of the new station here.

CLUB ASKS ROAD-MASTER APPOINTMENT

The Commercial club wants a roadmaster for Hood River county the coming year. Following the news in Portland papers that the convention of county commissioners has recommended that supervisors and roadmasters be done away with and a greater power in road matters be vested in the county court, Secretary Scott, of the club, last week wired County Judge Stanton who attended the Portland meeting urging him on his return to give the East Side road, connecting the city with orchard districts east of Hood River, immediate attention. The telegram concluded with the statement that Hood River county citizens wanted a roadmaster next year.

At a recent special meeting called by the county court the recommendation that a county roadmaster be appointed for next year, was adopted. The East Side road, formerly a waterborne macadam, was improved by a surfacing of gravel this fall. The road made a very favorable impression until the heavy traffic of apple wagons began. It has since become well impassable, according to Secretary Scott.

Christmas Services at Catholic Church

We now have the last week of the sacred Season of Advent. This week is called Ember-Week, in which occur three Ember-Days, of fasting and abstinence. These Ember-Days fall on Wednesday, Dec. 20, Friday, Dec. 22, and Saturday, Dec. 23.

Next Sunday, Dec. 24, is the fourth and last Sunday of Advent, and at the same time, the Vigil of Christmas. Services next Sunday are as usual: First Mass at 8 a. m. and second mass at 10:30 a. m. Short sermons at both masses.

Next Monday, Dec. 25, the church celebrates the Solemn Festival of Christmas. This joyous Feast is the Great Day of Jesus Christ, the Redeemer of the world, commemorating the sacred birth of our Savior, in a stable at Bethlehem, about 1916 years ago.

Three Holy Masses will be celebrated on Christmas, commemorating and symbolizing the threefold birth of Jesus, the Savior:

The First Mass, a midnight High Mass at 12 o'clock on Christmas Eve. The Second Mass at 8 a. m. on Christmas morning.

The Third Mass, a High Mass at 10:30 a. m. on Christmas Day. Sermons at all the Masses.

Everybody is cordially invited and welcome to attend. A merry joyful Christmas to all.

Farmers' Week Approaches

Farmers' and Home Makers' week, as observed annually at the Oregon Agricultural College, will be held the coming year, January 2-6. Simultaneously the first annual Northwestern Grain Contention will be held at Corvallis.

A large number of local men are expected to attend the meeting.

Bank Official Recommends Them
T. J. Norrell, V. P. Bank of Cottonwood, Tex., writes: "Beyond doubt I have received great relief and take great pleasure in recommending Foley Kidney Pills. Kidney trouble makes one worried and hopeless, by aches, pains, soreness, stiffness, backache, rheumatism. These symptoms, as well as sleep disturbing bladder disorders, yield quickly to Foley Kidney Pills. They cast out poisons and purify the blood. Sold everywhere."
