Summer Camp Made Possible.

THROUGH a proposition that I am this week able to make to the people of the Hood River Valley, adequate camping grounds in virgin forests on the headwaters of the West Fork of Hood River may be preserved for the pleasure of us now residing here and then handed down to posterity.

Briefly this is my proposition:

On the wooded portion of my 160 acre homestead I will plot at least 100 lots, each 132 by 66 feet, which I will sell to Hood River citizens, the sum of $10.00 to be paid down and the balance of $80.00 in one year. I will convey to each purchaser an undivided interest in a free water right of 40 inches and will also deed to the purchasers as a whole 20 acres of timber to the west of the park, to be used by the purchasers as wind break and for its natural beauty. I agree to brush and remove fallen logs and tree trunks from the lots.

This is an opportunity that pride of Hood River men and women will not permit to pass unnoticed.

TWO THOUSAND SAY GOODBYE

12TH CO. GETS IMPRESSIVE SENDOFF

Rousing Addresses Delivered by Bishop Paddock and Bill Sunday—"To Hell with Kaisers," Says Latter

The events of last Sunday afternoon will never be forgotten in Hood River. They will be overshadowed by just one other event, and that will be when the boys of Twelfth Company, who were given a royal send-off as they entrained Sunday afternoon, come marching back to the mothers, the wives, the sweethearts and the friends, who admire, respect and love them.

A crowd, estimated at 2,000, was at the station to see the men leaving for Fort Stevens. People began assembling almost an hour before train time, automobiles were parked for blocks round.

No Hood River scene has ever been more impressive. Amid the cheers of assembled friends the men in olive drab, escorted by the blue-clad members of the local post of the Grand Army of the Republic, arrived in marching column from the temporary camps at the station.

As the 77 stalwart, uniformed lads drew to attention in imposing line in the shadow of the Mount Hood Hotel Capt. Wilbur announced that Bishop R. L. Paddock, of the Oregon conference of the Episcopal church, would deliver a short farewell address. Bishop Paddock, who has offered his own services to his country and who expects a call to serve as chaplain on a foreign field, was to have delivered the address at special services planned for Sunday afternoon at the open air theatre.

Since the boys were called to mobilize before the service could be held, it was fitting that he should express the feeling of Hood River in a goodbye talk.

Bishop Paddock's words were of pride in the Hood River body of fine men. The thoughts, as expressed by him, tended to lift the soldiers and to be ever ready to surge in upon the emotions of the big crowd.

"This is not the time for what newspaper men are wont to call 'sob stuff,'" said the prominent Episcopal minister, "but rather for the feeling of pride in these men, who we feel confident will do their full duty in defending the honor of their country, and we almost envy them the splendid opportunity that is theirs. They have offered themselves in a cause that is greater than patriotism. They have enlisted for what we may call new internationalism. The United States is in the war for no selfish motive, but in behalf of the great brotherhood of nations, of humanity and freedom.

"I sometimes think that the Power Above has permitted this war, in order that America may be awakened from her indifference, her selfishness and her contentment with the status quo. A man, may gain great possessions and prosper, but at the same time lose its soul. These men who are leaving us today may be making great material sacrifices—home, business and friends, but they are saving their souls and proving their manhood."

In his conclusion Bishop Paddock sketched the rise of the great banner, the Stars and Stripes, and he issued a call to other men who are in position to rally to the noblest of all calls, that of serving one's country.

Breaking ranks, the men made the most of the few minutes intervening until the arrival of the train, receiving the handshakes of neighbors and the parting embraces of mothers, wives and sweethearts, while the local band played patriotic airs. Then Mayor Dumble introduced the noted evangelist.

Fired by the words of Billy Sunday, the ruling emotion of sadness gave way to one of pride and the Columbia Gorge echoed with the volume of the thousands of cheering voices.

"Such a sight as this," cried the noted preacher in voice that reached the farthest edges of the big crowd and hushed even the whisper of those uttering farewells, "makes me glad that I am an American, and I can well believe that we are with you, Woodrow Wilson, and to hell with the kaiser. And O! proud we are of you boys today, for you are ready to do your part in crushing the Prussian autocracy that threatens the world. You are going to fight, my boys, and if you cross the sea, for some of you this may be your last glimpse of these fir-clad hills of Oregon, and old Mount Hood may be waving her farewell kiss."

"But not one of these mothers, not one of these fathers, not one of these little children, even though they may not be big enough to understand, but will be glad and proud, for they know that you are fighting for us. The Stars and Stripes have been in many a fix since 1776 but never yet have they trailed the ground.

"Pour a ray of sunshine into a rat hole, and it is no longer a fit home for rats. The rats have to move or perish. Our action, boys, has been the ray of sunshine that makes the Hood River Valley no longer a fit place for pro-Germans or slackers."

An incoming train whistled, some one gave the command and as Mr. Sunday stepped down from his improvised rostrum overlooking the crowds, he cried, "God speed, boys, and may the Lord bless you."

Entraining was but a matter of a minute, and the locomotive puffed and the cars, each window and vestibule door framing from two to three of the 80 representative Hood River Valley boys, drew away, with Bishop Paddock and Mayor F. C. Stone, Oregon Medical Corps, retired, leading, the big crowd gave three mighty yells and a cheer.

LARGE APPLE ORDER LANDED

CALIFORNIA TO GET 25 CARLOADS

Exchange Affiliations Report Initial Sale—Conditions Evidence Fine Prices for All Grades of Apples

The market opening with an order of 25 carloads of "C" grade Spitzenburgs and Newtowns placed by California distributing concerns with the Fruit Growers Exchange and the Hood River Apple & Storage Co., the two local affiliations of the Northwestern Fruit Exchange, at a price of $1.25 per box, E. O. Hood River, growers are optimistic over the 1917 apple deal. The season's initial order was reported Saturday by Kenneth McKay, manager of the former cooperative shipping agency, who is just back from Seattle and other coast points and who predicts an excellent price for the extra fancy and fancy grades of commercial varieties.

"The situation in the banana and orange business is most encouraging to the apple grower," says Mr. McKay. "With bottoms needed to bring the bananas from Central America being commandeered for the trans-Atlantic business, the importation of bananas is going to drop off materially. It is reported that the orange crop is going to be short this season."

The only fear of shippers at the present time is that of a car shortage and following the period of increase in this fall. All fruit shipping concerns and the Fruit Growers Agency are cooperating to secure a full transportation of fruit.

The Agency, in order to aid the situation, has agreed to increase in the minimum loads of refrigerator cars. The minimum of apples has been increased from 630 to 714 boxes, while the pear minimum will be 511 boxes. In a report on the Agency proceedings it is stated that many cars will carry all the apples that can be safely packed in them. Last year, according to the report, it was found by shipments from Wenatchee that 1,008 boxes of apples could be conveniently shipped in a car.

C. W. McCullagh, too, is optimistic over the sales outlook for the coming fall. Mr. McCullagh, who is a keen observer of all conditions pertaining to the apple trade, says that conditions of all competitive fruit markets are such as to leave a feeling of encouragement among northwestern apple men.

13 KNIGHTS DUBBED AT COMMANDERY 13

Thirteen is the lucky number of The Dalles Commandery of Knights Templar, No. 13. The Commandery was originally instituted with a membership of 13. The charter was granted on the 13th day of the month, and proceedings of institution took place on the 23d day of the month.

The numerical order of things for The Dalles Commandery, the members of which were hosts at the organization of the Bend Commandery, U. D., held last Saturday night at The Dalles by special dispensation, was carried out for 13 candidates were presented to be dubbed Sir Knights by W. F. Laraway, of this city, Grand Commander for Oregon.

Other Sir Knights who attended from this city were Dr. H. L. Dumble and C. K. Marshall.

The Dalles Commandery entertained the visiting Knights Templar with a chicken banquet at the Hotel Dalles.

BOYS MAY STAY LONG AT FORT

According to a telegram received Tuesday morning from Sergeant Forrest L. Moe, Twelfth Company, the local guardsmen will be stationed for a considerable length of time at Fort Stevens. Sergeant Moe stated in his message that the local company was the only one provided with barracks.

The telegram in full from Sergeant Moe, who will be the Glacier's Twelfth Company correspondent and who will send special articles for home folks each week, is as follows:

"Company arrived at Fort Stevens Monday morning at six o'clock. Equipment now complete except for a few uniforms. The 77 Hood River men were joined by 30 from Portland. The complete company now encamped in barracks. As we are the only one of the twelve provided with barracks the indications are that our boys will remain at fort a long time. Three of the national guard companies will soon go to Fort Columbia and two to Fort Canby. Besides the 12 guard companies, there are three regular army coast artillery companies are located here permanently."

LUCIAN CARSON IS WINNING PROMOTIONS

Due to the several years of experience as electrician and his indomitable energy, Lucian Carson, son of City Marshal Carson, has made a rapid rise in his two months' service in the Aviation Corps of the army. Young Carson writes that he has just been promoted to the rank of sergeant and that his chances for a commission are bright.

The young man was sent from Portland to Camp Kelly, Tex. He is now at Fairfield, near Dayton, O., where he is learning the actual problems of air scouting.

Sewage Odors Offend

Their nostrils assailed by a bouquet of unsavory smells when the wind blows from the east over the lowland jungles of the Columbia, residents of the northwest section of the city are urging city authorities to clear away debris lodged at the mouth of the outfall sewer by the high water of the Columbia river. The odors from the sewage, it is stated, are also offensive to the numerous residents of Underwood, who make frequent shopping trips to the city across the sand flats.

Mazamas Help Red Cross

The dinner served on Saturday, July 14, by the Upper Valley women of the Hood River Red Cross Society, netted $57.89, a check for that amount having been received last week by Walter Kimball, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the society. By the same mail Mr. Kimball received a check for $22.50 from the Parkdale Grange, the fund representing the accumulation of the proceeds of recent dances and other social events.

People Are Thanked

I wish thus to tender the sincere thanks of all the women of the Artillery Auxiliary Corps to the many families of both the city and valley who were liberal in their donations of fruits, vegetables and delicacies for the men of Twelfth Company. It was a generosity that the boys and Auxiliary women will never forget.

Mrs. L. M. Bentley,
Chairman of Committee.
