BOND CAMPAIGN STIMULATED

The Hood River county Liberty Loan campaign has received a gratifying stimulus through the patriotic action of the Hood River business and professional men, who at the suggestion of C. A. Miller, Oregon campaign manager, met at the Commercial club Tuesday night to organize a Business Men's Liberty Loan committee.

Unfortunately we of Hood River have been unable to give the great national drive for subscribing the Second Liberty Loan the attention that it merits. We believe that it is true that all Hood River people are interested, but when the orchardist works all day and part of the night, his mind continually occupied with the innumerable details of an apple harvest, he is so overwhelmed with his own personal affairs that those of the nation are for the moment forgotten.

Still we of Hood River should remember that the Liberty Loan is also our affair. It is an affair of every man, woman and child whose home life is made secure by the protection of the Stars and Stripes. The bonds are being sold to abolish the menace to our democracy; that all of us may continue to rest secure and be privileged to live as free Americans. Thus this Liberty Loan is your business and my business. It is the personal affair of every one of the nation.

And the orchardists of the Hood River valley should thank the business men of Hood River for pledging themselves to bring the message of the loan to their very doors. Remember that help is short in every business of the city just as on the ranch, and all storekeepers and every professional man is very busy. Yet these patriotic men of Hood River have pledged themselves to give their time, in order that the busy Hood River valley orchardist may be privileged to receive a full explanation of the Liberty Loan and to participate in it with a minimum loss of time himself.

And when one of the flying squadrons comes out to see you even questions, greet these men as fellow patriots, hear the message they bring from Uncle Sam, and if you haven't subscribed for a Liberty Bond give them your subscription.

In all patriotic activities Oregon has been first among her sister states of the nation. Hood River county has been first among her sister counties of the great Northwestern commonwealth. Let us not lose step; let us keep our record irrefragable.

And furthermore, remember that you are not asked to give one single cent to the government or anybody else when you are called on to subscribe for a Liberty Loan. You are asked simply to make an investment, one that pays an interest of four per cent. When you subscribe you simply convert your earnings or wealth from one form into another, in order to help the United States government. Liberty loans in payment of debts may be passed in almost every instance just as gold or silver certificates. Do not forget that they draw four per cent interest all the time.

LIBERTY BOND TAXATION

It is very important that the impression created by some newspaper articles with regard to the taxability of the new four per cent bonds be corrected. The fact is that the bonds, although taxable, are taxable in such a way that the taxation feature affects very few people indeed.

You will note in the tax exemption clause of the official circular of the treasury department describing the Liberty Loan, issued under date of October 1, 1917, that these bonds are exempt both as to principal and interest, from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States or any state, except (a) estate or inheritance taxes, and (b) surtaxes, excess profits and war profits taxes. You will further note that these bonds to the extent of $5,000 are exempt even from surtaxes, excess profits and war profits taxes.

Bearing this feature in mind, you will be interested to know that the surtax in its application to these bonds, according to the last income tax returns, would apply only to 246,000 people in this country, because only that number have incomes exceeding $5,000; only 3,824 people have incomes above $10,000, and only 10,000 above $50,000. It is obvious, therefore, that the surtax applies only to these bonds in the hands of 246,000 people, and so far as the rest of the country is concerned the bonds are exempt from taxation except estate or inheritance taxes.

As to the 246,000 people, only a relatively small portion of them will be affected to any great extent by the surtax. Indeed the four per cent bonds of the present issue yield a better rate of return even with the provision as to the surtax, than the 3 1/2 per cent bonds of the previous issue, except where they are held by the very few exceptionally wealthy people.

A HOOD RIVER FAILING

Because orchardists are extremely busy at this season of the year with the apple harvest, it was not expected that very many country people would be present Monday evening at the Liberty Loan meeting held at Library hall, but those in charge of preparations for the patriotic rally were chagrined and justly so at the small turnout of city residents.

Hood River people have a failing of going to extremes. We can remember when meetings were held on the slightest provocation. We had so many meetings that everybody got tired of them. Practically every subject under the sun was discussed. Now the pendulum has swung the other way, and it is most difficult to draw the interest of a decent sized crowd.

It seems that Hood River has the habit of going to extremes. And when meetings are held here it is the habit of every one to arrive from a half hour to 45 minutes late.

But Hood River men and women are losers by not being present at the Monday night Liberty Loan rally. No more fluent or eloquent speakers than Mr. Kubli and Mr. White have ever been heard in the city. Their words were a tonic to our patriotism, and those who attended returned to their homes with spirits stimulated and bubbling over with renewed enthusiasm. They brought to us the message of the Great Liberty Loan, and the necessity of its success if we would hasten the day of peace and the downfall of Prussian autocracy. It is to be regretted that so few were present to hear Mr. Kubli and Mr. White.

S. Benson, John E. Yeon, Samuel C. Lancaster and Rufus C. Holman—the Columbia River Highway is monumental to the progressive activities of all of them. The Glacier will not endeavor to pass on the merits of the squabble that has arisen between the men, Mr. Holman on one side and the other distinguished Oregonians on the other, over a bill of construction in the Shepherd's Dell vicinity. With expressions of regrets we will try to forget the matter.

War is being waged harder than ever on the great white plague. The Northwestern Anti-Tuberculosis commission, to be held in Portland Monday and Tuesday, attracted the attention of all serious Oregonians.

Who says there is no money in the furit game? A net profit of almost $1,500 per acre is something to take notice of. William Swick realized almost this amount per acre from his Bartlett pears this summer.

Are you on the honor roll of Liberty Bond purchasers?

Deer in the brakes of the Columbia should be warned to stretch or creep a camouflage of Indian summer foliage. The following men, all of whom are veteran big game hunters of this region and members of the Hood River County Game Protective Association left last week for the forested region to the southwest of the city: Cecil Holman, Jake Lenz, Robert Leasure O. H. Rhoades, Ed C. Wright and M. C. Wright.

Each of the veteran hunters declares that the best to return with at least one buck.

The Oregonian says that one of the wonders of Oregon is: The amateur salmon fisherman. He buys $10.75 worth of tackle and burns up three gallons of gasoline and $4 worth of time to get to Troutdale. He casts all day without success for a weary, fungus-coated salmon, when he could wade into any rifle and with a two-bit gaff snake out enough to feed a flock of hens.

He does it again the next Sunday.

How about the fastidious males of the species, who may be worried into a fever at some unusual untidiness about office and home but who will spend all day draping over-ripe salmon eggs on a hook, daubing clothing, hands and even faces with them.

R. E. Johnson, American Express agent, Monday received a letter from Ralph E. Warren, a Tillamook carrier pigeon fancier, who announced that a pair of birds recently released here by Mr. Johnson made the distance to Tillamook in exactly three and a half hours. The pigeons were only three months old.

The birds were first sent to Portland and relayed from there to Hood River by the Portland Homeing Club. Mr. Warren stated in his letter that he recently won a race from Arlington to Tillamook, his pigeons winging the long distance across the state in five and a half hours.

Margulis Factory Begins Operation

With William Margulis, formerly manager of the Burnside street jewelry eating house, in charge as manager, the Hood River Products Co. began the operation yesterday of its cider and vinegar plant, the second largest concern of its kind in the mid-Columbia district. The concern will also operate a by-products plant at White Salmon, Wash.

While the main office is at Odell, receiving stations have been established at Pine Grove, Parkdale and Dee.

Russian Thistle Arrives

The first Russian thistle ever seen in the valley has made its appearance this fall. A. J. Grow, an East Side orchardist, says that a large number of the obnoxious plants have matured seed on his place. All orchardists have been warned to watch for the appearance of the plants next summer and destroy them before they go to seed.

Notice

Notice is hereby given that the County Clerk of Hood River County, Oregon, will receive sealed bids for the painting of the bridges at Trout Creek and Dee. One coat of ochre, oil and lead to be given, nothing to be put on the shingles. Bids will be received up to 2 p. m. on the 20th day of October, when the bids will be opened and the contract awarded. The County reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Kent Shoemaker, County Clerk. H. M. F., Deputy.

Frank's Pullet Wins Honor

Sherman J. Frank yesterday received word from Pullman, Wash., where at the Washington State College an Northwestern laying contest has been under way for the past 11 months, that a pullet entered by him had won fourth place with 186 eggs. The local wolf will be placed on the roll of honor. The contest will close this month.

NIGHT BOND CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED

The most novel Liberty Bond campaign in the country perhaps, was launched here Tuesday night when C. A. Miller, after a conference with bankers, called together some 30 business men of the town, who organized in teams to solicit subscriptions from Hood River valley orchardists. The teams will leave town each night after supper and work in their respective territories until nine o'clock. Meetings will be held each morning, when the Liberty Bond solicitors will compare notes and turn in subscriptions.

The plan was inaugurated after the plan of holding public meetings was decided impractical because of the busy season of apple harvest.

The central committee of the business men is composed of D. G. Cruikshank, James Stranahan and R. E. Scott. The soliciting teams are as follows:

R. B. Perigo and S. J. Moore, E. O. Blanchard and Earl A. Ross, Truman Butler and Harry Conaway, C. W. McCullagh and John Barber, F. Sumner and J. H. Hazlett, J. O. McLaughlin and James Stranahan, E. P. Michael and A. J. Derby, P. L. Tompkins and J. R. Norton, Dr. H. L. Dumble and C. A. Bell, A. C. Loftis and C. D. Nicholson, W. H. Blagden and D. G. Cruikshank, Walter Walters and Hermann O. Kresse, C. C. Anderson and J. M. Culbertson, G. A. Molden and E. A. Franz, F. H. Blagden and F. A. Cram.

The Parkdale central committee is composed of J. F. Thompson and R. J. McIsaac.

W. H. RHODENHIZER IS FOUND ALIVE

W. H. Rhodenhizer, Upper Valley homesteader and merchant who disappeared in October, 1913, thought by his friends a suicide victim or to have been lost in the Cascade mountains, still lives in a letter to C. H. Vaughan, C. A. Clark, former of Parkdale, who is motoring with his family in California, tells of finding the old man in a camp on the Shasta river.

Clark enclosed in his letter the following affidavit, dated October 4, which comes to Hood River people like a message from the grave:

"This is to certify that I met C. A. Clark and wife on the Shasta river, California, and will leave this afternoon for San Francisco.

"Recalling fully, "W. H. Rhodenhizer."

Mr. Rhodenhizer, who at one time owned Upper Valley, and who was property valued at $20,000, lost his fortune in a mercantile venture. Harassed by creditors, he left his Upper Valley home for a hunting trip in the forests to the west of Mount Hood.

According to his story to Mr. Clark, related in the letter received here, the rancher-merchant, who has perhaps passed his 60th birthday, became ill and grew delirious while alone in the mountains. He says after he became better he fell in with another party of hunters, who shared their provisions with him.

Mr. Rhodenhizer states that he wandered in the mountains for five months. As the story he tells runs, his mind was affected for more than a year after the experience.

Weather Fine for Harvest

Hood River orchardists are congratulating themselves over the perfect Indian summer weather that has prevailed here for the past two weeks. Conditions for apple harvest are ideal, and more than 75 per cent of the apples will be picked by the end of the week, if the weather remains clear.

While frozes were prevailing at this date last year, killing frosts at retreat have touched Hood River. The maximum temperature Sunday was 76 degrees, and the minimum at night, 43 degrees. Tomatoes and green string beans are still being harvested from local gardens, and numerous families have not yet moved indoors from tents stretched in backyards for summer sleeping quarters.

While frost prevailed a week ago at the altitude of the general country, frost of the season hit Hood River Tuesday night. The atmosphere was so dry that damage was negligible.

The frost will hasten the picking of apples. In instances orchardists had been waiting for the apples to remain on trees for just such a cold snap, in order that a more vivid color might be added to the apples.

6-BEAN TRACKPULL 6-Horse Tractor

And these are 18 reasons why Orchardists who have seen the new invention, put on the market after years of experimentation and the most rigid tests possible, give it their O. K.:

- 1. Pulls instead of pushes itself over the ground.
2. Can be "gee-ed" and "haw-ed" out of holes and soft places like a team.
3. Has full power pull on turns as well as on the straight-away.
4. Turns clear around in a 10-foot circle.
5. Plows or harrows as close up in the corners of fields as a team.
6. Plows as close to vines and trees as a team.
7. Makes little difference how far off center you hitch.
8. Goes under branches of trees that no horse can get under.
9. Works any number of hours overtime on any kind of soil without getting tired.
10. Eats only when working and is a light eater. Costs nothing when idle.
11. Runs stationary machinery up to 10 h. p. when not plowing.
12. Weighs less and costs less to run than wheel-type tractors of same power.
13. Pays for itself in what it saves.
14. Backs as easily as it goes forward.
15. Light weight on long track surface.
16. Cultivates 10 to 20 acres in 10 hours.
17. Plows from 4 to 7 acres in 10 hours.
18. Little power required to pull tractor—power all goes to pull.

Get in touch with us right away. The company is turning out as many of these great little tractors as present facilities will admit, but there is going to be a bigger demand every day as more and more farmers and fruit growers learn about this machine. If you want a BEAN TRACKPULL TRACTOR, have it reserved right away.
