CAPT. WILBUR GIVES ORATION ON FOURTH

Captain George R. Wilbur's address, delivered at the Fourth of July exercises, was as follows:

We may well pause, Fellow Citizens, for a brief period at the threshold of these Independence Day festivities, to contemplate, not the infant of 1776, but the giant of 1917. Do you realize the position America occupies in the world today? Are you conscious of the change of the situation in the last few, short months? One year ago today we, as humble citizens of a village of a neutral nation observed the anniversary of our National birthday. Today—and I say it with pride, joy, confidence and with assurance that history will bear me out—the activities of the day echo around the world; the Fourth of July is no longer localized, no longer provincial; it is internationalized. One year ago it was emphasized only as the anniversary of the birth of a nation, today it is sanctified as the birth of the idea which has set free the people of the world. For over a century it remained American and, to aliens, of doubtful importance. In the space of a few short months it has gained existence for hundreds of millions of people who never before had heard of it or its significance.

Seven score and one year ago forefathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created free and equal. The world scoffed and shook its head at the idea. Four score and seven years thereafter our fathers and brothers engaged in a great and bloody internecine struggle to determine whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated could long endure. Right triumphed; the nation was preserved, and the virtue of the principle upheld. Still foreigners doubted. The kings and emperors, by power of might, maintaining under the fiat of divine right, held in the leash of governmental authority and continued to reign. But all this time the infant idea was growing up and the people of all hues and with all the tongues of Babel were discussing and learning of the rights and powers of individual man. The earth was dry for the holocaust, needing but the spark to set off the conflagration.

The God of the Universe works in mysterious ways his wonders to perform. There is no fate but the hand of Him who fills. In the middle of the year 1914 the finger of that hand pointed to an obscure town in an obscure state in eastern Europe. You will remember the service the little, unknown town of Bethlehem played in the world's history. So with Sarajevo. A prince of a great nation sojourning there was assassinated by a crazy Serb, and the spark thus struck ignited the world. Events followed rapidly. Thirty days later an insulting peremptory note was sent by Austria to little Serbia; the demand was refused and war was declared and commenced. In three days Germany, Russia, France and England were rapidly mobilizing their fighting forces; Belgium was invaded and determined to resist in self defence, was drawn into the struggle. The awful thing was going; Europe was on fire and but few of the nations have been able to remain neutral.

And now comes our fellow American, necessarily a little fellow, he of the thin, white blood and of weak physical and moral fibre, he of restricted vision and of no imagination, content in his narrow orbit and incapable of cherishing ideas, and demands: "Why has America interfered in this Old World war? Why has she, happy and prosperous and uninvaded, entered into Europe's quarrels?" Ah, my friends, it is as easy as one proud to answer. America is at least in this war because she sees the peoples of the world are ready to recognize the spirit which gave her birth and she is inspired to help in the propaganda. She is in this war because she is actuated by the same spirit which impelled Columbus, Martin Luther, Savonarola, Livingston and every other man of every other time who risked his life and fortune in defence of an ideal and that suffering humanity might be lifted up. How could she do otherwise with the examples of 1776 and 1812 before her? The very name of America stands for freedom and for the individual and for whatever sacrifice becomes necessary to obtain it. An ideal of unselfish purpose, sacrificing, without hope or desire for territory or gain or reward but that which comes from the emotional satisfaction of duty performed and right preserved. America is also in this war for a far different and more practical reason, the compelling one of the first law of nature—self defence. When will the small body of blind Americans who are guilty of inactive treason by opposing our long-deferred preparation to meet and right preserved. America is also in this war for a far different and more practical reason, the compelling one of the first law of nature—self defence. When will the small body of blind Americans who are guilty of inactive treason by opposing our long-deferred preparation to meet and right preserved.

London and welcomed our advent to the Allies' side to save democracy to the world. France, beloved France, helped us in our struggle for independence and later secured her own. And the latest convert is Russia, big, overgrown Russian, who has forcibly seized her liberty and does not yet know what to do with it, and asks the aid of our experience. No democracy may be a poor warmaker, because it does not make for war, but it is the people's government because it is the people's will, and will and must prevail throughout the world.

You whose youthful spirits have soared with the bursting noise of firecrackers and pyrotechnics, and you of more mature years whose blood has coursed more rapidly and tears more freely with fervent emotion, your ambition, your pride, your hope is kindred with that of the struggling peoples of the whole world. Democracy is at last in the saddle and is riding free and strong triumphantly through the ages, and the Star-spangled Banner, alone our pride and hope 'till now, is the emblem of struggling peoples of all nations.
