Food Preparedness

In Hood River you can raise most of your food requirements, even cereals. At once get some wheat and corn for seeding. Raise an acre or two of wheat and have it threshed. You can bring it to our grist mill and we will make you whole wheat flour and graham flour and will exchange standard family patent white flour for your surplus wheat. The same with your corn. Plant a good standard variety of corn and cultivate and mature it well. We can make you corn meal or crack the corn for your stock. Mr. Farmer, there is no excuse for you paying out the cash for your flour and meal when you can get a good fresh article raised on your own farm and get it milled locally. Incidentally there is no better or healthier foodstuff.

You can go further than this. You can get your barley, oats or wheat, that you produce yourself, rolled at our warehouse providing it is properly threshed. This will help out your stock feed bills. Cereals and grain will be high, so prepare right now to meet the condition. Regardless of high prices it is the only thing to do anyway. Your business of any sort will receive our best attention.

TROUT LAKE.

April 5.

R. W. Cooney, county agricultural agent, who is connected with the operative extension work of the state college of Washington and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will speak to the members of Trout Lake grange next week Saturday, April 14, from 2 to 4 p. m., on the subject of silos and any other farm problem that presents itself for solution.

Mr. Cooney believes that the farmers here should seriously consider building silos. They have also been recommended at our farm institutes. It is hoped all grangers will be present and prepared to ask questions. Mr. Cooney wants to help you, the question is, will you let him?

Youngsters Build Bird Houses

A keen interest in protection of song birds is now being manifested by the students of the Hood River schools. The children, urged by the members of the faculty, will carry on a campaign this summer to attract more birds to the city. Scores of bird houses will be built on city parks and around residences.

The children of the grade schools, who have just participated in a bird house building contest, exhibited their structures the first of the week at Slocum & Canfield's.
