IRVIN S. COBB TELLS STORIES TO SOLDIERS

Irvin S. Cobb, newspaper man, war correspondent, magazine writer, is doing his bit in the dugouts of the Y. M. C. A. nearest the American front lines over there. He is employing his time telling stories to soldiers under the auspices of the National War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A., doing his part in keeping the morale of the American army at the topmost point. He is undergoing hardships, dodging into underground stations as sharpshooters burst, and keeping a smile in the midst of it all.

He is telling soldiers stories of the south, stories of home, that they want to hear, doing a wonderful work and enjoying it. Fourteen hours a day he is at it, 10 hours a day more than he ever worked before. He is acquiring an intimate knowledge of the American fighting man, making him in his leisure hours and amusing life just a little happier for him. His is a cheerful, helpful, encouraging message in the midst of booming cannon and imminent death and reports from the front are that he is getting it over big.

STATE POLICE IS BEING RECRUITED

Capt. H. E. Williams, of Portland, is now recruiting men for the Oregon State Police. All applications should be sent to 635 Morgan Bldg., Portland. Qualifications are as follows:

A body of state police to prevent and detect crime and apprehend criminals. All male citizens of the United States between the ages of 18 and 45 years of age, physically qualified, are eligible for service in this body.

The term of enlistment will be for two years unless sooner discharged by proper authority. Uniform and equipment furnished free of charge.

For those who wish to serve their state and country in the abolition of sedition and other crimes which are rampant during war this service will be particularly interesting.

A German Battle Hymn

If we wish to know the spirit in which a people make war, we go, not to the general and formal speeches of the great men, but to the songs that the poets write and the soldiers sing; they come glowing from the red-hot furnace of emotion that sustains the power of the nation. It is illuminating, therefore, to read this translation of a battle song that was found on a German soldier taken prisoner in Italy. William Roscoe Thayer, the historian of Italy, has made it public on this side of the water.

The song is a worthy of the age when the ancestors of the modern Germans burst out of the gloomy forests of the north to overthrow an earlier Italian civilization. It is primal, savage; it tells us what the Germans themselves think of their diplomats' assertion that this was for them a "war of defense." If our readers wish to see what wide contrasts there may be between the war spirits of great nations at war, let them, after reading this, read Mrs. Howe's Battle Hymn of the Republic.

Son of Germany in arms: Forward! This is the hour of joy and of glory. Oh, our artillerist, thy powerful cannon, thine invulnerable brother, calls thee; was it not made to renew the world? Oh, our rifleman, behold! thou art the force that wins; wherever thou penetrates is Germany.

Oh, our cavalryman, spur, attack, overthrow! let thy will spur on thy horse like a winged victory. That cowardly flesh (the Italians) is made to manure the fields, which shall be thine and thy sons'.

Son of Germany in arms, the great hour has come. Life does not finish, it passes on and is transformed without rest; the life of the conquered is absorbed by the conqueror; the life of the slain belongs to the slayer; see then how thou canst gather on the breast of thy holy fatherland the life of the world!

Do not bend to womanish pity toward women and children; the child of the conquered has often been the conqueror tomorrow; and what will victory avail if remorse comes tomorrow? What sort of a father wouldst thou be if thou shouldst kill thy enemy and leave alive the enemy of thy son? Son of Germany in arms, forward! Fulminate, shatter, beat down, trample, devastate, burn, KILL, KILL, KILL!

The hour of glory opens for us. The Youth's Companion.

Constipation and Indigestion

These are twin evils. Persons suffering from indigestion are often troubled with constipation. Mrs. Robert Allison, Mattoon, Ill., writes that when she first moved to Mattoon she was a great sufferer from indigestion and constipation. Food distressed her and there was a feeling like a heavy weight pressing on her stomach and chest. She did not rest well at night, and felt worn out a good part of the time. One bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets corrected this trouble so that she has since felt like a different person.

Hood River Has Liberty Measles

Hood River county is experiencing an epidemic of German or Liberty measles. During the past 10 days children of the grade schools of the county have contracted the disease. Many high school students have been kept away from their classes and the measles have invaded the business ranks of the city. The disease is of an extremely mild form.

Students Express Appreciation

Students of the high school declare that they are willing to express their appreciation of action by the members of the Commercial club, who recently voted to allow the high school free use of athletic apparatus, by donating their work in cleaning up a proposed camp for visiting automobile tourists. The Commercial club's athletic quarters have been turned over to the women of the Red Cross, who meet twice a week for the manufacture of hospital and surgical supplies.

Rheumatic Pains Relieved

"I have used Chamberlain's Liniment for pains in the chest and lameness of the shoulders due to rheumatism, and am pleased to say that it has never failed to give me prompt relief," writes Mrs. S. N. Finch, of Batavia, N. Y.

SIMPSON VISITS REMOTEST PLACES

When J. L. Simpson, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, finished his recent tour of central and southeastern Oregon, he had made one of the most unique journeys ever undertaken by a candidate for office in Oregon.

In many places he was the first man ever to appear in the interest of election to the highest office in the state. This was true at Lakeview and other points in the extreme south, which formerly were reached only through long journey by rail through other states.

His campaign was carried to the people of Oregon directly and in all the territory which he covered he was able to see more than 15 per cent of the registered voters. His system on this is as unique as his tour.

Before leaving Portland he had in his pocket a schedule which told him exactly how many people he was to see in each city. He made it a point not to leave town until a small pocket indicator which he punched regularly showed the required quota.

The appearance of a candidate for governor all covered with mud at the tiller of a small auto led many to believe that Mr. Simpson was indeed in earnest in his endeavor to reach most of Oregon before election time.

His journey covered more than 1400 miles in this light car and was made at a time when the roads for the most part were considered impassable. He crossed the state first from The Dalles to Lakeview and then went directly east to the Idaho line, disposing of his smart car at Ontario, where it was raffled for the benefit of the Red Cross Chapter of that place.

In the 10 days that he was en route he made himself known and talked over his principles with more than 1500 individuals besides talking on the Liberty Loan before audiences numbering in all more than 8000 persons.

THIELEN PLANS LIBERTY PARK

The small park, or garden, at the Liberty Temple in Portland was planned by L. M. Thielen, formerly a local landscape gardener. The Oregonian of Sunday says:

"While many have been charmed by the wee park in the midst of a busy city street that surrounds Liberty Temple, few know that it is the city of Portland that has made the arrangements and carried out the effect of a landscaped garden built on top of an asphalt street.

"The city collected a floral display of 50 varieties of plants at a cost of nearly $2000. The planning was the work of L. M. Thielen, landscape engineer. The plants were taken from the city parks, under his direction, and boxed so they could be moved in good condition.

"Perhaps the most striking plants on display are the camellias, a most beautiful collection containing some of the choicest that grow. Attractive, too, are the laurels, both English and Portuguese, several varieties of evergreen viburnums, a variety of veronicas, andromedas, hiaris, flex crenata and saxifrage. The plants are edged with vinca minor and banded with tanbark to obtain the massed effect.

"Foliage effects were obtained largely by the use of various evergreen viburnums. The scarlet berries of the aucubas have created much comment among interested passersby. Then there is the cosmopolitan with its holly-like foliage, often taken for holly itself. The Oregon grape is also in abundance.

"Two big plants on either side of the entrance to Liberty Temple are Irish yew. No German plants have been used or allowed in the wonderful display of flowers and shrubbery.

"It is the plan to maintain the floral and shrubbery display as long as the Temple stands. The plants will be changed, however, as they go out of bloom for others more in season."

Mrs. Castner Leaves Today

Mrs. Chas. H. Castner, president of the Oregon State Federation of Women's clubs, will leave today for Hot Springs, Ark., to attend the biennial convention of the National Federation. Following the convention Mrs. Castner will proceed to Washington, D. C., where she will attend conferences of the woman's committee of the National Council of Defense.

For the past several weeks Mrs. Castner has been devoting her time largely to organizing the women workers of the state to carry on a campaign for the sale of War Savings Stamps.

Beeman Tractor Creates Interest

The Beeman walking tractor, a small machine that draws a plow across a field, just as a horse or mule, arriving at the Cascade avenue garage of the Snow-Ford Motor Co. last week, attracted a widespread attention. The little machine, which develops a four horse power on the pulley, will draw a plow or cultivator as slowly or as fast as the operator wishes. It is just the thing for the strawberry rancher.

Indian Has Valuable Cherry Tree

Peter Coon, Indian landowner across whose place the Columbia Highway between Hood River and Mosier will extend, attaches great value to a small cherry tree that must be removed when the road is built. Peter has interviewed Engineer Cruikshank, claiming that the tree is of a rare species and worth much money. Mr. Cruikshank has reported Mr. Coon's request to the board of viewers.

J. H. Koberg, who owns young timber of a size used for piling, through which the highway must pass, has asked the viewers to set a value on the trees that must be removed from the right of way.

DON'T DELAY!

Some Hood River People Have Learned That Neglect is Dangerous.

The slightest symptom of kidney trouble is far too serious to be overlooked. It's the small, neglected troubles that so often lead to serious kidney ailments. That pain in the "small" of your back; that urinary irregularity; those headaches and dizzy spells; that weak, weary, worn out feeling; may be nature's warning of kidney weakness. Why risk your life by neglecting these symptoms? Reach the cause of the trouble while there yet is time—begin treating your kidneys at once with a tried and proven kidney remedy. No need to experiment—Doan's Kidney Pills have been successfully used in thousands of cases of kidney trouble for over 50 years. Doan's Kidney Pills are used and recommended throughout the civilized world. Endorsed at home. Read this Hood River testimony.

A. C. Stevens, 916 Twelfth St., says: "I know Doan's Kidney Pills are just the thing for a weak and aching back. I have found them to be very beneficial for rheumatic pains, too. I could not recommend a more reliable medicine than Doan's Kidney Pills for these troubles. I have been taking them off and on for a long time and they have never failed to give me the best of satisfaction."

Mr. Stevens is only one of many Hood River people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidney's bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS, the same that Mr. Stevens relies on—the remedy backed by home testimony. 60 cents at all stores. Foster-McMillan Co., Prop., Buffalo, N. Y. "When your back is lame—remember the Name."
