HILLS CAUSE CIRCUS DISAPPOINTMENT

Disappointment prevailed here Monday when the Cole Bros. circus, the first of any magnitude that has ever visited the town, failed to give the usual free street parade. Circus authorities announced that the parade was omitted because of the steep hills of the city. Nor did the circus give the evening performance which the town's business population expected to attend. Before dark crews of men were busily engaged in getting the heavy wagons of paraphernalia down the heavy grades. Fifteen teams were necessary to draw several of the heavy wagons up the steep streets Sunday.

The circus of today is very much like the circus of 10 and 20 years ago. But a circus never grows old, and the boys of yesterday, who have become the grown men of today, enjoyed Cole Bros.' performance Monday as they did 10 and 20 years ago. Yes, they enjoyed the stunts even more, for their pleasure was doubled as they watched the excitement of their children and grandchildren.

But circuses are somewhat different in many respects from those of a number of years ago. A good many of the rough edges are smoothed off. The rough characters of old time show days are no more. The shell games, the short changers and circus managers have come to realize the value of courtesy. And Cole Bros. are exponents of modern business methods. The attendants of the Cole Bros. circus recommended themselves to the people of Hood River by their courtesy. It did not seem feigned, but the men met the show-goers with pleasant smiles and seemed to enjoy giving a pleasing service.

About a half hour before the door to the big top was thrown open, one of the managers, still smiling, however, remarked that he guessed they were up against it. Less than 100 people were present. "We will not make enough to pay for horse feed," he said. But a man who knew the Hood River people tried to calm his fears by explaining that he would find the Hood River crowd different from that of most places. The crowd lined up beside the ballyhoo crier with mouths agape to catch any possible free excitement, but when the circus was really ready to open they were there, and by the time the grand pageant of all nations was bustling in, the reserved rooms and the menagerie tent, the seats, reserved section and all, were filled to capacity and the show proved a real treat to Hood River folk young and old.

As for clowns, show goes have seen better. The Cole Bros. clowns need a little pep. But the main features of equestrianism, the tumblers, the slack wire performers, the trapeze artists, all of them were good.

And with a troupe of four elephants as the climax act the trained animals were the best ever seen in Hood River. The act of Miss Eastman, called the "prima donna of the white top," who sang in a voice that had been heard to better advantage had she been surrounded by acoustic properties, was mounted on a snow white horse, and a score of pigeons came from the four corners of the tent to alight on her head and about her horse.

SEARCH FOR BOY'S BODY IS UNAVAILING

Although scores, among them experienced men, searched the stream foot by foot last week and dynamite charges were exploded in the deeper pools, the body of 13-year-old Hillman Strong, who was drowned Monday afternoon in the Devil's Punch Bowl, still remains undiscovered. An appeal was made by Mr. Strong to all local fishermen who frequent the river in hundreds at this season, to be alert for the body of his son. A faint ray of hope was given Mr. and Mrs. Strong Friday evening when William Mayer, conductor of the west bound Pendleton express of the O. W. R. & N. Co., telegraphed the local office that a woman passenger, who alighted at Troutdale, had seen the body of a boy floating face downward at the tunnel entrance just east of Rooster Rock. While local men considered it very improbable that the body could have been washed the twelve mile distance from the Punch Bowl down the Hood river and drifted from here for 40 miles down the Columbia, the clue was followed up. The thorough search of men sent out from Corbett and Rooster Rock, however, was unavailing.

For the purpose of searching the Punch Bowl, Mr. Strong constructed a boat, from which the deep pool was dragged with lines on which many hooks were attached.

Sturdy, Economical GRANT SIX—$875

OF the 20,000 GRANT SIXES produced this season a surprisingly large number have been sold to people who have owned more expensive cars.

But they have asked themselves: "Why spend two or three hundred dollars more at the start and a great deal more for operating expense every month, and not get any more than the GRANT SIX gives you, if as much?"

GRANT SIX economy—20 miles to a gallon of gasoline, 900 miles to a gallon of oil and remarkable mileage from tires—is unrivaled.

Yet the GRANT SIX at $875 is higher powered than all but one or two cars at anywhere near its price. The overhead valve GRANT engine is the admiration of the industry.

Low as its price is in comparison with other cars, the GRANT Six lacks nothing of appearance, roominess, comfort or sound construction. Comparison will prove this.

At its present price, $875, the GRANT SIX is a real investment. There will be a buyer for every car that can be produced this season. Get your GRANT SIX now.

Alien Guilty of Heinous Crime

Ernest Tirpitz, a 47 year old alien, who says he was born in Germany, father of six children, who was taken Friday night by local authorities, confessed to City Marshal Carson that he has been guilty of intimate relations with a 16 year old daughter, Anna, for several years. In his confession the man recalled that in July, 1915, he killed the newly born babe of the daughter, supposing it to be his own child. The body, as is stated in a written statement signed by Tirpitz, was buried in a hay stack near the Falls and Lakeview, where the family then resided.

The scores of silver gray squirrels frequenting the pine and oak trees that surround the Park street school building offer rare sights to passing pedestrians. On the playground of the school lawn is a bubbling fountain. With little streams from which the furry rodents usually quench their thirst dried by the summer's drought, the squirrels visit the fountain. A dozen of them at a time may be seen scampering over the drinking place, fighting for the bubbling cup like a crowd of eager children. The squirrels, too, seem to enjoy splashing at each other with the water, hurling geysers of the bubbling stream by well aimed blows of their front feet.
