SUNDAY SCHOOL NEWS

Perhaps no department of the Sunday school work has furnished more gratifying results to the teachers than the course in Bible study for high school credit. The State of Oregon publishes text books with the state seal on the cover. These books may be secured by the Sunday schools free of charge. Examinations are conducted at the close of the school year and credit given to those who successfully pass.

Superintendent of Public Instruction J. A. Churchill gives the following introduction in the syllabus:

"A knowledge of the Bible is an essential element in a good education, and though one may not be interested in it as a manual of devotion, he should be familiar with it as a literature and a history. Many teachers of English and history have asked this department to prepare a syllabus that will direct the study outside of school of pupils who wish to become familiar with the life stories of characters of the Bible, with the beauty of its style and the influence of its ideals.

"This work should be elective—wholly optional with the pupils and parents, and at no time required by the teacher.

"With a view to assisting the departments of English and history in the high schools of the State, this syllabus has been prepared."

Several of the Sunday schools have classes in this course and several of the members took the examinations conducted by our high schools. Following are the names of those who took the course and passed the examinations the past year, together with the grade standings of a few of the highest: Catharine Kinsey 98, Martha Ferguson 96 1/2, Edgar Harris 96, Dale Roberts 93, Myron Hoyt, Hazel Carr, Dorothea Cram, Rodger Blackmar, Katherine Stewart, Robert Schukock, Bernice Campbell, Bernita Nicolson, Leonard Partis, Margaret Berry, Bernice Robinson, Mabelle Slavens, Mildred Van Nuy, Florence Craven and Millicent Goodlander.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance Sunday school has gone on record as opposed to the promiscuous distribution of cigarettes to the army boys.

The present plan is to run this column of Sunday school news but once each month. In order that the news may come in simultaneously, will the superintendents of all the Sunday schools in the county bear in mind to forward notices from their respective schools to W. C. Keck, R. F. D. No. 1, Hood River, just following the last Sunday of each month. May we not have at least one item of interest from each school for the July issue, which would surely make a readable column.

Whooping Cough

In this disease it is important that the cough be kept loose and expectoration easy, which can be done by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. P. H. Martin, Pea, Ind., writes, "My two daughters had whooping cough. I gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it worked like a charm."

SUMMER PRUNING URGED ON GROWERS

(By Gordon G. Brown)

The writer wishes to urge the importance of summer pruning for young trees ranging from one to five years. This is the period during which vigorous trees are producing much wood growth and few fruit spurs. Recent experiments conducted at the Oregon Experiment Station show clearly the desirability of summer pruning between June 15 and July 15. By this time trees should have made approximately two-thirds of their normal seasonal growth.

Anyone will appreciate that if a good deal of terminal growth which is pruned during winter could be diverted into desirable lateral growth, especially spurs, the grower would gain in two distinct ways: first, earlier bearing would be realized and, second, at least one year's growth might be gained by the time trees are five to six years old. This is exactly what summer pruning has done. Note again, please, that this pruning is to be done while growth is still active early in the season long before the terminal bud has begun to form.

We will assume that we are now dealing with a two-year-old Newtown; that is to say a tree which was set in the spring of 1917. We will assume that by July 1 or 15th its growth is approximately 29 inches. Keeping in mind proper proportion between branches, let us remove the upper five inches, leaving 15 inches upon which leaves and buds are well spaced. Granted that we have a vigorous tree, growth should immediately push out at one or two places near the point where the cut was made. This secondary growth should range anywhere from ten to thirty inches the same season. Result: instead of much useless terminal growth to be cut off during the coming winter, we have additional branches quite similar to that which would follow next winter's pruning. However, often times the only apparent result will be the further upward growth of the bud near the cut. Seemingly, therefore, nothing has been gained. Is this true? Examination of buds upon a normal season's unpruned growth, that is, auxiliary buds (not spur buds) shows that those borne well out near the end where they have had better light and air are larger and stronger. Further examination shows that these and not those poorly nourished buds near the base of the shoot are the ones which during the following year form fruit spurs. Obviously, then, winter pruning sufficiently heavy to insure proper structure and relation of limbs will remove a large portion of these desirable buds, potentially spur buds.

What, then, of the summer pruned shoot? We will call that which remains after the pruning primary growth and that which later grows during the same season as secondary growth. Investigation discloses the fact that buds formed upon this secondary growth function in a similar manner to those upper buds upon the unpruned shoot. The advantage in summer pruning lies in this fact—the total length of the primary plus secondary growth is on an average much less than that for the unpruned shoot, hence the necessity for heavy winter pruning following the summer pruning is obvious. It is also clear that a fewer number of the desirable upper buds will have thus been cut off.

What about those buds on the primary growth? As pointed out the upper one or two buds will grow and form shoots such as just described. The grower has thus gained in tree structure and in freedom from heavy winter pruning. The other auxiliary buds below, under the stimulus of summer pruning, either form spurs the same season or during the following season, whereas they often remain dormant and never directly produce fruiting wood.

Much, then, is to be gained from summer pruning now or a little later. Trees must be vigorous, however.

In this work there is little difference between the character of summer pruning and winter pruning except in degree of heavy or light cutting. Summer pruning will be largely a heading back process, while that of winter pruning following such practice will be that of thinning. Growers are urged to secure Bulletin 139 of the Oregon Agricultural College, which goes into this character of work in detail.

Man Released to Join Navy

On motion of District Attorney Derby, Circuit Judge Fred W. Wilson issued an order Monday clearing the record of C. S. Jerden, telegraph operator, held on a charge of forging a railroad pass and Jerden left immediately for Portland to enlist in the navy.

It appeared from grand jury witnesses that John Brooks, bound over for the alleged raising of a logging time check from 34 hours to 34 days, was of unsound mind and on the jury's recommendation the man, instead of being indicted was taken before a commission and adjudged insane. He has been taken to the Pendleton asylum.

WORK OR FIGHT RULE TO BE APPLIED

(By Gordon G. Brown)

All persons who can give information in regard to any draft registrant whose status is affected by the work or fight regulations, which become effective July 1, are particularly requested by the War Department to do so.

In fact, the regulations make it the duty of all citizens to report as soon as all facts which may come to their knowledge concerning registrants who are idle, or who are engaged in a non-productive occupation or employment. This report should be made to the nearest local draft board.

Persons writing or giving this information in person need have no fear their names will be revealed, for the information will be regarded in this sense as strictly confidential.

Under the head of "idlers," who will receive scant consideration from the local boards in their reclassification of such registrants who decline to enter a useful occupation of employment, the Government lists such occupations as "gamblers of all description and employees of race tracks and bucket shops, and fortune tellers, clairvoyants, palmists and the like."

And here are the regulations defining non-productive occupations or employment:

"The employment or engagement of any able-bodied registrant of military age in any of the following occupations or employments is not sufficiently effective in the present emergency, to justify the postponement of his call into military service, notwithstanding he may have a late order number and notwithstanding he may have been placed in Class 2, 3 or 4 on the ground of dependency; and all registrants engaged as follows are to be considered by local and district boards as engaged in non-productive occupations or employments:

"Persons engaged in the serving of food and drink, or either, in public places, including hotels and social clubs;

"Passenger-elevator operators and attendants; and door men, footmen, carriage openers and other attendants in clubs, hotels, stores, apartment houses, office buildings and bathhouses;

"Persons, including ushers and other attendants, engaged and occupied in and in connection with games, sports, and amusements, excepting athletic performers in legitimate concerts, operas or theatrical performances;

"Persons employed in domestic service;

"Sales clerks and other clerks employed in stores and other mercantile establishments."

REMOVE WATER SPROUTS NOW

(By Gordon G. Brown)

In many orchards, following heavy pruning and fertilization, water sprouts are much in evidence. Where these are not needed for branches, growers are urged to remove them now. They can be pulled off readily and at slight expense as compared with the effort required in winter pruning. Much tree energy will thus be saved as well as a harbor for aphids later in the season.

Light pruning may now be done to aid in thinning fruit and incidentally save in next winter's pruning. This, however, cannot be expected to relieve the grower of the necessity of regular thinning where a heavy set is to be dealt with.

Carson Has Tough Luck

City Marshal Carson, one of whose duties is jailer for city and county, declares that in the future he will order the meals for prisoners. Yesterday Mr. Carson escorted John Brooks, adjudged insane and held awaiting the arrival of an asylum attendant, to a restaurant, and while he was engaged just outside the building in a conference with other officers Brooks was allowed to order the meal himself.

Mr. Carson is allowed 23 cents a meal for a prisoner, but when he returned he found that Brooks had begun with ham and eggs and ended with strawberry shortcake and cream. He was ordering cigars. The total bill amounted to $3.15.

AT THE LIBERTY

Today

Harold Lockwood, one of the supreme favorites of the screen, will be seen in "The Landlady." This is a story just suited to this wonderful young star and is an unusually good picture. Also Ben Turpin, Billy Armstrong and Polly Moran in "Sheriff Nell's Tussle," a two reel giggle maker from the Mack Sennett studios.

Friday and Saturday

Wallace Reid and Anne Little in "Rimrock Jones," a fast moving story of life in the far west with Mr. Reid as Rimrock Jones, a character you will like for all his little frailties and faults. A play that will make these two stars many new friends. Also an Animated War Weekly which is a feature of our Friday and Saturday change each week.

Sunday

One day only, Roy Stewart will be seen in "Faith Enduring," the story of how a cowboy casts suspicion on himself to save his sweetheart from a murder charge. This is a story of the great west as it used to be, portrayed by a group of daredevil riders and cowpunchers that perform feats of horsemanship that will make you thrill.

Monday and Tuesday

Theba Bara, world famous portrayer of vampire parts, in "The Rose of Blood," a story of the present Russian revolution and showing how much a woman had to do with the happenings which overturned an empire and de-throned a czar. This story is and very close to real facts and many scenes of actual life in Russia are in the story which add greatly to the color of the play and tend to show Americans just what has transpired in the land of the bear. We will also show a Ford naval film. Usual prices.

Wednesday and Thursday

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "The Brass Check," a clever comedy drama of a different type than these two stars have ever been shown in. Thursday, July 4, after six p. m. we will show Gladys Brockwell in a thrilling patriotic spectacle of today entitled, "For Liberty." This is a wonderful patriotic spectacle and was booked specially for a Fourth of July offering. A play every American should see.

Friday and Saturday, July 5 and 6, Chas. Ray will be seen in his greatest role play, "The Hired Man," Helene Hayes at the organ.
